RIVERS URGES END OF AD VALOREM TAXES AS SOLONS GATHER FOR SESSION TOMORROW

FARM BILL GROUPS ON NON-STOP BASIS TO MEET DEADLINE

Senate and House Committees To Hold Sessions Almost Continuously Until Measure Is Ready for Submission.

TAX RELIEF NOW HELD IMPROBABLE

Fear Business Will Not Back General Revision Later Declared Bar to 'Piecemeal' Levy Action.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Farm bill leaders, anxious to get a measure before congress Tuesday, set committee machinery into non-stop operation today.

Joining in an almost unprecedented maneuver, senate and house agriculture committees undertook executive sessions which some members said would be virtually continuous until Monday.

Wallace Confident.

The strategy apparently gave Secretary Wallace confidence the administration's No. 1 item was rounding into shape. He told reporters after a conference with Vice President Garner that the measure was "coming along all right."

It was assumed they conferred on plans for handling the bill which leaders have decided to set ahead of the pending anti-lynching legislation.

Doubt Tax Relief.

Congressmen also considered tax revision. Well-informed officials said privately no "piecemeal" tax relief would be granted this session because it would impair the administration's bargaining position on general tax reform legislation planned for next year.

This statement coincided with new Republican demands for immediate repeal of the undistributed corporate profits tax.

At about the same time, Senator Bulkley, Democrat, Ohio, completed a draft of amendments to the undistributed profits tax law and said he would file them with the senate finance committee Monday.

Committee's Reason.

Although the house tax subcommittee has agreed to recommend exemption of firms earning less than $5,000 a year and is considering relief for those with larger incomes, one influential official said this would not be forthcoming before the next regular session of congress, because:

"The attitude the committee is going to take is that if they give business relief from the undistributed surplus and capital gains taxes now, business will not be inclined next year to support a bill to recover the revenue thus lost and effect a general reform of the tax structure."

Meanwhile, congressmen troubled by the specter of war and avowedly displeased with the administration's policy in the Far East considered attempting next week to erect new neutrality fences around the United States.

Senate Nye, Republican, North Dakota, announced a meeting of a bi-partisan group of senators ...

Pope Issues Rebuke To Father Coughlin

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(UP) Pope Pius XI tonight administered an unprecedented public rebuke to the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest.

The Pope's action, said to be almost without parallel, consisted of a public statement approving the conduct of Archbishop Edward Mooney, of Detroit, in reproving Coughlin for criticizing President Roosevelt. Mooney ordered Coughlin to cease his attacks.

The statement of the Pope was issued by Archbishop Amleto Cocognani. Mooney's order followed a statement by Coughlin that the President's appointment of Justice Black to the supreme court was "personal stupidity."

Georgia's Princess for Southern Carnival

Asasno Photo.

Miss Maibelle Dickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dickey, of 26 Wesley road, yesterday was named Princess Georgia to officially represent the state in the All-Southern Pre-Christmas carnival at Birmingham Saturday. At the request of Birmingham civic groups to select a typical Georgia girl, Governor Rivers chose Miss Dickey as Georgia's "Princess." A former Atlanta debutante, Miss Dickey several years ago gained fame by striking out Governor Talmadge in opening day ceremonies at the Atlanta baseball park.

American Public Opinion Is Friendly to Windsors

61 Per Cent of U. S. Voters Would Welcome Pair as Residents.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Edward Windsor and his American-born Duchess would have a popular welcome wherever they might travel in the United States today, despite labor criticism of the Duke's proposed tour under the direction of Charles E. Bedaux, a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion indicates.

Not only would the Windsors be welcome, but "America Speaks" reveals today that a majority of Americans would like to have them make their home in the United States.

The question which the Institute put to voters in every state and in all walks of life was:

Would you like to have the Duke and Duchess of Windsor live in this country?"

Sixty-one per cent of the voters in the poll answered "yes." Thirty-nine per cent said "no."

First Poll Year Ago.

On November 22, 1936, before the average British citizen had read anything regarding the royal romance, the Institute of Public Opinion published the results of a survey in this country which showed Americans' sympathetic to Edward's intended marriage.

By an interesting coincidence, the vote in the early survey was exactly the same as the vote today. Sixty-one per cent of the voters reached thought Edward should marry the American woman. Thirty-nine per cent disapproved.

CATHOLIC BISHOPS OF U. S. HIT NAZIS

'Outraged by Satanic Resourcefulness of German Pagans,' They Say.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Catholic bishops of the United States assailed the German government today for what they termed "persecution" of the church. They added that all religious-minded men and women were "outraged by the Satanic resourcefulness of these leaders of modern paganism."

The bishops declared "clever propaganda, maliciously used" beclouded the real facts in Spain.

The statements were made in separate letters to the heirarchies of Germany and Spain before the bishops concluded a three-day annual meeting here.

"The attempt to vilify priests and to destroy their reputations in indecent and frequently unjustified trials has produced in our country just the contrary effect," the letter to the German heirarchy said.

The letter to Spain expressed "poignant sorrow" over the church's "suffering" there.

Atlanta Hunter Is Killed by Friend Few Hours After Season Opens

First victim of Georgia's hunting season was an Atlanta hunter who was wounded fatally yesterday near Conyers a few hours after hunters had taken to the fields on the first day of quail and wild turkey season.

DeWitt Owen, 27, of 557 North Highland avenue, restaurant manager, fell into a ditch near Gees mill, six miles from Conyers and was accidentally shot in the thigh as he crawled out. The discharged gun was held by one of three companions, whose names members of the family refused to disclose.

First aid treatment was given the wounded man at Conyers. An ambulance brought Owen to Emory University hospital.

Billy Street, of 297 Oxford place, former Georgia Tech football and basketball player, was said to have accidently fired the fatal shot.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock today at Spring Hill chapel with the Rev. H. E. Russell, of Rock Springs Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Owen told a Conyers doctor he and his companions had just begun the hunt when he was shot.

A native of Toccoa, he moved to Atlanta nine years ago. He is survived by his wife, a son, Robert; his mother, Mrs. D. W. Owen, of Toccoa; a brother, Bernard Owen, of Toccoa; three sisters, Misses Lucile, Sarah and Agnes Owen.

WHITE, GILLIAM HIT LOCAL OPERATION OF PWA HOUSING

Council Finance Committee Leaders Will Demand Immediate Payment of $10,000 for Services to Government.

MOVE TO 'SADDLE' CITY IS CHARGED

Hartsfield, 'Wondering' Why U. S. Wants To Shift Projects, Declares 'There Is No Hurry.'

Voicing opposition to proposed local operation of Techwood and University low-cost housing projects, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam and Councilman John A. White, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of council's finance committee, yesterday announced they will demand immediaite payment to the city of about $10,000 "in accordance with a federal government agreement to pay for city services."

To Shift 51 Projects.

The statement was made as federal housing authority aides announced from Washington that the federal agency will relinquish management of 51 PWA low rent housing projects throughout the United States to local housing authorities which are to be established by municipal governments.

It also came as Mayor Hartsfield arrived in Atlanta from attending the National Mayors' Association convention at Washington with a statement that no immediate decision is necessary. Hartsfield indicated some changes must be made in the state housing enabling act before he will approve a local authority, and it was indicated an effort probably will be made in the special legislative session.

The actions yesterday followed announcement Friday by Nathan Straus, national housing administrator, that the federal government proposes to turn PWA housing projects over to local authorities as soon as possible. The Straus statement was made at Cleveland.

Mayor Hartsfield several months ago vetoed council action to estab-

NEW BOARD URGED FOR STATE PRISONS

Survey Suggests Retention of Present Commission as a Parole Group.

Creation of an appointive, unpaid, non-political board with complete control of prison administration in Georgia was recommended yesterday by the National Prison Industries Reorganization Administration.

The recommendation was one of nine contained in a survey made by the PIRA board on employment of prisoners and allied prison activities in Georgia.

The survey suggested retention of the present salaried prison commission as a parole board, with enlarged authority to pass on cases in which prisoners are released before expiration of their maximum sentences.

Overlapping Terms.

The appointive new board would function through a full-time executive named by it, with all personnel to be chosen on a merit basis. The board members would have overlapping terms under the recommendation.

Legislation already planned to set up Governor Rivers' prison reform program embodies some of the basic recommendations offered in the survey. The survey, which is advisory in nature, will be submitted to the special session of the legislature as a "compendium of facts," the Governor said.

Several Recommendations.

The other general recommendations are as follows:

"1. Abolition of the present practice of turning state prisoners over to the county convict camps and development of modern state camps for those inmates selected for road work. Development of consolidated camps under state control for misdemeanants.

"2. Development of 10 or more state-use industries at the new

TWO CITIES, FORT FALL TO JAPANESE

Soochow, Key Point of 'Hindenburg Line' Captured; Capital Moved.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 21.—(Sunday) (AP)—Japanese drove west to new conquests today following the sudden fall of Soochow, keypoint of China's "Hindenburg Line."

Chinese strove from a strong, new defense line to bar the invaders' progress to Nanking, from which the government yesterday formally announced removal of the capital to Chungking, 750 miles further inland, in Szechwan province.

Foreign military observers, however, expressed doubt that the Chinese would make a determined stand before Nanking and some predicted the city would be given up after a feeble struggle.

New Chinese Line.

The new Chinese line, along which 130,000 troops were reported entrenched, stretched from Wusih, 25 miles north of Soochow, to Kiangyin, a distance of nearly 35 miles. Japanese announced that after a bombardment which lasted throughout the night their marines had captured the Fushan forts, stronghold of the Yangtze river 33 miles northeast of Soochow.

A column from Soochow, advanced along a railway to capture Sinan, six miles from Wusih.

Forty thousand Chinese troops retreated from Soochow after the Japanese took it in what one of their army spokesmen called "one of the most amazing captures of an important city in the annals of war."

No Decision Expected.

(American Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis and British delegates conferred in Brussels on the draft of a statement to be presented Monday to the far eastern conference, but the parley was expected to adjourn soon without decisive action in support of China.)

Officials reiterated their determination to resist the Japanese advance and foreign quarters believed that any move by the government to accept oppressive Japanese peace terms might split China.

Georgia Ties Auburn, 0-0; Tech Winner

Yellow Jackets Defeat Florida, 12 to 0; Bulldogs Stave Off Tigers.

The University of Georgia Bulldogs held a highly-favored Auburn eleven to a scoreless tie yesterday at Columbus, in one of the biggest upsets of the day. Georgia Tech defeated Florida, 12 to 0, at Gainesville.

The Bulldogs outplayed the Plainsmen in the first half by a slight margin.

In the second half the Plainsmen piled up plenty of yardage until they neared the Georgia goal line, then they bogged down. Auburn tried several field goals which failed.

Tech scored the first touchdown in the third quarter when General Wood blocked Tiger Mayberry's punt on the Florida 21-yard line. Fletcher Sims plunged over for the score from the 2-yard line.

The Jackets' next touchdown came in the fourth period, climaxing a 47-yard march. Dutch Konemann ran 30 yards for the score.

Atlantans, shivering though bundled in heavy overcoats, last night felt the winter's first snow blow against their faces as biting winds sent the mercury lower and lower.

And for once they failed to question the weatherman's prediction when he said 15-degree weather would follow this morning.

Snow was falling also in North Carolina where sub-zero weather was recorded. The weather observatory atop Mt. Mitchell reported the mercury had dropped 1 degree below zero early last night and was still falling. A light snow was adding depth to the two inches that fell on the mountain during the day.

First Strawberries.

And while Atlantans were struggling to keep warm, a Florida farmer brought the season's first strawberries to market at Lakeland and claimed the prize offered annually by a civic club there to the grower bringing to town the first baskets of the fruit.

Atlanta temperatures tumbled to 22 degrees Saturday and remained below the freezing point throughout the day," the weatherman said. The highest reading was 30 degrees. A light snow fell in the city early yesterday morning and slight flurries were re-

Raids Smash $750,000 Dope Ring, Net 17 in War on Narcotic Tongs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A trial that started with the source of supply for a narcotic addict in New York had led treasury agents today to a series of raids in five cities in which they said they had smashed a nation-wide ring doing $750,000 of business yearly.

Six months of quiet investigation paved the way for the raids. When the agents cracked down last night, they arrested 17 persons, including the wife and brother of a member of the notorious "Lucky" Luciano gang and a former president of the Chinese Hip Sing tong.

Treasury officials said the 17 were seized in New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, San Francisco and Butte, Mont.

Harry J. Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics, declared most of those arrested operated through a tong organization.

In New York, 50 agents broke down the dragon-emblazoned doors of alleged "smoke joints" and other shadowy haunts in Manhattan's Chinatown. Assistant United States Attorney Abel Smith told how two daring agents posed as dealers, joined a Chinese tong and went through the secret ritual to trap higher-ups.

One agent first broke the case. "We persuaded a Seattle Chinese narcotics distributor to act as his informer," Smith said, "and eventually gained an introduction to a Chinese in Butte, Mont.

"The agent then went to New York. He represented himself as a 'front' man for a large narcotics syndicate and acquired a letter of introduction to the president of a Chinese tong.

Soon thereafter, Smith said, the lone-wolf investigator had a fellow agent initiated and together they finally reached the national president of the tong, who lived in Pittsburgh.

ASSEMBLY FACES TASK OF FINANCING ITS NEW AGENCIES

Governor Announces He Will Submit Proposals But Will Leave Solution to Legislators; Gross Income Levy Is Pushed.

CALL POSTPONED UNTIL OPENING DAY

Executive Announces He Wants To Keep Door Open To New Proposals Until the Last Minute.

By L. A. FARRELL.

As members of the general assembly gathered in Atlanta last night, prepared to tackle the problem of permanently financing the new agencies it created in its regular session, Governor Rivers revealed he favors the complete elimination of the five-mill state ad valorem tax and that he will submit alternatives for taxation in his address to the joint session of the house and senate tomorrow morning.

Although the Governor, an advocate of complete revision of the tax structure, last night gave no indication as to the nature of the alternate proposals, Rivers leaders in the house, where all tax legislation must originate, displayed a marked interest in a gross income tax plan. This, they said, is to avoid the possibility of a general sales tax or a broadening and continuance of what the Governor has termed "the present system of patchwork taxing."

Key Favors Gross Tax.

Representative William H. Key, of Jasper county, vice chairman of the special joint tax commission which has been studying revision on the tax structure since the last regular session, announced he favors adoption of the gross income tax. Representative Clement E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, the house floor leader, and Representative R. H. Freeman Jr., of Bibb county, have remained silent.

While Rivers said he favors the complete elimination of state ad valorem taxes, the Governor last night indicated he will not attempt to put through any tax program.

"I am willing to go along with the legislature in the tax revision program," the chief executive said in an address to the people of the state over radio station WSB in which he summed up the pre-session situation.

Saving of $10,000,000.

The Rivers' address climaxed a series of meetings with various business and professional groups, county commissioners and other officials. In it, he pointed out that if the entire program of the administration is fulfilled by passage of enabling acts providing for the homestead and household furniture exemptions approved in the June 8 general election, Georgians

UAWA PREPARES FOR SHOWDOWN IN PONTIAC STRIKE

Martin Seeks To End Union Defiance; Ohio National Guard on Call.

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 20.—(AP) High officials of the United Automobile Workers of America, confronted with a major test of their ability to control their members, prepared for a showdown today on an unauthorized sit-down strike here in General Motors' Fisher Body plant.

Indicating the concern felt by the union's high command, leaders of the strike were summoned tonight by Homer Martin, international president, to meet in Detroit tomorrow with the executive board of the United Automobile Workers of America.

"We are determined to eliminate unauthorized strikes," Martin said. "Whatever is necessary to accomplish this end will be done. We have taken consistently the position that it is the union's duty to discipline members who refused to abide by its constitution, and that the union can best handle the situation of unauthorized strikes."

Asked what the international union would do if the strikers continue to disregard pleas to call off their sit-down, Martin replied:

"That's in the future. We won't talk about it now."

The showdown on the ability of the international officers to control UAWA which had been expected to come today or tonight was postponed until Sunday by Martin's action.

Martin conferred with other union officials at Detroit in advance of his departure for Pontiac to appeal directly to the several hundred men whose defiant strike Wednesday night has thrown 14,700 men into idleness.

The sit-down strikers, numbering approximately 450, dug in for an indefinite siege.

OHIO NATIONAL GUARD ORDERED TO "STAND BY"

AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The state of Ohio ordered 2,000 national guardsmen to "stand by" today for possible duty at the Akron plants of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, and Governor Martin L. Davey declared sit-down strikes "will not be tolerated in Ohio."

"The sit-down strike is illegal, immoral and revolutionary," the executive declared, a few hours after orders had gone out for 22 national guard units in 20 cities to be ready for call.

Almost simultaneously with issuance the national guard orders, leaders of the CIO United Rubber Workers reported nearly all the 300 to 600 workers who sat down Friday in protest against a layoff plan had filed out of the plants.

SABOTAGE FEARED, SHIP CAPTAIN TESTIFIES

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Captain Robert F. Lord, of the steamship Cuba, told a National Labor Relations Board examiner here today that the vessel was taken out of commission at Port Tampa last June because of threats of sabotage by crew members and because he feared a disaster at sea.

AD VALOREM END URGED BY RIVERS

will have been saved upwards of $10,000,000 in property taxes.

Simultaneously, Representative Key, who also is chairman of the house appropriations committee, issued a statement calling for a new tax base to apply to a majority of the "90 per cent of the people who now pay no state taxes at all."

Governor Rivers detailed in his address last night the scores of conferences he and leaders of the assembly have held looking toward a permanent solution of the tax problem. He asserted that recognized experts have been assisting him and the assembly leadership in mapping the program.

"The details and alternatives of tax revision cannot be given in this message for want of time," the Governor said. "They will be related fuly in my message to the general assembly Monday morning."

The chief executive said one of the chief problems to be decided by the assembly was whether or not to eliminate all state ad valorem taxes.

"Whether or not we take off the state ad valorem tax will determine what and how much additional tax levies will have to be made for state purposes," he said.

Emphasizes Savings.

Governor Rivers detailed how the constitutional amendment permitting exemptions on owner-occupied homes and farms up to $2,000 and on furniture up to $300 would save the people of the state $5,000,000 in county and school district taxes as well as $1,000,000 in state taxes. He also emphasized the lengthening of the school term to seven months, financed by state funds, brought about a saving in county and school district taxes.

The homestead exemption plan will be in effect only in so far as state, county and school district taxes are concerned. There will be no exemption on municipal taxes. The furniture exemption plan, however, calls for exemption from all taxes.

The Governor, an advocate of the plan to classify intangible properties for taxation, touched briefly on this subject and it is expected to be one of the most important matters discussed in his speech tomorrow.

The Governor reviewed the benefits of his administration and called for the elimination of partisan politics while the assembly tackles the problems confronting it.

A long series of conferences is scheduled for today.

Spivey, Harris On Job.

Senate President John B. Spivey and Speaker of the House Roy V. Harris have been on the job for 10 days arranging details for the session. Representative Sutton and Senator David S. Atkinson, of Savannah, the senate floor leader, have been in and out of Atlanta for two or three weeks mapping the program. Senator Atkinson arrived last night to stay and Judge Sutton is due here this morning.

The two floor leaders, aided by Senator Lee Purdom, of Blackshear, in the senate, and Representatives Freeman, Key and others in the house, are expected to be the administration "whips" during the session.

Opposition to the tax program prior to the session had been led by Representative Carmichael, of Cobb, an administration leader during the regular session. Who will aid Carmichael in his fight on the program has not been learned. A number of members of both house and senate have made known their opposition to an increase in the tax load but few have publicly announced opposition views.

Why Call Delayed.

Governor Rivers definitely annuonced yesterday before leaving for Columbus to attend the annual Georgia-Auburn football game it would be "impossible" for him to make public the call for the session before Monday morning.

He added he wanted senators and representatives to know that their legislation could get into the call almost up to the last minute.

The call is being prepared by the department of law and will be printed for the members early Monday.

Through the series of conferences, the Governor has had suggested to him practically every form of taxation.

Three Tax Groups.

Added to this, the legislators themselves have split into three classes of "tax-mindedness."

Some want the basis of the new system to be broad, general taxes of the sales or gross receipts type.

Others lean toward special taxes, such as soft drink, utility and amusement levies.

The third group would stand by the present program and see how it works before laying a hand on any more than the acts necessary to carry out the constitutional amendments.

In the event the "wait and see" attitude develops strength, it may bring an effort toward patching up a few holes in the state's prospective revenues with more "stop gap" tax acts, with general revision carried over until the regular session of 1939.

A Favored Course.

One fairly complete revision program which holds favor among some of the Governor's close advisers calls for:

An abolition of the property ad valorem tax for state purposes.

Elimination of practically all occupational and professional taxes except those of a regulatory nature.

Institution of a gross income tax to produce about $12,000,000 a year to make up for taxes removed, for losses under tax exemption laws and to supply the needed revenue.

The gross income tax would exempt manufacturers, this being suggested as a stimulant to industrial development.

The Governor has said "almost any kind of a tax law can be introduced," and his statement was taken in some quarters as an indication just this would happen.

All Types of Tax Bills.

Tax bills are expected to flood the house hopper and include: sales tax, gross receipts, revision of the chain store levy, possible revision of the beer law, efforts at taxation of liquor through "general bills of local application," and numerous other classes of tax measures. Upward revision of the insurance premium tax also may be proposed.

Hoping for a short session—he wants it over "by Christmas"—and having numerous other acts he desires passed at the session, the Governor is not expected to press any tax bills except the "must" laws on constitutional amendments if there is any indication a prolonged session will result.

There are many in official circles who doubt ability of the assembly to tackle taxes in a wholesale manner and end the session in a few weeks. Administration leaders, on the other hand, are expected to work against a prolonged session.

Other Objectives.

Besides the tax measures, bills the Governor has indicated he will ask for will call for:

Emergency revision of prison laws, especially to eliminate chain gangs from Georgia, and to lay the foundation for a new prison system based on Tattnall county prison.

Civil service for all "non-policy forming" state employes to end "the spoils system" and take from the Governor the "burden of handling patronage."

Revision of parole and probation laws as one part of the prison reform program.

Creation of a citizens' and legislators' economy commission to survey state operation and recommend economy steps and uniform salary scales, this plan dove-tailing with the civil service call.

An enabling act to put into effect the constitutional amendment extending pensions to widows who married Confederate veterans prior to January 1, 1920. The present limit is 1881.

Legislation to allow distribution of automobile tags through county tax collectors in order that they may receive fees to offset losses under the exemption law. In the same move, the license may be reduced from $3 to $1.25.

County Road Fight.

One of the most controversial issues of the pre-session discussions apparently has been sidetracked. This was the recommendation of the special legislative tax committee that the state tak over maintenance of all roads now worked by counties. Neither as an optional nor mandatory act does it bear administration approval, and various groups, including county commissioners meeting with the Governor, have fought it bitterly.

There is a possibility such a proposal will be taken to the legislature without administration backing.

Another proposal of the tax committee apparently has been dropped. This called for the office of tax receiver and tax collector in every county to be combined, with the tax receiver being made an appointive "tax appraiser" subject to rules and regulation of the state.

CITY, FULTON BLOC MEET TOMORROW

Lawmakers Will Be Told of Finance Problems.

City officials, led by Mayor Hartsfield, will discuss municipal problems with members of the Fulton county delegation in the Georgia legislature in a meeting at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the city hall.

Senator G. Everett Millican and Representatives Helen Douglas Mankin, Cicero Kendrick and William G. Hastings have been invited to meet with executive officials of the city in order to study fiscal problems confronting Atlanta.

B. Graham West, city comptroller; Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, finance committee chairman, and Joe C. Little, Leo Sudderth and J. Sid Tiller, members of the city board of tax assessors, are among those who will attend.

Hartsfield has called the conference with a view of acquainting delegation members with city problems in order that revision of state laws will not be detrimental to the municipality.

METHODISTS CLOSE CONFERENCE TODAY WITH MEMORIAL

North Georgia Body Devotes Session Yesterday to Temperance Promotion.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Further agitation for temperance promotion in Georgia, and request that the general conference repeal the law regarding the use of tobacco by young ministers were outstanding features of the Saturday morning session of the North Georgia Methodist annual conference. Other leading items considered pertained to the adoption of a budget for the coming year, and selection of a place for meeting in 1938.

The conference session for this year will come to a close today, with the memorial service followed immediately by the reading of the pastoral assignments. A love feast will be conducted at Wesley Memorial church at 9:30, by the Rev. J. P. Erwin, of Hogansville, with the sermon following at 11 o'clock by Bishop A. Frank Smith, of Houston, Texas, followed by the ordination of deacons and elders.

Temperance Report Read.

An hour's time was devoted to the matter of temperance promotion in Georgia, when the special report on temperance was read by the Rev. A. Lee Hale, of the Atlanta Peachtree Road church. Declaring that the repeal of prohibition had opened the floodgates for the overwhelming flow of liquor into states that enacted repeal, resulting in large increases in crime, arrests, lowered morality, wrecked homes and juvenile delinquency, the report called for the adoption of radical measures to combat and destroy the liquor traffic.

Governor Rivers and all law agencies were called upon to strictly enforce the law relative to the illegal sale and manufacture of alcohol, and for a discontinuation of the sale of wine and beer.

Condemnation of those cities and sections of the state that defy the prohibition law was expressed, and the authorities were exhorted to put down such rebellion, as it was declared to be.

Rev. Nath Thompson, leader of the prohibition forces in Georgia, spoke to the report, and enlightened the conference as to the status of sentiment in the state.

Mr. Thompson asserted the greatest need in Georgia relative to the liquor traffic is an awakened conscience on the part of all church people, of all denominations.

Day of Doom to Come.

Bishop Ainsworth expressed his settled and firm conviction that the day of doom for alcoholic beverages is bound to come. Taxes that may be received from legalizing the sale and manufacture of alcohol are far exceeded by the increased costs of government and lowered efficiency, said the bishop. He also asserted that states barring the legalizing of liquor have suffered fewer crimes and accidents than have those repealing the prohibition laws.

Bishop Ainsworth appealed to the Methodist hosts to follow the traditions of historic Methodism, and enlist in a militant drive against all forms of liquor commerce in this state. He asked for a systematic method of financial support for the help of the leaders in the fight, and exhorted all who would make a systematic monthly contribution to hold up hands. More than a hundred hands were held up. A cash offering was taken, with a substantial sum of money given at the time, and pledges made for future contributions.

The budget adopted by the conference Saturday provides for a total sum of $207,690. Of the budget sum $107,615 will be used within the borders of this conference, while $98,325 will be used to promote the church-wide enterprises.

Items in the budget listings are as follows: Conference missions, $25,258; conference claimants, $30,333; Christian education, $17,904; church extension, $830; laymen's activities, $787; conference entertainment, $8,640; death benefit fund, $12,000; agent of the superannuates' homes, $1,363; initial fund for superannuates, $6,300; Wesleyan Christian Advocate, $4,100; commission on Methodist history, $100.

Miller S. Bell, of Milledgeville, chairman of the Wesley Memorial properties, made report regarding progress in liquidating the indebtedness. The present total indebtedness, he said, is $35,000, of which amount the Berry schools hold claims for $27,000. The former $9,200 interest charges past due have been paid, all save $100. Rentals from the property has amounted to $3,200 this year, and the sale of $1,000 worth of other holdings was made. The conference voted authority to the commission to continue their plans for the disposal of all indebtedness.

Presiding Elder's Report.

Presiding elders from the ten districts made detailed reports. The Athens-Elberton district showed 521 accessions to the church on profession of faith, with pastors' salaries overpaid on 23 charges, and benevolences in full. The Augusta district reported 458 accessions with salaries paid, 98 per cent, and benevolences overpaid.

The Atlanta district reported 1,087 accessions by faith, numerour building programs, 99 per cent on salaries, benevolences paid in full on every charge in the district. Plans were announced for building a great Methodist church in the section north of St. Mark church.

Dalton district reported 279 accessions by faith, salaries in full, and benevolences lacking one per cent. Special reference was made to the Chickamauga church's work this year. The Gainesville district reported 445 accessions by faith, improved benevolence offerings, and two new churches, and two new parsonages. The Griffin district reported 859 accessions by faith, salaries paid 99 per cent with less than one per cent shortage on benevolences.

The LaGrange district 385 accessions by faith, benevolences 99 per cent, two new parsonages built, and a gift of $1,000 to the Manget hospital fund. The Marietta district reported 205 accessions, 99 per cent paid on salaries, benevolences paid in full. A new district parsonage has been acquired, following the sale of old district parsonage property following a fire. The Rome district reported 350 accessions by faith, an $18,000 building program, salaries 97 per cent, benevolences 99 per cent, showing a $4,000 increase over last year.

Bishop Ainsworth called attention to the figures of last year and this. Last year $113,000 was paid on benevolences, this year, $115,800. Last year the accessions on profession of faith were 4,521, while this year they are 4,517.

Dr. W. A. Tyson, director of the supplementary salary fund, reported that $6,104 had this year been raised for the benefit of underpaid pastors, thus assuring these pastors of $12,208 more than they would have received otherwise. He said 61 pastors were helped through this agency.

A pleasing interlude in the conference program Saturday morning occurred when Mrs. W. N. Ainsworth was escorted to the platform. In a brief address she assured the conference of her appreciation and love for all evidences of thoughtfulness and loyalty on the part on the north Georgians.

Announcement was made that C. A. Britain has been named general manager of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, and that the subscription plans for next year will be a repetition of this year's plans. A goal of 20,000 subscribers is set for 1938. The subscription list has grown this year from 6,500 to 17,600 at present.

Bishop Smith to Preach.

Morning worship at Wesley Memorial church will start at 10:45 this morning. Bishop A. Frank Smith, of Houston, Texas, is to preach. Following the sermon Bishop Ainsworth will ordain as deacons the following: Richard Franklin Crawley, John Belk Godfrey, Wallace Zona Wiggins, Henry Bauldwin Varner, Harry Beatie Free and Ernest Paul Kendall.

Young ministers who will be ordained elders at the morning service are as follows: Charles Livingstone Allen, William Edward Chappelle, William Graham Davis, Edmund W. Dunagan, Charles Shuler Forester, Robert John Kerr, William Groner Irwin, Paul James McKnight, Ralph Chester Shea, James Bond Stephenson, Max Mayerhardt Whittemore, John Bunyan Ward, Charles Barrett Cochran and Leonard LaFayette Young.

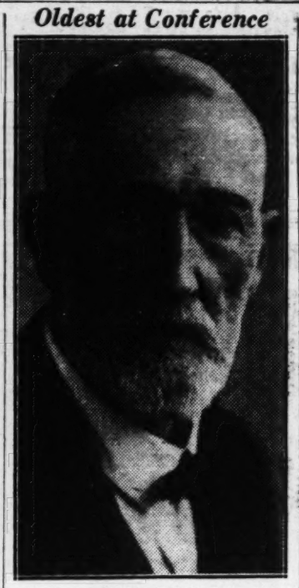

The conference will hold a special memorial session at 2 o'clock this afternoon, conducted by Rev. C. V. Weathers. Memoirs will be read in honor of the ministers dying this year. Dr. W. A. Shelton will read the memoir of Dr. C. O. Jones and also of Rev. H. L. Edmondson. The memoir of Rev. A. B. Sanders will be read by Dr. A. M. Pierce, while Rev. L. B. Craft will read that of Rev. Marvin Williams. Rev. E H. Wood's memoir will be read by Dr. E. F. Dempsey, while Rev. H. L. Byrd will read that of Rev. I. J. Lovern. Rev. W. M. Twiggs will read the tribute to Rev. M. M. Walraven, and Rev. John F. Yarbrough will read that of Rev. J. H. Mashburn.

Rev. G. F. Venable will read the memoir of Rev. B. F. Fraser.

Musical features of the memorial service will be furnished by Dr. and Mrs. Luther B. Bridgers and Mrs. Annie B. Cunyus.

Soon after the memorial service is concluded Bishop Ainsworth is to read the list of pastors' appointments for the coming year. Final adjournment will come with the benediction.

ATLANTANS' TAXES LESS THAN OTHERS, SAYS HARTSFIELD

Executive Returns From Convention of Mayor's Meeting in Washington.

"The Atlanta city government makes less demands for tax revenues than other cities of comparable size."

That was the statement made last night by Malor Hartsfield. He landed by plane in Atlanta yesterday from the annual convention of the National Mayors' Association held at Washington.

"Even with our 17 mills ad valorem tax rate, we are far below the general average of cities of comparable size," Hartsfield said. "I talked with 250 mayors of leading cities throughout the nation and I am convinced that Atlantans have a good government and an economical government.

"Birmingham is the only city in our bracket which has a lower tax rate and Jefferson county pays the entire expense of operation of the public hospitals.

"We heard experts from many fields and Atlanta is keeping pace with other progressive cities of the nation. At the same time, the government is having a regard for the folks who are paying the bill. We have lower tax rates, less per capita public indebtedness and we are in better financial condition than most of the other cities.

"I was proud to represent Atlanta at the convention. This city stands high in the confidence and respect of the other great cities of America."

FARM AIDE APPOINTED.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 20. (AP)—T. Roy Reid, sixth regional director of the Farm Security Administration, announced the appointment today of Thomas B. Fatheree, of State College, Miss., as regional chief of farm tenant purchase for the FSA in Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Georgia To Pay Tribute to 'Poppy Lady' of Nation

The nation's "poppy lady" will be honored in Georgia marble Saturday in unveiling ceremonies at the state capitol. The bust of Miss Moina Michael, of Athens, who originated the idea of selling poppies on Armistice Day and became the "poppy lady" of all the allied nations of the World War, is shown above receiving finishing touches from Sculptor Steffan Thomas as James A. Bankston and Mrs. A. L. Henson look on.

15-DEGREE COLD PREDICTED TODAY

ported at points farther northward.

"The worst is yet to come, however," the weatherman continued. "The low of 15 degrees predicted for Sunday morning is quite unusual for this time of year. During the day the wind will probably stop blowing and a warm sun should cause temperatures to rise slightly. However, another freeze is expected Monday morning, although the mercury will not go as low as Sunday morning. Skies will be fair."

Cold Near Record.

If the mercury reaches a low of 15 degrees, it will be the coldest temperatures ever known here lanta during the month of November with one exception. The lowest temperatures ever known here in November was 14 degrees, which occurred in 1914. Last year a low reading of 20 degrees was recorded on November 20 at the Candler field office, while the low extreme for the city office was 26 degrees.

As the biting northwest winds whipped through the city yesterday, Atlantans buttoned up their coats, held their hats, and fled to the nearest warm building. Many negligent automobile owners who defied the warnings of the weatherman woke up yesterday morning to find frozen radiators.

Low temperature readings at other points in Georgia were: Augusta 32, Macon 28, Thomasville 30, McRae 30 and Savannah 34.

Cold Is General.

The cold wave is quite general over the south. Following in the wake of widespread cold rain, the temperature took a nose dive from Texas eastward to the Atlantic seaboard.

Northwest Florida was caught in the clutches of the chilly weather with a minimum temperature of 28 degrees reported at Pensacola. The eastern and southern parts of the state, however, escaped the cold snap.

The Weather Bureau said light snowfalls had been reported in the Mississippi valley southward to St. Louis, eastward to New York and Pennsylvania and southward to Atlanta. Flat Top, W. Va., reported the heaviest fall in the south with 5 inches.

Mail Sacks Jam Indiana Village Of Santa Claus

SANTA CLAUS, Ind., Nov. 20.—(UP)—With the first general snowfall of 1937 a deluge of mail came to this sleepy little southern Indiana village today.

Trucks brought the bulging mail pouches from the nearest railroad station, 12 miles distant.

Postmaster Oscar L. Phillipps called his daughter, Beatrice, to help him with the most novel job in the postal service.

"The Christmas rush already is starting," Phillipps said. "I look for a record year. We'll handle at least 1,000 pieces of mail today. Of course, that figure will increase every day now for the next month."

Phillipps was pleased to learn that his renomination to the post he has held for two years was sent to the senate yesterday by President Roosevelt.

For the next five weeks the postoffice in the rear of Martin's general store will be jammed with Christmas parcels sent here for remailing with the Santa Claus postmark. The mail will run as high as 60,000 pieces a day. At the height of the rush the postoffice will employ about 15 of the 70-odd townspeople, working day and night.

STATUE TO HONOR 'POPPY LADY' OF U.S.

Bust of Miss Moina Michael To Be Placed in Rotunda of Capitol.

A marble bust of the nation's "poppy lady"—Miss Moina Michael, of Athens—will be unveiled and presented to the state next Saturday in the capitol by a state committee of the American Legion Auxiliary.

The bust, carved from Georgia white marble by Steffan Thomas, Atlanta sculptor, will be unveiled by Mrs. Horace Holden, widow of the late Justice Horace Holden, of the Georgia supreme court, in ceremonies at which DeLacey Allen, of Albany, past department commander of the American Legion, will be principal speaker.

Governor Rivers will receive the statue for the state. President Roosevelt will be asked to receive the bust in behalf of the entire nation either by radio or written statement to be read at the ceremony, according to tentative plans.

Capitol To Get Bust.

The bust of "Miss Moina," as she is known to the girls at Winnie Davis hall, on the Co-ordinate College campus of the University in Athens, will be the only statue in the capitol to a person whose activities were centered around the World War. It will be placed in the rotunda of the capitol.

Miss Michael is being honored for her post-war activities of rehabilitation more than for her actual war-time work, it was said. Immediately after the war she originated the idea of making the poppy the emblem of World War service.

The idea spread through the United States and Great Britain to every allied nation of the war. More than $120,000,000 has been raised from the annual sale of the replicas made by war veterans in the United States and England alone.

Decided Upon at Convention.

Dedication of the bust to "Miss Moina" and presentation of the statue to the state were decided upon at the state convention of the American Legion in Athens in the summer of 1936 upon plans laid before the convention by A. L. Henson, past department commander of the Legion.

A committee headed by Mrs. A. L. Henson, chairman of the Legion's Auxiliary, and James A. Bankston, chairman of the state organization, was appointed to direct plans for unveiling and presentation of the statue. The ceremony will take place at noon next Saturday.

SOVIET CANDIDATE DEFINES RED ARMY

Consists of Every Citizen in Union, He Says.

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—(AP)—P. E. Dybenko, commander of the Leningrad military district, said today every Soviet citizen would fight in the Red army in case of war.

Dybenko, whose rank corresponds to general, said: "Our enemies are trying to figure out what our army would be in case of war.

"Our army will be the 'very smallest'—170,000,000 people in the Soviet union who will fight in our army."

Dybenko's speech was made in an election district where he was the unopposed nominee for the supreme Soviet, to be elected December 12.

YOUNGHUSBAND IS ILL; HEARING POSTPONED

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Illness of J. Leslie Younghusband, Chicago cosmetics manufacturer, charged with assault and battery, today caused Magistrate Fisher to continue a scheduled preliminary hearing until next Saturday.

M. L. Blanchard, counsel for Younghusband, told the court his client was confined to his bed by pneumonia.

William H. Snyder, St. Petersburg newspaperman, charged in an affidavit that Younghusband struck him in an altercation which attended the Chicago man's fifth marriage last week.

LOCAL OPERATION OF HOUSING IS HIT

lish a housing authority here, asserting "the powers of the board would be too broad, the city would have practically no check on its expenditures and we don't want Atlanta to be made a guinea pig as the first city in Georgia to authorize such a board."

"Under an agreement with city administrations, the federal government agreed to pay five per cent of the gross receipts of the two projects into the city treasury in lieu of taxes which the projects took from municipal coffers," Gilliam said yesterday.

"The city continued to provide fire protection, water is supplied at better prices than the ordinary citizen can buy it from the city, police protection is given residents of the area, free school facilities are provided. That five per cent was a nominal reimbursement of the city for these services.

"Not Single Cent."

"To date the federal government has not paid a single cent into the city treasury although the money has been due since September. I think the federal government should live up to its agreement and make the payments. If it fails, I think the city should discontinue its services.

"I do not see how Atlanta can take over these housing projects. If the federal government with all its power and all its resources is not able or does not make a go of these properties and keep its commitments, I do not see how Atlanta could do it.

Doubts Rent Cut.

"Another thing I noticed about this matter was a statement that Mr. C. F. Palmer, who fostered the projects and who now proposes that local operation supplant federal management, alludes to the probability of a reduction in the rentals in the event the projects are placed under local supervision. I can not conceive how he can arrive logically or in the light of past experience at any such conclusion.

"At the present time, the city collects no taxes from the properties, and only about 20 families pay any ad valorem taxes to the city for their personal property which is housed in those areas. Those persons paying such taxes are for the most part heads of families who want to get on the police, fire or some other department of the city and there is a requirement that they be citizens and show tax receipts.

"Not Justified."

"We have wished to be co-operative as far as is possible and still wish to be reasonable, but I do not see how council could justify any action such as has been suggested."

White said he would join Gilliam in opposing any movement to "saddle these projects on Atlanta," and added "I'm in favor of cutting city services off at once if the federal government fails to comply with its contract with us."

Hartsfield last night said "there is no hurry about local operation of these projects."

"Mr. Straus addressed the mayor's convention and told us very frankly that it will be about 60 days before federal policies are definitely decided regarding the housing projects," he added.

"I wonder why they want to turn these projects over to Atlanta or to a local housing authority. They apparently have been liabilities since they were completed.

"Under the present state housing authority law, Atlanta would select a board and then would have no other authority over it. The board would be supreme in itself and no member could be removed except by the mayor with the approval of the governor and then that would have to be for cause—either malfeasance or misfeasance.

"Co-operate—But."

"I think we should co-operate with the federal government where we can, but I can not conceive of taking over these projects without assuming financial responsibility for them."

Mayor Hartsfield has intimated he would favor a housing authority if its powers were sufficiently circumscribed as to protect the city. It was said yesterday that an amendment to the general state law providing for establishment of housing authorities will be sought at the special legislative session which begins tomorrow.

Palmer Backs Move.

Palmer Friday night announced that leaders of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce are urging local participation.

He said local operation would iron out all differences between the local and federal governments regarding taxes. He pointed out that under the Wagner-Stegall act, the government can lend up to 90 per cent of the capital cost of the project and extend the loan over a period of 60 years. This, he contended, probably would enable local operators to reduce rentals.

Both projects cost approximately $5,900,000—Techwood costing about $3,150,000 and University (negro), $2,750,000.

Dr. Joachim Prinz, Jewish Leader, To Speak Here on Monday, Nov. 29

Former Berlin Preacher Was Forced To Leave Native Germany.

DR. JOACHIM PRINZ.

Dr. Joachim Prinz, foremost spokesman of German Jewry under the Hitler regime and outstanding scholar and orator, will speak on "The Downfall of German Jewry and Its Effect on the World," Monday night, November 29, at the Ahavath Achim congregation on Washington street.

The program, sponsored by Gate City Lodge No. 144 of B'nai B'rith, in co-operation with Hadassah, Council of Jewish Women, Zionist Organization and the A. A. Synagogue Brotherhood, is open to the public, and there will be no admission charge.

Dr. Prinz was compelled to leave Germany because of his outspoken comments on political subjects and his vigorous defense of Jewish rights under the Nazi regime. He recently came to America to settle permanently here.

Secular Education.

While working for his rabbinical degree Dr. Prinz obtained his secular education, majoring in philosophy, the history of art and Semitic languages. He obtained his Ph.D. degree at the age of 21.

Brilliance as an orator immediately won Dr. Prinz recognition. He was called to the pulpit of one of the largest synagogues in Berlin, and his rise to the leadership of German Jewry was meteoric. He was the first German rabbi to introduce into the pulpit the discussion of current topics.

Written Many Books.

Among books written by Dr. Prinz are "helden und Abenteurer der Bibel (Heroes and Adventures of the Bible); "Geschicten der Bibel;; (Stories of the Bible); "Israel and Juda." He also compounded a one-volume history of the Jews at the invitation of the publishing house of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm. This is accepted today as the standard work of its type. In answer to the Nazis he wrote "Wir Juens," (We Jews), a political volume dealing with the Jewish problem which won the respect even of some officials of the Nazi government.

Dr. Prinz left the pulpit in 1936 to devote himself to politics. The German secret police seized his passport, returning it to him on the condition that he expatriate himself forever.

SCALE OF SALARIES FOR COUNTY JOBS TO BE REVAMPED

County Commissions To Act in Accordance With Economy Suggestion.

A special meeting of the Fulton county commission will be called this week to determine the salary scale for county department heads for 1938, Commissioner George F. Longino, chairman of public works, said yesterday.

An attempt will be made to follow recommendations made by the past grand jury that $250,000 annually could be saved for the county with a readjustment of the county pay roll, Longino said.

Heads of county departments will be called before the commission to report on conditions in their departments, Longino said. The grand jury in its presentments said county employes were too highly paid and certain departments were overstaffed.

Clerks Paid High Wages.

The six elective heads in the courthouse receive $6,000 annually at present. Jury presentments charged certain clerks in departments are paid higher salaries than persons doing similar work and equally as competent in private business.

Under the law, salaries of heads of county departments must be fixed at least 30 days before the first of each year, while the pay roll for employes in each department must be fixed at least 10 days before the first of the year. The meeting this week has been held up pending swearing in of Troy G. Chastain, newly elected member of the commission, in order that 100 per cent action of the board might be taken on the matter.

Meanwhile, the public works department, nearing the end of the year, has been pushing projects to rapid completion, it was said.

Highway Deeds Signed.

Deeds have been signed on right-of-way for the new 28-mile Palmetto-Cascade highway and grading will begin in a few days, Longino said, beginning with a four-mile stretch from the Byrum highway to Old Campbellton highway. Paving will be done by the State Highway Department through contract with the county.

Work on relocation of three miles of the Roswell highway this side of the Chattahoochee river will also be launched soon, it was said. Surveys are being completed to eliminate bad curves and dangerous intersections and the county will do the work of paving and grading with funds furnished by the state under the new "convict maintenance" laws, Longino said.

Refrigerating plants have been placed in the seven convict camps, th ealmshouse, and the two industrial farms of the public works department in which meats will be stored. Heretofore, county meats have been stored in private refrigerating plants at great expense to the county. Individual plants at each camp will save money, Longino said.

Chauffeur License Issuance Is Delayed

Distribution of chauffeur licenses will not be started by the State Department of Public Safety for some time yet, Commissioner Phil Brewster reported yesterday as he revealed that drivers' licenses are running close to the 500,000 mark.

"We are not yet ready to distribute anything but drivers' licenses," the commissioner said. "When we have practically finished that job we will start on chauffeurs."

Brewster added that ample announcement would be made regarding the chauffeur licenses by his department.

DRY LEADER BLASTS LIQUOR PROPOSAL

W. G. Gaines Says Movement Afoot To Legalize Whisky in State.

Proposals to legalize liquor in certain counties were condemned yesterday by W. W. Gaines, chairman of the Consolidated Froces for Prohibition in Georgia.

Gaines said wet interests are planning to ask the legislature to make whisky lawful in a number of Georgia counties at the session beginning tomorrow.

Following is his statement in full:

The liquor traffic is probably the greatest enemy of the human race. The good and the great of all ages have united in saying this—Gladstone, Bismarck, Henry Grady, Sam Jones. Our beloved Robert E. Lee wrote that total abstinence is the only safe course.

Liquor is always and everywhere known to be a frightful evil. For the government to license it is for the government to indorse it, to approve it, to defend it. It is the government bargaining with vice and with its eyes open.

Cannot Be Controlled.

Liquor will not, can not be controlled. Local option, high license, low license, regulation, government stores, all have been tried and failed. The only way to get rid of the evil is to forbid it.

Conditions in our country today as regards liquor are worse than ever before, and growing still worse every day. The National Temperance and Prohibition Council, in a well-considered finding, says: "The repeal of prohibition did not solve a single problem except the problem of the brewers, the distillers and the liquor dealers. For the people, it multiplies their problems an hundred fold. Conditions are incomparably worse than in the old saloons. Widespread drinking among youth, both boys and girls; among adults, both men and women, fills our hearts with sorrow and our cheeks with shame, and arouses our deepest determination that these conditions shall not continue."

If prohibition worked badly during its brief day, repeal has worked thricebadly.

Conditions Unbearable.

Conditions have become so unbearable all over the country that the people are voting liquor out. In Kentucky, the greatest whisky producing state, 47 counties have recently gone dry. In Pennsylvania more than 100 communities have just voted liquor out. Look at Tennessee—a three-to-one vote in favor of prohibition. Recent victories have put new courage into the temperance forces, and given them a new realization of their strength. Representative John J. Cochran, wet congressman from Missouri, warns his liquor constituents that there are at least five million temperance champions enlisted in America at this very time.

Georgia, our own state, voted only last June by a considerable majority that she did not want liquor sold in any of the counties or cities of the state. Nearly three-fourths of the counties said that they wanted to be dry; and knowing that they could not be dry in this paved-road, fast-car age with a wet city an hour's ride away, they voted, in self-protection for Georgia to be a state-wide dry unit, so far as this matter of liquor is concerned.

State Voted Dry.

Notwithstanding the result of the June election, which was called by the legislature at the request of the liquor people themselves, it is announced that these same wet interests now plan to ask that same legislature, composed of the same members, in the coming extra session, to ignore that June election altogether, and to legalize liquor in certain counties.

Was there ever a more presumptuous proposition? It is to trifle with the mandate of the people, as well as with the legislature itself.

Many thousands of substantial, patriotic, unselfish citizens of the state, interested solely in the well-being and prosperity of our people, in religious meetings assembled in the past few months—in associations, conferences, conventions and synods—have expressed themselves as opposed to the legalization of liquor; and, at the same time as being in favor of honest, and thorough-going enforcement of our state prohibition law.

RIOTING SLAYERS TO DIE TOMORROW

Duvalier Brothers Convicted of Killing Salt Worker.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Duvalier brothers, sentenced to death for the slaying of a salt works employe during the great Inagua rioting last August, will go to the gallows Monday morning — barring an eleventh hour reprieve.

The execution date was set today, with no cognizance given to an 800-signature petition asking commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

George and Willis Duvalier were convicted November 3 on charges of murdering John Munroe, a native employed by the Erickson family of Swampscott, Mass., at the salt works. Two of the Ericksons fled in a small boat with the British commissioner and several others during the disturbances. Arrested on suspicion of being revolutionaries when they landed at Cuba, they were released after a diplomatic exchange.

Doomed men in the Bahamas, which average a hanging every 18 months, are given a soothing drug a few days before executions. The drug buoys them and they invariably go to the gallows bravely.

Lowry Urges Unit Tags For Fulton and DeKalb

Sheriff James I. Lowry, Fulton county, yesterday joined Councilman Howard Haire in urging that automobile tags for Fulton and DeKalb counties be issued in blocks—that is bearing certain key numbers—in order that they may be more easily identified.

Lowry praised the Haire suggestion saying the plan would be an aid to law enforcement agencies in identifying local citizens' cars, and thus permitting the officers to show every courtesy possible to visitors.

A new plan has been advanced for distribution of automobile tags allowing the sheriff's office in various counties to distribute them. If the program is pursued, Lowry said it would be comparatively easy to assign certain key number tags to Fulton and DeKalb counties.

MINISTER ACCUSES FOSTER-DAUGHTER IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Preacher Repudiates Confession in Slaying of His 'Devout Friend.'

PITTSFIELD, Ill., Nov. 20.—(AP) The Rev. C. E. Newton, fighting against a state demand for his life, declared today he was innocent of murder and implicated Myra Hanan, his thin, stoop-shouldered foster-daughter, in the slaying for which he is on trial.

The minister's dramatic accusation against his 37-year-old foster-daughter, who had been one of the state's star witnesses, repudiated a confession in which he was purported to have admitted the slaying of his "devout friend," Mrs. Dennis Kelly.

Wan and haggard after hours of testimony, Newton declared Myra and other persons whom he did not name seized and parted him from Mrs. Kelly, 45, whom he was helping flee from her husband and children.

As he was "lifted up, struggling," into a second automobile, he said he heard Mrs. Kelly scream, "Oh, don't!"

Newton told of being bound and driven away. Then, he said, the car stopped and he was released, back at his own automobile, where Myra was waiting.

"She said, 'Daddy, are you all right? We are all sorry enough to die, but it had to be done'."

"I asked where Mrs. Kelly was," he related. "The answer was evasive. I kept asking questions, getting little in response. It was only, 'She's all right, I think.'

"Ultimately I got the response, 'she's gone down the river.' Finally I was told, 'Maybelle (Mrs. Kelly) is dead'."

Daniel T. Johnson, a defense attorney, asked the 51-year-old minister point-blank:

"Did you kill or murder Mrs. Kelly?"

"No, I did not," he replied firmly.

AMERICA IS FRIEND OF DUKE, DUCHESS

New England and the south, frowned slightly on the marriage of the King to a divorcee, but general public opinion approved.

Future Home in America?

Rumors that the royal couple might make their home in the United States have been in the air ever since the Duke closed the door of British dominions on himself when he abdicated. Possible royal "lodges" and estates have been pointed out in California, in Maryland and on Long Island.

The following analysis of today's survey shows which sections of the country would likely make the Duke and Duchess most welcome:

Would you like to see the Duke and Duchess of Windsor live in this country?

| | Yes. | No. |
|---|---|---|
| New England States | 51% | 49% |
| Middle Atlantic States | 62 | 38 |
| East Central States | 65 | 35 |
| West Central States | 60 | 40 |
| Southern States | 59 | 41 |
| Rocky Mountain States | 68 | 32 |
| Pacific Coast States | 61 | 39 |

Edward Visited U. S. Twice.

If the Duke and Duchess follow out their present plan they will visit the United States later this winter, according to their friends. The couple's new itinerary may omit the tour of United States housing and public works projects which drew down a blast from the Baltimore Federation of Labor as a "slumming tour."

Principal labor opposition to the Duke's tour, however, was on account of the connection with it of Charles E. Bedaux, American friend of the Duke and Duchess, who was criticized by the Baltimore Federation of Labor as "the arch enemy of organized labor."

Bedeaux has withdrawn from the proposed tour, and AFL President William Green has offered the Duke and Duchess a blessing and a greeting in the name of American labor.

Probably there would be no organized opposition to a visit by the Windsors of any sort now. Americans remember that Edward visited this country twice before as Prince of Wales, first in 1919 and again in 1924. Probably no young man, other than Lindbergh, ever received such welcomes.

Lindbergh Exile Mentioned.

It is a coincidence that neither Lindbergh nor the Duke now makes his home in his own country. In today's Institute survey several voters commented on this fact. Some believed the Duke and Duchess should make their home in the United States "to make up for Lindbergh."

Others feared that "we would hound them the way we did the Lindberghs."

In Caribou, Maine, a farmer interviewed by the Institute offered to welcome the Duke "because he believes in democracy and proves it in his life."

"America is the place for him."

Other comments are:

New Hampshire clergyman: "Yes. Welcome to the land of divorces and suckers."

New York ironworker: "Yes. It would tone up the United States aristocracy a little."

Wisconsin teacher: "No. We have enough sensation now."

FARM BILL GROUPS ON NON-STOP BASIS

consider a resolution recognizing a state of war between Japan and China.

The progress of the agriculture committees was none too rapid.

Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, said the senate committee had been able to agree only as far as page six of the 124-page bill. He added, however, that committee differences "were not very serious."

"I have asked the committee to keep going all day and all night if necessary," he said, adding with a chuckle, "if I can go fox-hunting until 3 o'clock in the morning this committee can certainly put in as much time working for the people."

Norris Sees Delay.

Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, doubted the measure would be reported out by Monday although he expected some report to be made to the senate on the status of studies at that time.

"All members of the committee are working hard," he said, "but no two of them agree."

Chairman Jones, Democrat, Texas, made no forecast for the house committee which is no less distracted.

"It looks like there'll be cash for cotton and control for corn," complained Representative Coffee, Democrat, Nebraska.

Opposes Cotton Plan.

The Nebraskan led a sub-committee revolt against "purchasing the compliance" of cotton farmers with benefits and "forcing" corn farmers to co-operate with a program of marketing quotas and penalty taxes.

The house committee still has to vote on recommendations that corn producers be limited to marketing quotas based on a tilled acreage basis. The plan has the backing of the administration.

The house committee adjourned until Monday but Jones said cotton and wheat subcommittees, still wrestling with their respective sections of the bill, would continue their work over the week end.

In the neutrality situation, the resolution to recognize a state of war would force invocation of the neutrality act, which automatically would embargo shipments of war materials to belligerent nations and, within the discretion of the President, make possible an embargo on other supplies.

House Beats War Bill.

Possibility of such a move in the senate was anticipated in the house by Representative Sauthoff, Progressive,, Wisconsin, who asked Friday for immediate consideration of a resolution to declare a state of war in the Far East. A single objection to his motion, which required unanimous consent, blocked his request.

Chairman Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, of the senate foreign relations committee, said after a talk with Secretary Hull today that he could not see "that we would gain anything by invoking the neutrality act" against China and Japan.

"Neither country has declared any blockade," Pittman said. "Neither has established any prohibited military zones in the ocean. Neither is attempting to search any of our ships. Neither has made up a contraband list of articles which cannot be shipped to the other country. Neither is using submarines.

"There isn't any danger at present that the neutrality act is intended to protest us against."

INSURGENTS PLAN TO UNLEASH 'PUSH' IN VICTORY DRIVE

Italian Viceroy of Ethiopia Hinted Relieved To Command Spanish Forces.

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—As the Duke of Aosta prepared to relieve Marshal Rodolfo Graziani as viceroy of Ethiopia, word was received via transatlantic telephone today from informed circles in London that the Insurgents in Spain are planning to unleash their "big push" to overthrow the Loyalists next month.

The connection between the two is that the spearhead of the Insurgent offensive would be Italian divisions taken from the speedy "hell on wheels" column that Graziana commanded in his plunge from the south of Ethiopia to Addis Ababa.

While the reason given for the Duke of Aosta taking the power in Ethiopia is that Mussolini wanted a member of the house of Savoy, the Duke being a cousin of King Vittorio Emanuele, to be in command, there is the strong possibility that Graziani is coming out to lend his aid for the Insurgent "clean-up" in Spain.

Thus, if this takes place, history will be repeating itself for it was only after a long wait after the start of the African war that Graziani was called in as a "pinch hitter" and given permission to start rolling his offensive in southern Ethiopia.

When the Insurgents start their major offensive next month, according to London advices, they are going to push forward with all possible speed in an effort to end the war within two months for the long, drawn-out conflict is placing an inestimable drain on their supplies and soldiers.

GOVERNMENT PLANES POUND REBEL LINES

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Spanish government guns pounded Insurgent lines on the Aragon front today to check the forming Insurgent offensive in northeast Spain.

A fleet of government planes raided Zaragoza and Fuentes De Ebro, 15 miles southeast of Zaragoza, which government dispatches said was the new location of the Insurgent army's general headquarters.

CATHOLICS PLEDGED TO RE-ESTABLISH CHURCH

BARCELONA, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A spokesman for Amuel Irujo said today the Republican minister of justice had pledged his aid toward opening the first Catholic church in government Spain since the civil war began.

Irujo received a delegation of Basque refugees who asked him to help them obtain a church to be known as the Church of the Basques. His representative said the minister, a Catholic, agreed to be their spokesman and would ask cabinet approval for a church all Catholics could attend.

BRITISH FREIGHTER, CARRYING ARMS, HALTED

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(Sunday)—(AP)—Malta advices tonight reported that the British freighter Euphorbia had been stopped in Spanish waters by a British warship and ordered to Gibraltar under escort of the British destroyer Hasty.

An admiralty spokesman said the freighter was ordered to Gibraltar under the merchant shipping (carriage of munitions to Spain) act whereby British ships were prohibited from carrying munitions to Spain from any part of world.

JAPAN TO UPHOLD FRANCO'S REGIME

Tokyo Will Grant Full Recognition to Rebels.

SALAMANCA, Spain, Nov. 21. (Sunday)—(UP)—It was reported authoritatively today that the charge d'affaires of the Nationalist government in Tokyo has reached an agreement with the Japanese government whereby the latter will grant full recognition to Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime as the legitimate government of Spain.

Tokyo's action will be based on treaties between Spain and Japan, signed before the outbreak of the civil war in July, 1936, it was said.

The agreement was expected to be signed soon and given immediate sanction by Emperor Hirohito.

"5. Establishment of a receiving and classification unit at the new prison at Reidsville for all felons committed. P. I. R. A. Board Set Up.

The P. I. R. A. board was set up by authority vested in the President by the 1935 relief act. Secretary James P. Davis, of Tennille, Ga., said Georgia is the 12th state on which such a survey has been made.

Other members of the board are Chairman Louis N. Robinson, penologist of Swarthmore, Pa.; Joseph N. Ulman, Baltimore judge; Gustav Peck, of New York, and Linton M. Collins, of Miami, a former Georgian.

In transmitting its report on Georgia to President Roosevelt, the board said:

"In some respects we consider this report one of the most important we have undertaken. This is the first time our services have been requested by a state where most of the prisoners are housed in and work from road camps.

Subject to Criticism.

"As is well known, some aspects of that system have been the subject of much publicity and unfavorable criticism. The government already has an extensive interest in the situation through the erection by the Public Works Administration of a state prison at Reidsville. . . .

"We wish to express our gratification at the liberal and progressive attitude taken by Governor Rivers, by the Prison Commission, by the members of the special joint committee and the regular penal committees of the Georgia legislature in undertaking to modernize the penal system. tion to record the expressed intention

"It is a source of deep satisfaction of the present state administration to eliminate the chain gang entirely, to develop a number of state-owned industrial projects at Reidsville, to introduce a system of classification for prisoners, to reorganize and strengthen the probation and parole services of the state, and to provide better medical care and educational facilities for the penal population."

GEORGIA TURKEYS TO GRACE TABLES THANKSGIVING DAY

Old Southern Customs Are Added to New England Background.

Turkey talk this year has a Georgia accent.

For turkey and Thanksgiving are synonymous, and although the Puritans are credited with originating the day, it's the Georgia housewife who has added old southern customs and environment to the New England background, and the menu.

The use of Georgia products to prepare the tempting dishes for the Thanksgiving board, has struck a welcome cord in the cooking scale of the Georgia housewife, for the foods here may be prepared into a well-balanced, thoroughly complete and appetizing meal.

Substitute Dishes.

It also leaves the way open for an ambitious housewife to insert numerous substitute dishes into the menu, thus making it within the eating tastes of every member of the family.

The table is usually set to the tune of turkey, but sometimes chickens are the piece de resistance. However, many turkeys in Georgia are on their last legs this week for axes are being sharpened to put an end to all turkey-trots.

Favorite Menus.

One of the favorite menus which will grace the tables of Georgia families next Thursday will consist of tomato or canned Georgia fruit cocktail, roast turkey or chicken, with peanut or pecan stuffing, riced potatoes or rice with giblet gravy, string beans, creamed cabbage or Harvard beets, mayhaw or apple jelly, pepper relish or peach pickle, hot rolls or biscuits, butter, cinnamon apple salad, sweet potato pie with whipped cream or Georgia pecan pie, coffee, salted pecans or peanuts, mints.

Ice Floe Riders Drift 450 Miles In Half a Year

MOSCOW, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Four Soviet scientists, cruising down from the top of the world on an ice floe at the whim of arctic currents, today celebrated the passing of a half-year of their unique adventure.

Pyotr Shirsov, hydro-biologist, wirelessed Moscow that the party had solved "the riddle of the (ice) drift from the north pole to the Atlantic," which by moving "millions of kilometers of thick, strong ice" is "one of the grandest phenomena of nature."

The party landed by plane within a few miles of the north pole May 21. Since then, the ice field has been moving in a zig-zag course, but generally in the direction of northeast Greenland. Today the distance of drift measured 450 miles.

"If the speed of the drift is not reduced, we may expect to reach 80 degrees latitude (which embraces northern Greenland) by January 3," today's message said. At that point the drift would enter the so-called eastern Greenland current which flows south.

"An ice-breaker could easily approach the ice floe in May or June," the message said. The expedition's director, Dr. Otto Schmidt, has indicated the party might be taken off the floe in January.

The temperature at the camp today was 20 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

PLAYBOY PRINCE GIVEN 10 YEARS

Hawaiian Pleads Guilty to Drinking Party Death.

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Prince David Kalakaua Kawananakoa, grandson of the last king of Hawaii, today was sentenced to 10 years in Oahu prison for the killing of his beautiful common-law wife, Arville Kinslea, during a drinking party at their Waikiki apartment.

The prince pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter.

The body of Miss Kinslea was found by police, a jagged hole in her neck where the husky young playboy prince allegedly hit her with a glass bowl during a quarrel.

Prince David, known to islanders as "Prince Koke," was under a suspended sentence on a manslaughter conviction nearly five years ago as a result of an automobile accident in which a girl companion was killed.

RAND WOULD JAIL UNION AGITATORS

Acquitted Industrialist Also Recommends Abolition of Labor Board.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(UP)—James H. Rand Jr., president of Remington Rand, Inc., recommended to Attorney General Cummings today that the Byrnes act be revised to provide prison sentences for labor agitators and abolition of the National Labor Relations Board.

Rand was tried and acquitted on charges that he violated the Byrnes act, which makes it a felony to transport strikebreakers across a state line with the intention of interfering with peaceful picketing.

He sent a telegram to Cummings which read: "Apropos your announced intention to prepare a revision of the Byrnes act, may I suggest that you provide the following:

"1. Jail penalties for persons found guilty of crossing or inciting others to cross state lines for the purpose of interfering with, interrupting or intimidating workers exercising their constitutional right to work, to strike, or not to strike.

"2. Life sentences for persons found guilty of crossing or inciting others to cross state lines, roving from city to city and from plant to plant while carrying dynamite, firearms, rocks and cudgels for the purpose of evicting honest workers from their employment or intimidating them while going to or from their work.

"3. Abolish the labor board."

BRITISH SCHOONER WINS WHISKY RACE

Ship Takes 5 Days for Portland-N. Y. Trip.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Victor in an old-fashioned "down east" sailing race from Portland, Maine, to New York, the three-masted schooner T. K. Bentley swept under full-spread canvas to the goal at City Island at 5:50 p. m. (Atlanta time), today.

A case of beer and a case of whisky, established as stakes in the sea-going clash of skippers' pride, go to the winner.

The British-owned 446-ton craft, piloted by Captain John H. Taylor, came through heavy weather to defeat the 487-ton three-master Albert Pezrow, of Boston, Mass., after five days and nights of sailing.

The race was the outcome of a vigorous dispute between the two mariners, both from Parrsboro, Nova Scotia, who met at Portland last week and began arguing about the speed and sea-worthiness of their craft. Egged on by supporters, the rivals spread their canvas in short order and set out to sea.

LONDON-TO-AFRICA AIR MARKS BROKEN

Round Trip Made in Four Days, Six Hours.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(UP)—A. E. Clouston, British flying offiicer, and Mrs. Betty Kirby set their plane down at the Croydon airport at 9:25 a. m. (Atlanta time), today, setting new records for the round trip from London to Capetown, Africa, and for the northbound trip.

Their flying time for the round trip was four days, six hours and 30 minutes, compared to Amy Johnson's record of seven days, 22 hours and 42 minutes, bettering the time by three days, 16 hours and 12 minutes.

They came up from Cape Town in 57 hours and 25 minutes flying time, which was 38 hours and 55 minutes faster than the record held by H. L. Brooks.

On the trip south they broke the record of Charles Scott and Giles Guthrie from England to Johannesburg by more than 12 hours.

'STATE MEDICINE' PLANS OPPOSED

Trustees of American Medical Association Vote Against Change.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Trustees of the American Medical Association, replying to advocates of proposed changes in medical principles, reaffirmed today their adherence to the house of delegates' decision rejecting the plan at the last national meeting.

The declaration was in a formal statement discussing the "principles and proposals" signed by 430 physicians which the board said "the newspapers generally heralded as a revolt against the American Medical Association . . . in behalf of 'state medicine'."

The proposals were advanced in a public announcement November 7 by a committee of physicians who met in New York. The basic principle was that the health of the people "is the direct concern of government."

The board of trustees said the same proposals had been rejected by the house of delegates, the elected representatives of the association's 106,000 members, "after thorough consideration."

The governing body's mandate to the trustees, officer and employes of the association, the statement continued, "opposes the principles and proposals emanating from the committee of physicians."

CONFESSED SLAYER TURNS GUN ON SELF

Fires Three Bullets Into Body During Quiz Into Police Killing.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A suspect who, police said, admitted the Greenwich Village slaying of a New York police officer in 1931, today shot himself, perhaps fatally, as he was being questioned at police headquarters.

Detective Inspector Monaghan said Carl Sommerfield, 29, of Hazelwood, a trainyard brakeman and father of three girls, admitted killing Sergeant Timothy Murphy in a village restaurant holdup.

Then, said Monaghan, as he turned to call in New York detectives to hear the "confession," Sommerfield drew a pistol that had been strapped to his leg, and fired three bullets into his body.

Sommerfield was rushed to Mercy hospital, three wounds in his breast. Physicians said he has little chance to live.

Another suspect, Jack Brabson, 32, was taken into custody with Sommerfield, and was being questioned in an adjoining room. New York police officials announced two other men, Joseph Feola, 22, and Benjamin Hyman, 35, were arrested there today in connection with the same holdup slaying.

SHIVA EXPLORER WENT 'TOO EARLY'

Animal Life on Canyon Island No Different.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Disclosing that animal life on Shiva Temple, an "island" in the Grand Canyon, is not different from that of surrounding areas, Dr. Harold E. Anthony said today his expedition to the previously unexplored temple was made "some centuries too early."

"Perhaps as time goes on and erosion gnaws away at the connecting ridge," he said in a report to the American Museum of Natural History, "the present (animal) dwellers on Shiva may find it is not worthwhile to try to cross back and forth and then evolution may begin to work upon this relatively small population.

Prior to his visit to Shiva Temple it had been believed that centuries of isolation might have produced there mammals distinctly different from those of the adjacent areas.

MINNEAPOLIS TRUCKING HALTED FOR FUNERAL

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Thousands of union workers left their jobs today, halting trucking in Minneapolis for three hours to fill the Basilica of St. Mary in funeral service tribute to Patrick Corcoran, their slain leader.

Milk wagon and creamery drivers in white coveralls stood beside mourners in black. Governor Elmer Bensen came from northern Minnesota, where he had been conferring on a timber workers strike, to attend the service.

Corcoran was slain in ambush near his home Wednesday night.

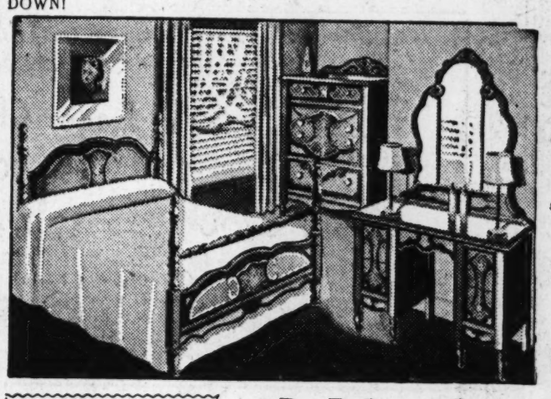

Counting the annual growth lines on a fish's scales is one way of telling its age; and sturgeon as old as 63 years have sometimes been found.

VOL. LXX., No. 162. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 21, 1937.

STATE ROAD BODY SPENDS $7,655,554 IN HALF OF 1937

Deficit of $4,575,800 Department's State Funds Shown in Audit.

Georgia's highway department spent $7,655,554 in the construction of roads and bridges during the first half of the year ended June 30, State Auditor Tom Wisdom reported yesterday in his semi-annual audit.

His examination of the highway department books showed an unallotted surplus of $9,386,350 in federal funds, and a deficit of $4,575,800 in the department's state fund.

The deficit in state highway funds represented obligations of the department on contracts let but not constructed, it was said. Such deficits are made up out of future revenue.

Deficit Increased.

"The highway department increased its state fund deficit this year in order not to lose any of the approximately $18,000,000 which had been made available to Georgia by the federal government for road purposes," W. L. Miller, chairman of the highway board, said. The state must match federal funds dollar for dollar on all projects. The federal surplus of $9,386,350 was to be matched by state highway funds.

Wisdom's report revealed that the state highway fund deficit was $3,113,214 as of December 1, 1936, and that it was $624,075 on July 1, 1936. This fund showed a surplus of $896,062 on December 1, 1935.

The June 30 balance sheet showed that the department had assets of $170,748,237, including W. & A. railroad rental warrants totaling $1,620,000.

$2,065,222 in Cash.

The department had $2,065,222 cash on hand on June 30, and $2,708,820 was due from the state treasury. Total income for the period was listed at $12,410,751.

Listed in the assets was the item, "State of Georgia, military department, $144,314.98," which Wisdom pointed out was based on the transfer of this amount to pay the expenses of the military department during 1935 and 1936 under the executive order of the Governor (Talmadge).

Construction in progress June 30 left the state with a net liability of $6,619,147, which did not include federal participation in the projects. Total liabilities were $9,831,211.

Administrative cost of the highway department was $196,739 for the first six months, while maintenance cost amounted to $928,499. Construction cost was $6,530,314, making a total expenditure of $7,655,554, the auditor stated.

Whitley Paid Most.

Contracts let to the Whitley Construction Company, of LaGrange, during the Talmadge administration, resulted in the department paying the company $814,178 before June 30. This was the largest amount to any single contractor. The Cobb Construction Company was paid $352,435; the Hardaway Construction Company, $196,706, and W. F. Scott, $189,245, the report revealed.

To the State Revenue Commission went $18,014.50 for postage, and to the State Prison Commission $14,209.92 was paid for manufacture of tags. Refunding highway certificates maturing March 25 amounted to $2,657,750.

Wisdom, pointing out the highway department is the largest spending agency of the state, declared its accounting system adequate and informed Governor Rivers, to whom the report was made, that the highway board, the secretary-treasurer and the entire staff co-operated with the auditors in their examination of highway department records.

LONG TERMS GIVEN TWO FOR ROBBERY

Youths Accused of Threatening To Slit Man's Throat.

Chain gang sentences of from 22 to 24 years were imposed on two negro youths yesterday in Fulton superior court following conviction on charges of robbery and assault with intent to rob.

The negroes, Felix Turner and Cleveland Daniel, were charged with robbing E. W. Roach, a flower vendor, October 23 near the state farmers' market. The indictment set out that the two took $5 from the elderly man, threatening to cut his throat if he gave any opposition.

The indictment for assault charged the two with an attempted robbery October 25 upon Steve Sheppard, insurance collector, at the corner of Houston and Butler streets. The robbery was foiled when Sheppard raised his hands at the command of the armed negroes but in doing so struck one of the assailants over the head with a heavy ledger book he carried.

Jury business in Fulton superior courts will be conducted in only one division this week. Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy will preside the first three days of this week, and all juries will be excused Wednesday for Thanksgiving Day and the remainder of the week. For the first time in at least five years no white person was in Fulton tower this week waiting trial on murder charges, Lewis P. Jones, calendar clerk, said.

COLLEGE HOLIDAYS.

GOVERNOR OUTLINES AIMS, PURPOSES OF SPECIAL SESSION

CITIZENS URGED TO AID IN BUILDING GREATER GEORGIA

Selfish Interests and Partisan Politics Are Flayed by Executive.

Governor Rivers' address over Station WSB last night outlining the benefits of his administration and the aims and purposes of the special session of the general assembly beginning tomorrow follows in full:

Friends:

I wish it were posible for me to be sitting with each of you in your home or place of business—wherever you are—and talking with you personally. Since this is impossible, I am grateful to radio station WSB for making it possible for me to talk with you collectively over the radio. I want you to treat this message as a personal and individual heart-to-heart talk with each of the three and a quarter million people of Georgia.

Ten months ago I was inaugurated Governor. From that moment until this time my every thought and heart-throb has been in the interest of Georgia and Georgians. I have worked hard to make you a good Governor. I am trying to do only those things that before God and man are right for the people of this state.

Co-operation Asked.

Georgia, greatest in human and natural resources, deserves to lead the nation in happiness and prosperity of its people. No Georgian should be satisfied with less and every Georgian should help put us in that position. Any misguided Georgian who, for any reason, does not desire to join wholeheartedly in such an undertaking should at least permit those of us engaged in this task to do his part, and ours, without hindrance. I am making an appeal to every citizen in this state to join hands on this mutual basis. Let's lay aside selfish interests and partisan politics, and do the job that ought to be done, can be done, and must be done.

In the building of a greater Georgia there are many problems and their solution lies not in ignoring their existence but in frankly facing the facts and applying the remedy. I am tackling these problems at every point with a specific program that will solve them. This program has been approved by the people and, in fairness, should be given a chance to be put into effect.

It was contemplated by the fathers who founded this state, and those who have since guided its destinies, that we would make progress as a people and that there would be constant changes in our economic and social life necessitating governmental changes. They anticipated meeting these changes by providing for amendments to our constitution and for regular and special meetings of the people's representatives in a general assembly to make these changes as needed.

Reason for Session.

I am calling one of these special sessions of the general assembly of the people's representatives, as provided by our fathers, to meet on Monday morning next. I want to tell you why I'm calling this session and what it is proposed to do at this session.

The existence of government is made possible through taxation. Without taxation no government of the people, or governmental services for the people, is possible. Taxation is the means whereby the people's money is used through the machinery of their government, administered by officials they elect, to do certain specific things for the benefit of the people. The extent to which the people wish these benefits to flow determines the extent to which taxation must go. So long as taxation comes equitably from the people on the basis of their ability to pay the taxes, and is spent for services to increase their happiness and economic prosperity, taxation is a blessing instead of a burden.

Without taxation and the governmental services it makes possible our whole social and economic structure would be in chaos. It has its counterpart in nature. Oceans of water lie all about the earth. Through the hydraulic process of evaporation this water is lifted from the surface of the seas and carried to the utmost clouds and then descends upon the earth as rain and mist and snow; and through branches, creeks and rivers makes its way again into the ocean without the loss of a single drop. In making the round from the surface of the ocean to the skies and back again upon the earth and into the ocean, the water keeps alive men, beast, fowl and vegetation. If the water remained in the ocean the ocean itself would become stagnant, and every living thing on the earth would perish.

As in nature, so in government. Through the process of taxation the government lifts money from the ocean of business and trade and property; brings the money up into the treasury of the government; then sends the money back down through teachers' salaries, health work, old age pensions, aid for the blind and for dependent and crippled children and other services; and the recipients in turn spend the money back into the channels of trade.

Not a Dollar Lost.

Not a dollar of the money is lost. By making the round through taxation the money is used to educate children, to help sick people, to provide food for the aged and render governmental service to our people. If the money remained in business and there was no process of taxation, business itself would become stagnant, society would perish and the people could not survive. The process of taxation—like the process of evaporation—is a blessing to our people.

As in nature, it is necessary to take from the location of an abundant supply of water to maintain life where there is none, so in taxation it is necessary to get money from where money flows and give governmental blessings to those who otherwise could not have those benefits.

How to carry on taxation and give these governmental benefits changes as our economic conditions change and our needs are altered.

In Georgia at the time our present system of taxation was written it was eqitable and adequate. Our values in those days were chiefly in lands and chattels. With principally one class of property we needed principally one class of taxation—ad valorem Our people were few; their means of transportation and communication limited; competition was slight; and governmental services limited.

Today our economics have changed to where values are no longer confined largely to lands and chattels but exist in forms of stocks, bonds, notes, accounts, mortgages, franchises, transactions and a various complex list of items in addition to lands and chattels. With the increase in people, in transportation, in communication, in complex relationships, the governmental services needed by our people have naturally increased. At the time our present ad valorem system of taxation was written there were no automobiles, no radios, no telephones, no electric lights, no paved roads, no airplanes, and many of the other developments of science and economics did not exist. Likewise, there was little necessity for a public health program. The machine had not displaced manual labor and there was no need for a social security program. There was no need for a paved road program. There was no need for an educational program beyond a limited scope. The system of taxation was equitable because there was chiefly but one class of property and was adequate because the needs for governmental services were very limited.

Need Have Expanded.

As our needs for governmental services have expanded, we have undertaken to supply them through the old system of taxation. This has resulted in a too-heavy burden upon the original class of property subject to tax, and at the same time, it has been inadequate to supply the increased governmental needs.

Therefore, for years those who have visioned a Georgia in keeping with its former greatness and true possibilities have realized that one of the fundamental problems to be solved is changing our system of taxation, so as to reach classes of property other than lands and chattels. These other classes of property have come into existence since our present system was written and they must be bear their share, thus equitably distributing taxation and, at the same time, more adequately meeting the needs for governmental services.

In undertaking to bring about a revison of our tax system there are three preliminary things necessary.

First: There must be a guarantee to the people that a part of their present tax burden will be eliminated so that the tax revision will not result simply in added tax burdens, but will furnish relief where the burden is now too heavy, as well as reaching sources paying no tax or too little a share at present.

Second: It must be definitely determined what governmental services will be rendered with the tax money procured by revision.

Third: There must be a special session of the general assembly devoted largely to tax revision. The wide field of legislation obtaining in a regular session prevents successful concentration on any subject of such a complex nature.

Bearing these three preliminary essentials in mind, those of us who have long realized that a revision of our tax system is essential to the progress and prosperity of Georgia set about meeting these preliminary steps. In the first place we sought to provide definitely the relief from present burdens.

Submitted to People.

In the 1935 session of the assembly we sponsored a proposal to exempt from state, county and school ad valorem taxes the homes of our people up to $5,000 in value and household and kitchen furniture up to $500 in value. This proposal passed the house of representatives, of which I was speaker. When it reached the senate, the administration then in power opposed this and substituted in lieu thereof a proposal to give relief by limiting to 15 mills the levies on all real estate and chattels.

When this over-all limitation proposal came back to the house as a substitute for the home and household and kitchen furniture exemption we proposed, it became apparent that a deadlock would ensue and no opportunity at all for tax relief and tax revision would be afforded unless we agreed to submit to the people the over-all proposal as the foundation. In view of this situation we agreed to submit to the people the over-all tax limitation, and did so at the ensuing general election.

The people voted down this proposed 15-mill limitation and by their vote evidenced their wish not to have this form of tax relief in writing a new tax program. Meanwhile, I was elected Governor and when my administration came into power we again proposed the home and household and kitchen furniture exemptions as the basis of taking off some of the present ad valorem tax burden when writing a tax revision program.

We started the proposal at $5,000 on homes and $500 on household and kitchen furniture. The county commissioners of the state vigorously opposed this proposal and, in an effort to have harmony, we agreed to make the exemptions $2,000 on homes and $300 on household and kitchen furniture, with the further concession that in the event the $2,000 home exemption proved too much that the general assembly could later lower the amount of the homestead exemption as low as $1,250. We submitted this proposal to the people, and they voted by approximately 2 to 1 in popular vote and about 15 to 1 in county unit vote for these two exemptions.

Wish Expressed.

The people thus expressed their wish that the basis for relief from the present tax system should be the exemptions of owner-occupied homes and of household and kitchen furniture. Thus we laid the foundation by placing in the constitution of the state, by the vote of the people, the points as which we proposed to take off some tax when writing the new tax system. Thus the first step was taken.

The second step of showing the people the things for which we proposed to spend the tax money was taken in no less emphatic manner.

In my campaign for Governor I made it perfectly clear to the people that, if elected, we would have free schoolbooks, a minimum seven-month school term, with reasonable teachers' salaries, a reasonable public health program and a social security program, carrying old age pensions, aid for the blind, the dependent children and crippled children.

No person who voted for me could have had the slightest doubt that these were the things for which I proposed to spend tax money. After the election, when the general assembly convened, we went about the task of providing for this program of education, health and social security.

All of it could not be accomplished by the passing of laws, but involved amendments to the constitution, so the assembly proposed these amendments. Not wanting to wait two years to give the people these benefits, we found a way to hold a special general election on June 8, and let them vote at that time so the program could be immediately installed.

As in the case of the home and household and kitchen furniture exemptions the people, by a popular vote of from 2 1-2 to 3 1-2 to one, and by a county unit vote of approximately 15 to one, approved this manner of spending tax money. Thus we definitely determined the second step towards tax revision: that is, for what purpose the money should be spent.

Not only did we determine this, but we have given the people a beginning of the administration of these measures, so that they now have a test in actual practice of the expenditures of funds for these purposes. The results have already been far-reaching and the reaction of the people tremendously favorable.

49th in Education.

For instance, the day I was inaugurated Governor, counting the District of Columbia, Georgia stood forty-ninth in the nation in education and in health. It is axiomatic in economics and government that the education and health levels of a state determine the earning power of the people of the state. You may take any two states in the nation and compare the average income of their people and their income will be in direct ratio to their health and educational levels.

So, as Georgia stood forty-ninth in education and health, likewise the average income in Georgia was only one-half the average income of the nation and was 20 per cent less than the average income of the southern states. We met this situation largely by two educational measures and a health measure.

First we provided for the furnishing of free school books to the children of the state. We realized that a school book is just as essential to an education as is a teacher, a schoolhouse or a desk; that Georgia, spending millions of dollars for schoolhouses, teachers and equipment, was losing the value of those investments by failing to supply the added essential of school books. This was keeping thousands of children out of school.

$4,000,000 in Books.

The people of Georgia last year, through private purchases of school books by individual parents at retail prices, spent slightly more than $4,000,000 for these schools books. After spending this more than $4,000,000, thousands of children had no books at all and could not go to school for that reason. Thousands were in school so inadequately supplied with books they could not pass their grades and those who did have a sufficient supply of books to pass their grades were inadequately supplied in comparison with other states.

Through the free school book bill the state was enabled to buy books in bulk at wholesale and bargain prices and effect a tremendous saving to the people. At the same time we were able to pay the people some of their money back for books they had already purchased.

In the administration of this free school book program we spent not $4,000,000, but approximtaely two and a half million dollars. Thus saving the people of the state approximately one and a half million dollars this year in buying these schools books over what they paid for books last year through private purchases.

Not only did we effect this saving but we purchased books for all the children of the state, so that every child in Georgia now has more books and better books than any child in Georgia had last year. No book was purchased except on recommendation as to quality and content by a professional committee of outstanding teachers of the state.

Through the purchase and distribution of these free school books we have brought into school this year approximately 200,000 children, according to what Doctor Collins, state superintendent of schools, tells me. These children last year were out of school entirely because their parents were too poor to buy them the books. Thus we have shown the people in practical administration of the free school book program that we not only saved money to the people of the state, but we furnished books to all the children. If this administration had done nothing more than save this one and a half million dollars in the annual school book bill of the people and, at the same time, put 200,000 poor children in school, the program would have been worthwhile.

$1,500,000 Saved.

Not only did we effect this saving of a million and a half dollars for this year, but it will reflect an even greater saving for succeeding years. It is the experience of states, which have tried the free school book plan over a number of years, that it costs but one dollar per pupil per year to replace books as they wear out. Georgia has approximately a million school children since these 200,000 have been put in school. This means that replacement of worn-out books each year will cost the people approximately $1,000,000 per year.

Heretofore the annual cost through private purchases was approximately $4,000,000 per year. Therefore, in addition to saving one and a half million dollars this year and putting 200,000 children in school, the free school book program of this administration will save the people of Georgia approximately $3,000,000 every year from now on.

The second bill with which we met the educational problem, provides a minimum school term of seven months for each child in the state, paid for out of state treasury funds. It prescribes a minimum salary schedule for teachers based on their experience and qualifications.

Both provisions were necessary to solve our school problem, for the reason that last year many white schools in Georgia had terms as short as three, four, five or six months; too short for a child to pass its grade and be accepted in accredited schools. Likewise white degree school teachers in Georgia last year taught for as low as $33 per month, an amount less than we pay our colored janitors around the courthouses, depots and the capitol of the state. The minimum seven-months-term bill forever does away with the three, four, five and six months' term and forever places our teachers in a salary bracket above that of common colored labor.

Heretofore the state had furnished—exclusive of the equalization fund—only enough money to operate our schools approximately three months. This made it necessary for the local governments to levy local school taxes to run their schools whatever length of term they operated beyond three months. The state now furnishes a seven months' term, which means that the local school taxes will have to be levied to supply only whatever length term the school operates beyond seven months.

In passing the minimum seven-months school term bill, we thereby shifted the burden of four months' support of the school from the local subdivisions on to the state. Therefore, it does not mean an additional burden upon the people of the state but a shifting of burden from local ad valorem taxes for school purposes to support from the state treasury from state-wide levies.

Whatever additional state taxes are levied to furnish moneys for these extra four months enable a reduction in the local tax burden, which is an additional taking off of taxes over and above those taken off through home and household and kitchen furniture exemptions.

Statistics Delayed.

While the school program will have to operate a year in comparison with programs of other states before definite statistics can be obtained through which to establish the relative status of the various states, yet it is possible in a general way to determine the educational status of the states unofficially at any time. Doctor Collins tells me that in his judgment through the operation of the free school book plan, putting 200,000 children in school this year who were unable before to attend because their parents were too poor to buy books, and through the operation of the minimum seven-month school term bill and the teachers' salary schedule, Georgia already has moved out from forty-ninth place and ranks now well up in the twenties. No longer do Georgians have to hang their heads in shame at their educational status.

As with education, so with health. We had been providing only $100,000 per year for public health. This was 3 cents per capita, the price of a postage stamp per person. With this niggardly support we had idly observed malaria creeping from the swamplands of south Georgia until it had become a menace to the people in middle and north Georgia as well.

We had seen typhus, tuberculosis, hookworm, venereal and other diseases increase at an alarming pace. We had witnessed 26 per cent of our children failing to pass their grades last year because of diseases in the form of adenoids, bad tonsils, malaria, hookworm, tuberculosis and bad eyesight and other ailments. These failures meant that 26 per cent of the school funds were virtually lost through the neglect of the health program. We spent last year—state and local funds—for education approximately $16,000,000. We, therefore, lost the effect of 26 per cent of this amount, or more than $4,000,000, because the children failed to pass their grades due to disease. Losing $4,000,000 of educational funds for this reason we were indeed short-sighted in providing only $100,000 for health.

The general assembly increased our health program from $100,000 to $600,000. This enables us to match approximately $400,000 of federal health funds and give Georgia this year a health program of approximately $1,000,000.

Advance in Health.

So we have moved out from the foot of the ladder in health work and now rank well up with the other states. No longer does Georgia have to blush with shame for the neglect of the health of her people.

Having advanced our educational and, health programs, we know that in less than 10 years' time the earning capacity of our people will likewise advance; and I confidently contend that in the next few years the average income of our people in the lower and middle brackets will be doubled as a result of this work in education and health.

The people have witnessed the beginning of our social security program, for which they voted to spend tax money. While the social security program is the most difficult of all to harmonize and effectively administer, we are making satisfactory progress with it. The reason it is so difficult to administer is that there are so many and varied interests concerned in the program.

There is the federal government that puts up one half of the money, with its requirements to be met; the state government that puts up 40 per cent of the money, with its requirements to be met; the county governments, which put up 10 per cent of the money; the county commissioners who select the county welfare boards, which are confirmed by the state department, itself bound by rules and regulations of the federal government; the local welfare director, named by the county welfare boards and likewise confirmed; and the various applicants for the various classes of benefits; all to harmonize and reconcile in the administration of the social security program.

Tremendous Task.

When you undertake to harmonize the federal government, the state government, the county governments, the local welfare boards, the local welfare directors and all the applicants for benefits it is a tremendous task. It is a task that takes time and patience. Nevertheless, and in spite of the fact our social security program has been in operation only since July 1st this year, we are paying more people benefits in November than any southern state, except Louisiana and Texas. In December we will pay more people benefits than any southern state save Texas alone. Of course, Texas with its tremendous population and area will always lead in the number of benefits paid.

It must be borne in mind that most of these other states have been operating their social security programs from 18 months to two years. Therefore, within the space of six months, Georgia will have passed every southern state, except Texas, despite the fact we will have been operating only six months, as compared to the others operating from 18 months to two years.

The expense of administration in Georgia is segregated from benefit funds by the general assembly, so that we cannot spend benefit money for administrative costs. This has provided a safeguard through which Georgia has made an enviable record in low cost of administering the program in comparison with other sister states.

Poor Houses Out.

Through this social security program we have al eady abolished two-thirds of the poor houses in Georgia and by January 1 will have abolished all but some 10 or 15. By next July 1—the end of the first 12 months of the operation of the social security program—we confidently expect to hav abolished every poor house in Georgia save in the five large cities, where the poor people in the classes not covered by the social security bill are so numerous that these counties will possibly have to maintain their poor houses until such time as the program is expanded to take care of these other classes.

Of course, there are still thousands of old people in Georgia who should have pensions and we are getting to them as fast as the local boards can put them on the rolls; and there are likewise thousands of blind people, crippled and dependent children who must be embraced in the program. But we are getting to them as fast as we can; and already approximately 25,000 beneficiaries have been covered. Thus the people of Georgia are seeing the actual operation of the social security program, for which they have voted to spend their tax money.

We have thus met the second step essential to tax revision by not only showing the people for what we are spending tax money but actually demonstrating to them the effects of spending it for these purposes.

In addition to these foundations that have been laid for tax revision, our people have authorized the classification of property for taxation, which will enable us to classify intangibles and lasso tax dodgers and bring them upon the tax digest.

We have not undertaken an unreasonable program for education, health and social security, despite the definite authorization for the people to spend tax money for these purposes. For instance, children should have a nine-month term of school, paid for by the state government—everybody recognizes this fact—yet this administration made the modest start toward this goal by providing simply a seven-month minimum term, paid for by the state.

Certainly it is not extravagance to provide a seven-month term when everybody recognizes a nine-month term as standard.

Health Program Asked.

The Atlanta Constitution and various other of our leading daily and weekly papers have asked editorially for $1,500,000 state health program. I think such a program economically sound. Yet this administration is making the modest start toward that goal with $600,000—practically one-third of that which everyone who has studied the program realizes ought to be spent for that purpose. We certainly cannot be justly accused of extravagance in helping our sick people when we are spending only a little more than one-third of the amount our people realize should be spent for public health.

As with education and public health, so with the social security program. The maximum payments for social security that could be made and matched by federal funds would total $30 per month per old person. We are spending on an average slightly less than $10 per month per old person, which is less than one-third of the maximum.

I told the people in my campaign for Governor that while federal matching would permit us to give our old people $30 per month, "any pension was better than no pension at all." I told them it would be better to put up a nickel a month to get a nickel from the federal government and have a ten-cent pension than none at all.

So, while we haven't gone to the maximum, we are giving our old people the start on a pension program—which certainly beats no pension at all and is relieving a tremendous amount of suffering and distress among our old people. Certainly when we have made this modest start with old age pensions we cannot be justly censured for extravagance in social security.

Thus we have not abused the mandate of the people for education, health and social security expenditures, but have conservatively approached the increased expenditures in keeping with a gradual approach to the standards everyone realized should be attained.

$10,000,000 Budget Increase.

Much has been said about the increase of the state budget by $10,000,000. Practically every dollar of this increase goes to the educational, health and social security program I have discussed.

For instance, last year, exclusive of the equalization fund, the schools received approximately $3,600,000; this year, exclusive of the equalization fund, we propose to give the schools $9,256,000, which is nearly $6,000,000 more than the schools received last year. And, while this increases the state budget nearly $6,000,000 for schools, it likewise enables reducing the county budgets for schools and is in effect the shifting of the burden from the counties to the state to this extent. This accounts for nearly $6,000,000 of the $10,000,000 the budget has been increased.

We increased the health appropriation one-half million dollars and appropriated three and a quarter million dollars for social security. Thus six million dollars for education, plus a half-million for health and three and a quarter million for social security accounts for approximately nine and three-quarters of the $10,000,000 increase. The other is accounted for through increases to Alto and our eleemosynary institutions principally.

Who would want to go back to the foot of the ladder in health and education, do away with our old age pensions, aid for the blind, aid for the dependent and crippled children; go back to the bottom of the list in health work; or take a dime away from Alto and the eleemosynary institutions? These, remember, are the items which account for the $10,000,000.

Even with this increase, we are spending practically exactly the same amount for governmental services that South Carolina, the smallest southern state with a million or more less population than Georgia, is spending for such a program in her state. Alabama, with less area and less population than Georgia, has a state budget of morc than $20,000,000 in excess of our increased state budget. North Carolina, less in area with slightly more people and with only a fraction of a percent greater wealth and income, provides double the amount of funds for such a program as we are spending in Georgia for these services. The state of Florida, less in area and population, has a larger state budget for these services to her people than we have in Georgia even with the new program; and so with Tennessee. Thus in comparison with every southern state adjoining Georgia we are providing a smaller governmental budget and spending proportionately far less money in carrying on this great work. How can it be said we are spending too much in the face of these incontrovertible facts and figures?

Program Needed.

So, having met the first two essentials of tax revision by providing what we are going to take off in the way of taxes through homestead and household and kitchen furniture exemptions and determining what we are going to spend our money for in the way of education, health and social security, we are meeting the third prerequisite; that is calling a special session of the general assembly devoted largely to tax revision so that the minds of the members of the general assembly may be concentrated on a tax revision program, which cannot be effectively accomplished at a regular session.

With reference to the state budget, let it also be remembered that much of the money we are raising in the state budget of $44,000,000 goes directly back to the local county and school governments. For instance, $3,000,000 goes directly to the counties to retire their county road bonds; $3,000,000 goes directly to the counties for their secondary roads; $3,000,000 goes directly to the counties as a school equalization fund. Practically the entire $9,256,000 school fund goes directly to the counties to pay school teachers.

Thus $18,000,000 of the $44,000,000 in the state budget goes directly back to the local county and school governments. In addition to this $18,000,000 practically all of the health money likewise goes back to the counties; and the counties are furnished an additional $3,000,000 in road contracts, out of which to maintain their county convict camps. Thus nearly one-half of the state budget of $44,000,000 goes directly back to the local county and school governments.

The remainder of the budget is spent largely by the State Highway Department in building roads; by the Welfare Department in paying old age pensions, aid to the blind, dependent and crippled children; by the Welfare Department in maintenance and operation of the eleemosynary institutions; by the Prison Commission in maintaining the penal system; and in general governmental activities, such as courts, agricultural experiments and other necessary governmental services, including the support and maintenance of the university system and its branches.

If the state were not making these state-wide levies and supplying this money back to the local county and school governments, it would mean that the local taxpayers would have to pay additional taxes on the lands and chattels in the counties. We all know that th local levies constitute the chief tax burden, and that this administration is trying to supply, by state-wide taxes, relief for the local taxpayers where the burden is heaviest and, in many instances, amounts to practical confiscation.

Technical Problem.

In revising the tax system, we have a technical problem that must be met by people skilled in tax work. Taxation should not be a matter of politics, but should be a matter of business. Every citizen should pay what tax he ought to pay and no more. No citizen should escape his just share of taxation. To determine and to collect just taxes is a business matter. When politics enter this field preferences, privileges and discriminations attend. When business and technical skill levy and collect the taxes justice and equity prevail.

To that end we have undertaken to have people trained in tax work, who have no partisan, political or selfish interest to serve, to advise with our legislative committee and business leaders in recommending tax revision. We have had to help us, for instance, the Hon. John W. Martin, a native Georgian, who in recent years has assisted Governor Chandler, of Kentucky, in revising the tax system of that state and now is tax commissioner of Kentucky. We have had Dr. Malcolm Bryan, of the University of Georgia, who has been loaned to the federal government for the past three years

Plot for Rightist Revolt in Mexico With Foreign Firms' Aid Charged

Communist Leader Declares Arms Are Being Stored in Guatemala and Shipped Into Country in Great Quantities; Government Marks 27th Year.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Hernan Laborde, secretary of the Mexican Communist party, today accused Rightists of plotting a revolt against President Lazardo Cardenas with financial aid from foreign companies.

The charge was made in an address to 30,000 workers gathered before the president's palace to commemorate the 27th anniversary of Mexico's "revolution-made government" which replaced the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz.

The Communist leader said proof of the plot was "storage of arms and munitions in Guatemala and introduction of great quantities into Mexico."

"Mexican labor points with a finger of fire to the reactionary groups in the country financed by foreign companies which oppose the masses of the people," Laborde declared.

Vicente Lombardo Toledano, secretary general of the Confederation of Workers of Mexico, warned Latin America against the inroads of Fascism and declared that Mexico was the principal safeguard against it.

President Cardenas was present at the meeting, but did not speak.

Earlier in the day, senators and deputies of the national congress commemorated the anniversary in a joint session. All banks and business houses were closed for the holiday.

FUEHRER ASSERTS 3-WAY 'TRIANGLE' MUST BE ACCEPTED

Viscount Halifax, Hitler Discuss Alliance Among Germany, Japan, Italy.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A usually well-informed source disclosed today Reichsfuehrer Hitler had told Great Britain's good-will envoy, Viscount Halifax, the German-Japanese-Italian triangle must be accepted as a factor in world affairs.

This first concrete indication of what Hitler and the British lord president of the council talked about during their five-hour visit yesterday came from the obscure press service "from Germany." Government spokesmen gave assurance this service was "usually right."

According to this agency Hitler and Halifax "frankly and trustfully" exchanged views on the reasons for the present international difficulties and misunderstandings.

Hitler re-emphasized Germany's will to peace and expressed the belief there was no inherent reason for conflict between Britain and her friends on one side and Germany and her group on the other.

ITALO-FRENCH ARTICLE CAUSES PAPER'S BAN

ROME, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The ministry of popular culture announced today that yesterday's edition of the newspaper La Tribuna had been suppressed because of an article advocating better relations between France and Italy.

A communique said the paper had been ordered withdrawn because of "the substance and a certain statement" in the article, which was written by La Tribuna's Paris correspondent, Francesco Scardaoni.

Informed quarters interpreted the action as an indication of the Italian government's anxiety over the conversations between Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, and Viscount Halifax, British cabinet minister.

RIVERS OUTLINES AIMS OF SESSION

to help work out the tax program of the federal government. He is considered one of the leading tax economists of the nation. We have had Dr. R. P. Brooks, of the University of Georgia, considered the leading tax critic of the south, to help us. And we have tried with their help to work out an intelligent approach to our tax revision.

The details of the alternatives of tax revision cannot be given in this message for want of time, but will be related fully in my message to the general assembly Monday morning.

It involves chiefly these features that will be of general public interest: through home and household and kitchen furniture exemptions we take off $5,000,000. This represents approximately two and a half million dollars collected from property for county purposes and approximately two and a half million more in local school levies. We also take off approximately one million dollars of state levies from this class of property. Thus, through home and household and kitchen furniture exemptions we take off $6,000,000 of taxes.

Through the state operating the schools for seven months, instead of three months as heretofore, we enable the local governments to take off approximately $4,000,000 of local school tax. Thus the program contemplates taking off approximately $10,000,000 in ad valorem levies on homestead and household and kitchen furniture.

Ad Valorem Tax.

One question the legislature will determine is whether or not we will remove entirely the state ad valorem tax on all property. If we take off the state ad valorem on all property it will mean an additional $5,000,000, or a total of $15,000,000 tax relief to the property that has been paying taxes. If we do not take off the state ad valorem, it still will mean a total of approximately $10,000,000 relief on property that has been paying taxes.

Whether or not we take off the state ad valorem on property generally will determine what and how much additional tax levies will have to be made for state purposes.

Personally I prefer to abandon the state ad valorem tax levy entirely, but I am willing to go along with the legislature in the tax revision program so long as we give the $10,000,000 relief I have enumerated and adequately finance the program of education, health and social security I have related. I naturally have my preference, as do we all, about a tax system, but I realize that compromises have to be made and whatever tax system we adopt cannot suit everybody. We must all give whatever system the legislature finally writes a fair trial and a patient support, with the knowledge that it is bound to be better than what we have had.

When you exempt household and kitchen furniture and homes occupied by their owners, provide free school books, a minimum seven-months term of school, adequately and promptly pay teachers, old age pensions, aid for the blind, and aid for dependent and crippled children, and increase the appropriation for public health, our people will be better off than they were when this administration came into power, regardless of what tax system may be enacted to support this program.

Views Obtained.

In approaching the problems of the coming session, I have undertaken to confer with, get the views of, and co-operate with all our people. I have spent nine hours a day, beginning at about 8:30 o'clock in the morning and extending to about 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon, with our legislators daily in groups of from 15 to 25 until I conferred with all members of the general assembly would could attend these conferences. I have conferred with the mayors and municipal authorities as a group; with the county commissioners and ordinaries as a group; with the tax collectors and tax receivers as a group; with the editors of the state as a group; with the business people of the state as a group, and I am now talking with the people generally as a whole about this program and the problems we are striving to solve.

I know the people of Georgia want this program. Their sentiment has been ascertained more extensively and their will determined more conclusively than ever before in the history of this state.

First I went before the people on the issues of this program. I told the people that if I were elected, we would have home and household and kitchen furniture exemptions, free school books, a minimum of seven months' school term, social security and tax revision. This program was bitterly fought by the administration in power at the time when all the machinery of the state government was behind it; and no man or woman who voted for me for Governor failed to know the plain issues they were passing upon.

Thus in my election by an overwhelming popular and county unit vote the people said they wanted this program. Following the election we had the greatest Democratic convention ever held in this state. We threw the doors wide open and assembled more than 6,000 leading Democrats from every militia district in Georgia at the convention at Macon. We appointed a platform committee from among the outstanding and experienced leaders of our state—in ability, character and understanding—to draft the platform; men like Clark Howell Sr., national committeeman from Georgia; men like Captain J. J. Spalding, Isaac S. Peebles from Augusta, Dr. R. J. Kennedy, Harold Savon; women like Mrs. A. B. Conger, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs of Georgia; people who were conservative and sound. These outstanding people of Georgia drafted a platform. This platform was unanimously adopted by the Democratic convention, and became the program of the Democratic party of the state. This program was handed to me when I took office.

The general assembly—composed of representatives of the people from every county and senatorial district in Georgia—convened. The program was adopted by the general assembly by votes of approximately 10 to 1 in both house and senate. The constitutional amendments, necessary to carry out the program, were submitted to the people in a special general election on June 8, 1937.

Program Approved.

In this election, held nine months after the heat of the gubernatorial campaign of the previous September had died down; in this election—stripped of all candidacies and devoted solely to the issues of the program, before any benefits had flowed to the people from the program, before anyone had drawn an old age pension, aid to blind, or aid to crippled and dependent children, before a single free schoolbook had been distributed, before a single teacher's salary had been raised or a single home exempted, before any benefits at all had been started—the people voted by overwhelming majorities of two and a half to three and a half to one in popular vote, and about 15 to one in county unit vote for the program.

Therefore, I know this program is the will of the people of Georgia. The enemies of the program have had their day in court several times. They did not fail to exercise it. They had their day in court the day on which I was named Governor; they had their day in court when the general assembly met; and they had their day in court in the special general election on June 8.

Having had their day in court, and the people having decided overwhelmingly in favor of this program, even the enemies of the program as good Democrats and as good sportsmen should now come along and help us carry out the will of the people. At least they should not be sniping, lawsuiting, harrassing and obstructing us in carrying out the will of the people.

Trying to Solve Problem.

I am tackling the problems of Georgia at every point. I am working with the Governors of the southeastern states in reducing freight rates and in a program to attract industries to Georgia, in co-operation with President Roosevelt's program of decentralization of industry. I am trying to solve our prison problems. I am trying to develop our natural resources. I want business to prosper in this state. I want business people who are now here to stay here. And I want those who have left to come back. And I want others to be attracted here to increase the wealth, the earning capacity and the prosperity of our people.

I am determined that Georgia shall be the greatest state in the Union. I am determined that Georgians shall be the happiest and most prosperous people of any state in the Union. I want every citizen of this state who feels this way about it to join hands with me in making it so.

May God bless us in our efforts. Good-night.

DAVENPORT ARTICLE FLAYED BY EDITOR

'Textile World' Writer Terms Industry 'Great Socializing Force.'

Douglas G. Wolfe, editor of Textile World, published in New York city, yesterday characterized Walter Davenport's article "All Work and No Pay" carried in a recent issue of Collier's Weekly, as "stupid and grossly misleading."

Davenport attacked the southern textile industry, claiming workers were not paid in cash, that deductions for various items mainly for purchases in company stores, absorbed all the earnings of the cases he cited.

The story raised a veritable storm of protest from mill executives and even from workers themselves, all of whom branded the story as being "yellow journalism," "a slander."

Wolfe, in his publication, prefaced his remarks with a statement that he has studied the southern textile industry for 25 years, and says, "I find the Davenport article the most inane criticism of working conditions in that industry that has yet appeared."

He defends the Victor-Monaghan Company, of Greenville, one of the cases from which Davenport made his accusation, and asserted that because of his social-mindedness, Tom Marchant, president, "was designated by his fellow manufacturers to announce the voluntary inclusion of the child-labor elimination clause in the (now dead NRA) cotton textile code."

"I have been in close touch with conditions throughout the industry," he adds. "I can say without reservation that the southern cotton industry has been one of the great socializing forces of the last half-century. As such, it has encountered social problems whose magnitude only those in touch with that industry can appreciate."

2 KILLED, 77 HURT AS TRAIN COACHES CRASH IN STORM

Cars Plunge From Rails in Heavy Snow in West Virginia.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Four cars of a Norfolk & Western passenger train plunged from the rails in a heavy snowstorm near the Virginia state line today. Two persons were killed and at least 77 persons were injured.

The dead were Mrs. Georgia Clyburn, 53, of Bluefield, whose skull was fractured, and Frank Rooker, 35, negro, Williamson, West Virginia.

Trapped in wreckage of the fast train, five passengers were injured critically. They may not survive. Hospitals here admitted 43 persons for treatment of injuries, many of them serious. An investigation into cause of the accident was under way tonight.

Car in Splinters.

One derailed pasenger car rolled down a 25-foot embankment, splintering as it came to rest on the brink of shallow Bluestone river. A second passenger car smashed halfway down the embankment, halting against an obstruction. Two baggage cars which plowed from the rails did not leave the embankment.

The train, No. 24 en route to Norfolk, Va., from Columbus, Ohio, was wrecked a few yards after crossing a low bridge about three miles west of Bluestone, Va. It was running at normal speed. There was no immediate explanation of the derailment, although Norfolk & Western headquarters at Roanoke, Va., believed the engine tender may have left the rails.

Passengers Terrified.

Relief crews, rushed through a blinding snowstorm to the narrow valley where the derailed cars piled up, found dozens of passengers, screaming and terrified, in the wreckage—uninjured. Passengers and members of the train crew worked frantically to extricate the more seriously hurt from the wreckage.

Bluefield's ten ambulances and trucks and private automobiles rushed the injured here for treatment. Bluefield sanitarium treated 60 persons, of whom 32 were admitted for hospitalization. St. Luke's hospital admitted 11 persons and sent seven others home after first aid.

The negro apparently was killed as the passenger coach rolled down the embankment.

GAINESVILLE COURT

125 Criminal Cases Are Set for Hearing.

Sessions of federal court for the northern district of Georgia will open in Gainesville with Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood presiding, I. K. Hay, assistant United States district attorney, announced yesterday.

The criminal docket contains 125 cases involving more than 200 defendants. The cases embrace charges of mail fraud, mail theft, automobile theft, embezzlement, impersonation of a government officer and violations of internal revenue laws. "It will be one of the heaviest dockets we have had in Gainesville in recent years," Hay said.

Criminal cases are expected to consume approximately a week, while the civil calendar will require about the same time. Hay and J. Ellis Mundy will handle the criminal cases and H. H. Tysinger will take charge of civil business.

PIEDMONT CAR LINE REMOVAL SOUGHT

Councilman, Power Company Officials To Confer.

Councilman John A. White, fifth ward, yesterday announced he will confer with Georgia Power Company officials at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with a view of having street car lines removed from Piedmont avenue and busses substituted.

City council at its November 15 meeting passed a resolution naming White as the city's representative in the matter. It was pointed out that the new Buford highway will be opened early next year and that Piedmont avenue will be the logical way of ingress and egress for traffic on the road. Street cars will mitigate to impede the smooth flow of vehicles, White and his colleagues contend.

White also said he will ask council at its December 6 meeting to make Piedmont avenue from Fourteenth to the Prado nonparking to expedite movement of traffic and relieve present congestion.

Coal Dust 'Bomb' Brings 20 Police

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Emma Hoffman went downstairs to get the milk bottle today and found an ominous-looking package—a cigar box containing what appeared to be an automobile condenser coil and a pickle-jar of black powder.

Certain it was an infernal machine to blow up her nephew, Edwin, 22, to whom it was addressed, she doused it in water and called police.

A captain, lieutenant and 18 assorted officers, including ordnance experts, found the black powder was harmless coal dust.

FRANCE REINFORCES INDO-CHINA DEFENSE

Cabinet Appropriates 'Large Sums' To Build Plane, Warship Strength.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Minister of Colonies Marius Moutet announced tonight the cabinet had appropriated "large sums" to reinforce the military defenses of French Indo-China.

The announcement came a few days after the foreign office denied Japan had issued an ultimatum to France against transporting war supplies on her Indo-Chinese railroad to China.

Moutet declared the reinforcements, which he said also would be extended to other colonies, would consist chiefly of warships and fighting planes.

He said that he and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos had established a "permanent liaison" between the governor general of Indo-China and the French diplomatic and consular authorities in the Far East.

The navy ministry reported the 7,000-ton cruiser Primauguet was speeding to Saigon, capital of French Indo-China, after a halt at the British naval base at Singapore.

The reinforcements to be provided by the new appropriation will be in addition to the work started nearly a year ago.

Under the plan then, naval engineers began preparatory work toward the creation of a great naval base at Cam-Ranh bay, halfway between Singapore and Hongkong.

Physicist Finds Tiny Radio Wave To Carry Speech

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Microscopic radio waves that may play important roles in time of war have been produced by a University of Michigan physicist.

These waves, measured in millimeters, may be used in communication over short distances without interception and with little, if any, loss by absorption.

The so-called midget waves were produced experimentally by Professor Neil H. Williams to substantiate a theory that ammonia gas would absorb ultra short waves.

Speech and music have been transmitted successfully, but such tests have been made only in the laboratory.

SILVER PLATED ON STEEL BY INDIANA CHEMISTS

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Silver bearings for airplane engines are promised by a chemical discovery announced today at the University of Indiana. Tests have shown that silver is better than babbitt, the usual metal around whirling shafts.

The problem has been to plate silver directly upon steel.

The secret discovered was cleaning the iron or steel surface. When this dirt was cleaned off by chemical processes, the silver plated fast to the bare iron and steel.

Silver bearings are only one of the apparent uses of the Indiana electroplating process. Brewers have wanted silver-lined containers for making beer. Food manufacturers have asked about silver-lined vessels as a protection against contamination. In the huge chemical industry silver would be resistant to alkalis and organic acids.

SPELMAN COLLEGE TO PRESENT BAUER

Outstanding Pianist To Play Wednesday Night.

Harold Bauer plays in Sisters chapel at Spelman College Wednesday night. Considered by outstanding critics all over the world as one of the greatest pianists of all time, Bauer's appearance here is eagerly awaited by the music world.

Bauer began his musical career as a violinist at the age of 9. At the age of 30 he abandoned the violin for the instrument that has made him famous. Paderewski heard Bauer play the piano and persuaded him to think seriously of this instrument. Applying himself to the task with a complete singleness of purpose, Bauer made his debut with the Berlin Philharmonic Society within three years. Today he ranks among the few who have attained the Olympian heights of art. It has been said that Bauer possesses the absolute perfection of interpretation. Lawrence Gilman, of the New York Herald-Tribune, has aptly described him as "a poet and a lyric rhapsodist."

Bauer made his American debut in 1901 as soloist with the Boston Symphony orchestra. American audiences were prompt to recognize his rare gifts and demand his appearances. Every second year he toured the United States until his world tour in 1914. He has been steadily engaged in this country ever since.

Indians Willing To Pay a Profit For Manhattan

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Indians, who sold Manhattan island to the Dutch for $24, are willing to buy it back at the original price—and pay $6 to boot.

The offer was made after 17 tribes of the American Indian conference danced at their annual pow-wow last night.

"The palefaces bought Manhattan for $24, and we have had a consultation among the chiefs and we hereby offer to buy the island back for $30," said Chief Clear Sky, a dignified Mohawk.

"The island has been improved," he added.

The dance, given in full regalia before a society audience, was a preview of a 35-day dance festival by 200 Indians scheduled to begin here November 28. The judges were Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan; Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and Miss Malvina Hoffman, sculptress.

Little Moose, Chippewa from Minnesota, won first prize. Spotted Elk, Penobscot maiden from Maine, placed second, and Young Bear, a 6-year-old Oneida, was third.

JAPAN LIFTS CENSORSHIP OF PRESS IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Press censorship, which had long been a source of annoyance to American and other foreign correspondents, has been discontinued in cable and radio offices in the International Settlement since the capture of Shanghai by the Japanese. Censorship had been in effect since 1930.

When it first was ordered foreign consular officials contended it was not sanctioned by treaty, but foreign cable companies submitted to the Chinese demands after they were threatened with total loss of their inland business if they refused to comply.

NEW RESPIRATOR TEST FOR SNITE TOMORROW

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Respirator experts indicated tonight it probably would be Monday before Fred Snite Jr., youthful infantile paralysis victim, would be tested in a new "rubber lung" designed to relieve him from the cumbersome metal cylinder which has been his home for 19 months.

Extensive tests of the new respirator were conducted today under the direction of Dr. Newton Mead, young Snite's physician, and Herman T. Kraft, Akron, Ohio, engineer who rebuilt the small respirator to fit Snite's physical requirements.

RIDING THE CIRCUIT AT THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

BY THOS. M. ELLIOTT

"That Preacher Is a Rascal."

Sometime ago a man spoke of a former pastor, and made the remark, "that preacher is a rascal." We inquired why he thought the preacher to be a grand rascal. "Well, he went off from here owing money that he never paid." Now, just what do you know about that? A preacher is a grand rascal if he doesn't pay his debts! Let's see about that. We went back, looked up the record, and found that the very church of which the steward is a member failed that year to pay the preacher's salary by exactly $113.27. We asked if the church ever paid up the unpaid salary. No, it was never paid. We then inquired if he thought a church dishonest that would allow its preacher to go off unpaid? He didn't know about that. Of course the preacher couldn't pay his debts, and therefore he was dishonest, because his honest church members would not pay him. We asked Jabesh Gilead what he thought about it, and he spoke thusly: "By golly, I think if sauce is good for the goose, it would make good rations for the gander, too. Smut is smut, makes no difference whether it's on the pot or the kettle. If a preacher is a grand rascal, because he doesn't pay his debts, a church is afflicted with the same kind of itch, when it won't pay its preacher." And Jabesh Gilead didn't tell a lie.

Eight Bishops From Georgia.

Historical records of Methodism in the United States show that Georgia has furnished eight men for the office of bishop. Their names, places of birth, and dates of ordination are as follows: James Osgood Andrew, Wilkes county, 1832; George Foster Pierce, Greene county, 1854; Joseph Staunton Key, LaGrange, 1886; Atticus Greene Haygood, Watkinsville, 1890; Warren Aiken Candler, Villa Rica, 1898; William Newman Ainsworth, Camilla, 1918; James Edward Dickey, Jeffersonville, 1922, and Arthur James Moore, Argyle, 1930. St. John church, Augusta, has the distinction of having four former pastors made bishops, while Atlanta First church had three former pastors elevated to the bishopric.

Oldest Man at Conference.

J. D. Fooshe, of the Augusta district laymen, is the oldest man attending this session of the conference, having passed his 94th birthday anniversary last March. For more than 60 years Mr. Fooshe has been attending conference sessions and is a well-known figure in the assembly. Recently he served on the grand jury of Richmond county, and was said to be the oldest man ever to serve on the grand jury. Mr. Fooshe came to Georgia from South Carolina after he laid aside his Confederate uniform after Lee's surrender, locating near Gracewood. He then became a Christian soldier, establishing himself in business as a peach grower. On his plantation are some 2,000 trees, and his peach farm is said to be one of Georgia's most successful. During the Civil War he served in the army of northern Virginia, and was wounded in the Battle of the Wilderness. He was then assigned to duty at the headquarters, being closely associated with General Lee's headquarters. As a messenger he carried Lee's last orders to one of the corps commanders on the event of the surrender. Mr. Fooshe hopes to see complete Methodism union in all America before he passes from this life.

Growth of 650 Per Cent.

Bishop Ainsworth is authority for the statement that the Southern Methodist church has recorded the phenomenal growth of 650 per cent since the close of the War Between the States in 1865. In a fraternal address to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church some months ago he stated that the net increase of the Southern church to be 153,669. Bishop Candler is authority for the statement that no other denomination in all church history had made the net increase during the same period as has the Southern Methodist church.

Gifts for the Preachers.

Dr. Wallace Rogers, now closing his term as presiding elder of the Decatur-Oxford district, was honored some days ago by the pastors and laymen of that district when they assembled at Oxford in the Junior College library and held a reception for him and Mrs. Rogers. As a token of their esteem, and appreciation for work done during the quadrennium, a radio was presented Dr. and Mrs. Rogers. On Friday at conference, as Bishop Ainsworth announced his purpose to retire from active work at the next general conference, the conference presiding elder and district lay leaders presented the Bishop and Mrs. Ainsworth a purse of coins.

Atlanta Churches in 125.

In all Southern Methodism there are 125 churches that last year paid for benevolences $2,000 or more. In Atlanta are five of such churches. Listed by membership, ranking and contributions for benevolences last year, they are as follows: St. Mark church, with 2,278 members, ranking 15th in the list of 125, paid $4,803; Druid Hills church, 2,805 members, ranking 16th, paid $4,600; First church, 1,238 members, ranking 37th, paid $3,000; Trinity, 840 members, ranking 111th, paid $2,030; Grace church, 1,822 members, ranking 124th, paid $2,000. Rating for these same churches on pastors' salaries is St. Mark, $6,000; First church, $5,400; Druid Hills, $5,000; Grace church, $4,400; Trinity, $3,600. Centenary church, of Winston-Salem, N. C., has the distinction of paying last year for benevolences $1,000 more than it paid its pastor, or the sum of $7,000 for benevolences. Four churches in Southern Methodism pay their pastors more than $7,000 each. In the North Georgia conference last year 114 pastors were paid $1,000 or less. One pastor, who had three congregations in his circuit, was paid last year $58.

Boy Who Found How Others Live Sails for France

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Horatio Alger ambitions of 16-year-old Robert Denoeu, stepson of an assistant professor of French at Dartmouth College, who ran away from home to taste life on the sidewalks of New York, turned to the sea today.

Reconciled with his family, Robert sailed for his native France on the liner Champlain—with little nostalgic yearning to return to his brief career as a bootblack, sleeping in Bowery "flophouses," seeing wild west movies and occasionally begging money for hotdogs, as he had been doing since he came to the city October 23 to make good on his own.

The slim, wiry youth was reunited with his stepfather, Francois Denoeu, his mother and two sisters last night when the missing persons bureau brought them together.

"Robert is a fine boy," Professor Denoeu said. "I wanted Robert to graduate from his high school at Hanover, N. H., and then go through Dartmouth, but now I am letting him work things out the way he wants to."

Robert himself was in high spirits. He said he disliked life at Hanover and was "just crazy to get back to Paris." He said that while shining shoes in New York he earned $1.50 a day, paid $2.50 a week for his room and lived "pretty swell for a kid on his own."

Dog Made an Exile To Save His Life

FORT SMITH, Ark., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Stockman Frank Woods' big police dog Rex escaped a firing squad today but was banned from the city for attacking a postman.

Municipal Judge Gallagher ordered him executed, but the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intervened and appealed the judgment.

When the case reached circuit court, City Attorney Cravens agreed to dismiss the action if Woods would keep Rex outside the city. The dog was dispatched to a new home immediately.

M'CUTCHEON SEES HOUSE CLERKSHIP

Franklin Presents Record of Ten Years of Legislative Experience.

Election to the clerkship of the house of representatives on his record of 10 years as assistant clerk was asked yesterday by P. T. McCutcheon Jr., of Franklin. He is seeking the post vacated by the resignation of Andrew J. Kingery, of Graymont-Summit.

McCutcheon said that he had always been a Democrat and an ardent supporter of the New Deal.

His statement follows:

After several days of vigorous campaign I am firmly convinced that my election as clerk of the house of representatives is now assured. Of course, the time between the resignation of Hon. Andrew J. Kingery and the meeting of the extra session of legislature was exceedingly short and I have been unable to see each member of the house personally as I would desire to do but from all over the state I have received pledges in the form of telephone calls, telegrams and letters which make me feel enthusiastic over my election on next Monday.

The members of the house are not unmindful that my 10 years of experience in the legislative work qualifies me and entitles me to the promotion to the position of clerk of the house. In the past I have never represented any special interest and have rendered service as assistant clerk with a thought that some day I would receive this promotion. My services have been honest and faithful to the members of the legislature and I deeply appreciate their expression of confidence in me.

Of course, there are always rumors in any political campaign of trading and withdrawals but I wish to assure my numerous friends who have pledged me their support that I will not betray their confidence by any trade of any nature and I will be nominated clerk on Monday and supported by the outstanding members of the house who have the interest of the state to serve and have no special interest to protect.

Having always been a Democrat and an ardent supporter of the New Deal policies I know that my campaign does not meet with the disapproval of the members of the house of the present administration who are interested in a future progressive Georgia.

SHOT KILLS BOY.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Nov. 20.—(AP)—A shotgun charge, presumably fired accidentally by a hunter, struck 12-yearlold Richard Kindervater in the face as he climbed a hill on his father's farm near here today. He died tonight in a hospital. Coroner Luther J. King began an investigation.

Nocturnal Stroller, Clothed in Rain, Held

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(UP)—It was odd that William Martin, 42, should be strolling in Central Park at 3:30 a. m. It was even stranger that he should be walking in the rain. But what really shocked Patrolman Walter Craftman was the fact that Martin was naked.

Martin's explanation that he didn't "need any clothes" failed to satisfy the policeman. The stroller was taken to Bellevue hospital for examination.

REPEALISTS SEEK NEW LIQUOR BILLS

Measures Would Legalize Sales in Counties Voting Wet in June 8 Election.

Repealist leaders in the Georgia house of representatives last night were understood to be preparing a bill or series of bills seeking to legalize the sale of whisky in counties which voted 60 per cent or better for repeal in the June 8 general election.

It was understood the Chatham county delegation has drawn a bill providing for legalization of whisky in Chatham (Savannah) county only. Supporters of repeal in counties in the 60 per cent classification said they hoped to amend the Chatham bill to include their counties.

Under the prospective call of Governor Rivers, liquor legalization can be taken up as a tax measure. The amount of tax to be derived depending, of course, on the scope of the legislation enacted, if any.

Under the rule of legislative courtesy, bills of local application, which is what the liquor bill would be, usually are passed without opposition if the entire delegation of the county involved is in accord. Neutral members of both houses anticipated this custom would be broken if the liquor bill comes up.

Good Morning!

A great many people read the Want Ads in The Constitution as religiously as they do the columns of news. Besides furnishing an excellent index of local conditions, they have found that these little ads are downright human, oftentimes revealing drama, or perhaps pathos.

Here are found real human interest stories—of, by and for the people of this city, expressed in their own words. Here are happy newlyweds seeking a cozy apartment . . . or a mother seeking to add to the family income by renting a spare room. Here is the man who has been advanced by his company to a better job in another city, and wants to sell his house and furniture . . . or an employer who has an excellent opportunity to offer to the right young man or woman. Here is the person seeking news of missing relatives, or the heart-broken lad who wants to find his lost dog, or the elderly couple who want to sell their little business and retire, or the skilled workman who is seeking employment at his trade. Hope, faith, joy, sorrow are wrapped up in the Want Ads. Here's life—as it is lived. No wonder many people follow the Want Ads with intense interest from day to day!

Memorial to Women of Atlanta In War Period To Be Erected Here

Monument in Piedmont Park Will Honor Those Who Lived Here During War Between the States and in Reconstruction Era; Fund Being Raised.

A monument to perpetuate memory of Atlanta women during the War Between the States and in the reconstruction period will be erected by the Atlanta Women's Pioneer Society in Piedmont park in the near future, it was announced yesterday.

Present members of the Pioneer Society are the daughters and granddaughters of those in the original group.

Fund Being Raised.

Steffen Thomas, Atlanta sculptor, will make the memorial, to be made possible by funds being raised by contributions from families of charter members of the society and others interested. There is no record of any such memorial to the pioneer women.

Organized February 4, 1909, by Mrs. Joseph H. Morgan, who served as president until her death in 1924, the Atlanta Women's Pioneer Society was limited to those women who lived in Atlanta during the War Between the States and in the late sixties.

Charter Members.

Many prominent Atlantans were numbered among charter members of the society. These included Mrs. Alfred Austell, Mrs. Flora Abbott, Mrs. Alma Durand Adams, Mrs. William A. Bass, Mrs. J. N. # EX-OFFICER'S PLEA IN SPYING WEIGHED

Farnsworth Tells Underwood He Was Denied Trial by Jury.

Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood took under advisement yesterday additional pleas of John S. Farnsworth, former lieutenant commander in the navy, who is seeking his release from the Atlanta federal penitentiary where he is serving a 4-to-12-year term for violation of the espionage act.

Farnsworth claimed he was denied a jury trial when he was refused the right to withdraw his plea of nolo contendere to charges of selling naval secrets to Japanese agents. He contended that he pleaded nolo contendere "under pressure," and that afterwards he wanted to change the plea to not guilty, but was not allowed to do so.

Sentenced last February in the District of Columbia, Farnsworth filed habeas corpus proceedings last August, charging the indeterminate sentence law of the District of Columbia is not applicable to espionage acts. The hearing yesterday, which was a continuance of the habeas corpus case, was ordered by Judge Underwood after Farnsworth had filed amendments to his original petition.

Judge Underwood told Farnsworth he would not be allowed to appear in district court to make any further pleas and that the case would now "be decided on its merits."

Justice Crater's Wife To Demand Reopened Probe

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Stella M. Crater, whose politically prominent husband, Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater, vanished mysteriously seven years ago, was described by friends today as ready to make "sensational charges" about his unsolved disappearance.

She would, they said, demand a new and sweeping reinvestigation of the whole case by District Attorney-elect Thomas E. Dewey. Dewey, vacationing in Bermuda, planned to fly home Monday.

Crater vanished August 6, 1930, in the midst of the sensational disclosures of the Seabury investigation.

He was one of the leading members of the bench, a friend and

FRANCE ROUNDS UP HOODED TERRORISTS, LEARNS PURPOSE

Plot Originated Abroad, Officials Hint, To Crush Communism.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Colonel Francois de la Rocque, leader of the outlawed Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire), was reported reliably tonight to have provided evidence leading to the government's roundup of France's hooded terrorists, who allegedly were mobilizing for a Rightist revolution.

The ministry of interior asserted its agents have tracked down the leaders of the "hooded men" and that "not a single important conspirator" would escape.

The nation-wide revolutionary plot was described by de la Rocque, in his information to the Surete Nationale, as being led by extremist dissenters who split with him because he was unwilling to order violence in an effort to overthrow the popular front government.

In addition to the extremists from de la Rocque's Croix de Feu and French Social party, which succeeded the banned group, the 'Les Cagoulards" terrorists were said to have obtained recruits from the Royalist Action Francaise and the Doriot Rightists.

The governme.'s investigation also revealed that a group of French army officers joined the conspirators, but it has not been established how deeply the military men were involved.

There were official hints, following discovery of a nation-wide network of arms caches, clandestine radio stations and underground fortresses, that the plot originated abroad but evidence indicated that the "hooded men" had the major purpose of crushing Communist strength which is an important part of the popular front government.

SAFE FORM OF DRUG IS TESTED BY U. S.

Sulfanilamide Promises To Become Conventional Venereal Disease Cure.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(UP) Sulfanilamide promises—on the basis of present research—to become the conventional treatment for gonorrhea, Assistant Surgeon General R. A. Vonderlehr, of the United States Public Health Service, said tonight.

"Tests are still on an experimental basis," Dr. Vonderlehr said, "but current research leads us to believe that sulfanilamide may be the conventional form of gonorrhea treatment within two or three years."

While the Public Health Service experimented with sulfanilamide possibilities, officials of the Food and Drug Administration prepared information for congress on the 73 deaths known to have been caused by an "elixir" of the drug.

Both physicians and officials of the Food and Drug Administration agreed that sulfanilamide did not cause the deaths. They are convinced that it was the dissolving solution, diethylene glycol, which reacted unfavorably on the persons treated with the "elixir."

Konemann and Sims Lead Jacket Attack

General Wood Blocks Mayberry's Punt to Pave Way for First Touchdown.

By JACK TROY.

FLORIDA FIELD, GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 20.—The individual brilliance of Captain Fletcher Sims, Marion (Koon) Konemann and General Wood, a strapping, scrapping tackle, gave Georgia Tech a well-earned 12-to-0 victory over an aroused Florida team before 16,000 home-coming fans this afternoon.

A combination of Tech first, second and third-stringers opened the game and were relieved late in the first quarter by the regulars.

All through that scoreless first half, Tech threatened. There was one march that carried to the Florida 3. But here a petty penalty which was late in being called set Tech back.

A field goal was tried, but it was wide.

Big Bill Jordan, Tech's great end, was put out of the game in the first half for allegedly slugging Goff, Florida tackle. It was the first time Jordan ever had been put out of a Tech game.

This seemed to rile Tech, and shortly after the third period opened, the Jackets went to work.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 20.—Coach Alexander said after the game he thought the Tech team did very well, all things considered.

"We were a little off in timing. That was reflected in the offside penalties and in the times we were called for backfield in motion. I am satisfied. There were no new injuries."

Line Coach Mack Tharpe praised the line play.

"I thought we did well in keeping Florida out of our territory most of the game."

GOPHERS CINCH BIG TEN CROWN

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers clinched the Western conference grid title today, defeating the University of Wisconsin, 13-6. Mixing power plays and deception, the Gophers pushed over their first touchdown in the second period, and counted another in the fourth after a long march. Wisconsin scored in the third period.

YALE SUFFERS FIRST DEFEAT

Harvard Crimson Upsets Blue at Cambridge 13 to 6 Before 58,000.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Underrated Harvard scaled the heights of gridiron greatness today by blasting a vaunted Yale eleven from the thin ranks of the nation's unbeaten teams, 13-6.

The sensational triumph, accomplished before a capacity crowd of 58,000 who watched the second half in a snowstorm, was Harvard's first win over Yale since 1933 and gave the Crimson its first Big Three title in 22 years.

Sheer running power, supplemented by a heads-up aerial attack and an iron-clad defense against desperate last-minute Yale passes, rocketed Harvard to its coveted victory in this fifty-sixth renewal of a 61-year-old rivalry.

Don Daughters and Frank Foley scored Harvard's touchdowns, but Sophomore Torby MacDonald stole the show with his brilliant running and pass defense honors.

The irrepressible Captain Clint Frank produced Yale's only score and teamed with Bud Humphrey in a do-or-die effort to pitch the tying touchdown.

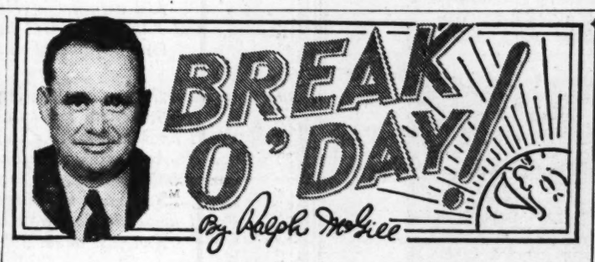

Frank closed his spectacular career in a blaze of glory, but was denied the triumph that would have given the Elis their first unbeaten team since 1924.

Statistically, Harvard had an edge in every department except punting, Dave Colwell's mighty boots averaging 41 yards—13 yards better than MacDonald's. Harvard made 14 first downs to Yale's eight, gained 248 yards by rushing to Yale's 160 and completed three of nine passes for 55 yards while Yale had three completions out of 14 for 43 yards.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Columbus, Ga., Nov. 20.—This is a daffy sort of world. All the values are being tested. There is the story of the man whose wife was objecting to his conviviality.

"The one sure remedy," she said, "is never to order a drink."

"All right," he said, "I won't."

So, every time thereafter, he would walk to the bar in his host's kitchen or pantry and say:

"Don't bother about me. I'm just a little bit old-fashioned."

In that fashion he got along all right.

He never violated his word but he got along all right. The host served up old fashioned.

One of the great things about coming to Columbus is being one of the guests at Mrs. Adel Foley's buffet at noon the day of the game. There is baked ham, boiled ham, chicken, sandwiches, cheese of two or three varieties, pickles of four or five varieties, beef and so on. And coffee in a granite pot. It's an annual custom. The house is old. Much of the actual design was done by the father of the boys who are the grandchildren of today.

AN OLD, OLD POEM.

Somehow sitting down at a table 100 years old, with a gracious lady, 79 years old presiding, makes one think. Mrs. Adel Foley was 79 years old this month. Her home has been for almost half a century a home for Georgia and Auburn boys. Her sons went to Georgia. Her heart is with Georgia but she welcomes Auburn boys with an understanding that makes them realize they must have at least made a mild mistake in going to Auburn.

Mother Foley literally is 79 young. Columbus is a grand city. It was here that Dr. Tichnor, the great Civil War surgeon, ministered to the sick and wounded and wrote his immortal poems.

THE ECHO STORY.

Sitting at Mother Foley's old, old table in a great house which her husband helped build, there comes to one the knowl-

FORDHAM BEATS ST. MARY'S, 6-0

Unbeaten Rams Score on 58-Yard Drive in Third Quarter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Showing a wealth of offensive power in midfield, but slight scoring punch when the goal posts neared, the Fordham Rams only partially pleased their Rose Bowl boosters today as they downed the scarlet-painted St. Mary's, 6 to 0, at the Polo Grounds.

The way they tore up the sodden turf between the 20-yard lines, the Rams might have scored six touchdowns instead of the lone marker that rewarded a 58-yard drive in the third period. They were so jittery, so anxious to please any Rose Bowl scouts that might have been in the stands, that they had the officials stop the big "time left to play" clock in the second half. Jimmy Crowley said it made his boys nervous.

Completely outclassed were the once-galloping Gaels. They made only one first down—and that on a pass—while Fordham's fleet backs piled up 16 behind their massive line. The Rams gained, in all, 290 yards; St. Mary's only 32. The great kicking of Jerry Dowd for St. Mary's did much to keep the score down.

John Lock, a substitute fullback, was the lad who saved the bacon for the Rams. He went in at the start of the third quarter, after his mates had been blundering around for 30 minutes, threatening and falling back. He began tearing yawning holes through the St. Mary's line, and without letting go of the leather he plunged and fought his way from his own 37-yard line down to the St. Mary's 12.

On the next play he took the pass from center, slipped the ball to Krywicki, who tossed it out to

Georgia and Auburn Draw at Columbus

Three Tiger Field Goal Attempts Are Wide; First Tie in Series Since 1914.

By RALPH McGILL.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 20.—Sometimes the dice come seven.

The score was 0 and 0 today but the dice still came seven for Harry Mehre and his loyal, hard-fighting Georgia football team.

Auburn was supposed to win this game today by at least two or three touchdowns. Three times the Auburn offense surged close to the Georgia goal, once George Kenmore fell across the goal line, but the play was called back, and a 15-yard penalty placed on Auburn for unnecessary roughness because of an overzealous effort by Happy Sivell, the brilliant guard.

Three times Garth Thorpe, ponderous Auburn linesman, was called back to try for a field goal. His toe swung at the 5, 15 and the 23-yard lines, and each time the ball went scuttling wide of the posts.

Georgia was supposed to lose this one by three or four touchdowns. But Georgia never came close to losing it, with the exception of George Kenmore's one "touchdown" run.

BULLDOGS ARE GREAT.

Harry Mehre and his royal hard-fighting boys got just a tie out of the game, but they scored a tremendous victory. No better coached team ever took the field. No line ever charged harder. No team ever showed better coaching than did this Georgia team of today. Which gave the grand old dope, one of its most terrific blows.

The cold statistics may show that Auburn had a slight edge today, but the cold facts are that this Georgia team made a steaming fight against great odds and won even. The score was 0 and 0.

The story of today's game is a story of courage and skill. Georgia's fine supporter halfback, Vassa Cate, was not in the game. Harry Mehre had this team ready. There is probably no better coach in America than Harry Mehre and there is no team more loyal to its coach than this team. One week ago they were the forgotten men with disgruntled supporters having little good to say. Last

COLUMBIA LOSES TO DARTMOUTH, BY 27-TO-0 SCORE

Big Green Completes Season Unbeaten; Take Ivy Title.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Dartmouth's Indians reached the end of their football warpath today with a 27-to-0 massacre of Columbia, an old-fashioned tomahawking that gave them the Ivy league championship and their first unbeaten season since 1925.

As 17,000 spectators sat wet and shivering in the green stands of Baker field, the Big Chiefs from Hanover twisted the Lions' tails like so much papier mache, scoring 21 of their points within a space of 5 1-2 minutes from the close of the second to the start of the third periods.

The victory marked the first time since 1927 that Dartmouth had won its final game of the season. It also gave the Indians their second Ivy league title in a row and dropped Lou Little, of Columbia, to a new all-time low for his coaching career. It was the first time in 17 years that his team had been licked five times in one year though Stanford, here next week, may make it six.

A wild finish in the second period was all Dartmouth needed to polish off Columbia. The period had 1 1-2 minutes to go when Fred Hollingsworth, of St. Louis, passed to Bob McLeod, of Glen Ellyn, who caught the 17-yard aerial on the Columbia five and ran without interference for the first touchdown. Bob Gibson, of Stamford, Conn., place-kicked the extra point.

The rest of the game was all Dartmouth, with its second and third teams running wild. Shortly after the third period opened, Colby Howe totok Luckman's punt on his 39 and ran and twisted his way 61 yards for a touchdown.

Score by periods:

As the end of the football season draws near, fans devote much speculation to those hypothetical elevens, composed of individual stars, that could—or should—sweep all before them. Selection by experts of all-star teams provides an additional garland of fame for outstanding players.

IRISH CONQUER NORTHWESTERN IN TOUGH GAME

Blocked Punt Gives Notre Dame Team Thrilling 7-0 Victory.

By WILLIAM WEEKES.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 20.—(AP) Sweeney — Charles Aloysius Sweeney—told it to Northwestern today.

The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame conquered their Big Ten arch-enemy, Northwestern, 7 to 0, today in freezing, wind-swept Dyche stadium, and it was Sweeney, of Bloomington, Ill., hero of Notre Dame's triumph over Navy and Minnesota, who scored the single touchdown, result of a second-quarter "break." It was Sweeney also, who on three other occasions, contributed defensive gems which helped keep the desperate Wildcats, playing their final game of the season, from edge, that after all, one gets out of life about what one puts into it, especially is this true, when one reaches into the bookcase and picks out one of Dr. Tichnor's great poems called, The Echo. It was written at his old home, Torchhill, near Columbus, and it reads as follows:

THE ECHO.

This is the rhyme that our poet writ
Sitting at peace one day,
With his warring done and his rifle gun
Bracketed away.

A little lad in his curly grace
Of summers that numbered three
With a wrathful trace on his rosy face
Stood at his mother's knee.

"Mother, get me a rifle gun
With a bayonet keen and bright;
There's a fellow that hides in the hills in front,
And him I am bound to fight.

"A fellow that hoots like a hooting owl
And mocks like a mocking bird
A rascal that calls me the meanest names,
That ever a fellow heard.

"Now, mother, get me a rifle gun,
And a jacket of blue or gray
And I think you will hear of the prettiest fight
Or the funniest runaway."

And the mother, parting his sunny curls,
Smiled in the earnest eyes,
"I know the lad, he's of Johnny's age
And just about Johnny's size.
And the mother, parting his sunny curls
Smiled in the earnest eyes,
"I know the lad, he's of Johnny's age.
And just about Johnny's size.

"He'll never run from your rifle gun;
We'll try him another way.
Speak lovingly to the lad, my son
And hear what he has to say."

Soon in the porch that faced the hills
They stood in the waning light.
A voice replied to the voice that cried,
"Johnny, my dear, good night."

And Johnny's smile, as he turned away,
Was audible, sweet and clear,
And it was a rather good thing to say,
And a very good thing to hear.

And I hope the world, as it grows in grace
Will learn how a war is won;
That love is still the invincible—
And bracket it's rifle gun.

In this world of ours a man's life is very much the echo of his words and deeds. The old doctor who used to ride the old muddy roads and hills of Georgia was a very clear thinker.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS.

Governor Ed Rivers was the distinguished guest of the day in the huge crowd watching Georgia and Auburn play.

It was bitterly cold but the Governor stuck it out along with the thousands of spectators and enjoyed the game to the utmost and Georgia met the Auburn attack in a great defense.

Major Bob Neyland took a holiday today and saw a football game. The Major's team does not play until Thanksgiving Day when he must meet Chet Wynne's Kentucky team. He defeated Georgia 32 to 0 this year, but lost to Auburn, 20 to 7. The Major has lost to Alabama, Auburn and Vanderbilt, and has been tied by Duke in what is his most unsuccessful season in his long coaching career.

Speaking of schedules, Georgia isn't trying to soften up any, the Bulldogs are to meet L. S. U. next year.

Crowd of 85,000 Sees California Clinch Western Entry Into Rose Bowl.

By HENRY McLEMORE.

SANFORD STADIUM, PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 20.—(UP)—With muddy waters 'round their cleats and Rose Bowl visions swimming before their eyes, California's football men rolled past their last obstacle today, crushing Stanford, 13 to 0.

The victory was achieved before 85,000 persons who scorned a driving rain to see the "wonder team" gain the Californians a triple crown. It vanquished the Bears' most bitter rival, gave California the undisputed championship of the Pacific Coast conference, and made their invitation to the Rose Bowl festivities a formality.

To win today, California went General Tecumseh Sherman one better and made two relentless, destructive down-the-field drives. These marches, the first of 67 yards, the second of 65, were just as ravaging to Stanford's hopes as the general's were to Georgia.

With the big, mobile Bear line ripping the Stanford forward wall to shreds, the California backs—Bottari, Chapman, Anderson and Meek—churned off tremendous chunks of yardage without a halt.

Both the touchdown drives, just as nearly all of California's surges this season, came in the second period. The Bears looked over their opposition in the first period, and then started rolling. Once under way there's hardly any stopping them, so precisely, so sharply, and so wickedly do they block.

Stanford never had a chance all afternoon. The Indians showed occasional bursts of power but were never able to sustain a drive.

It was not until the third period that they crossed midfield, and their only real chance to score came in the final period when Vic Bottari, a 60-minute player, fumbled and Andersen, a tackle, recovered for Stanford on the Bears' 15-yard line.

Citadel Cadets Win Over Erskine, 46-7

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 20. (UP)—Citadel's Blue and White struck a touchdown stride to overwhelm the Erskine College football team, 46 to 7, today.

The Citadel cadets, defeated in their previous three starts, scored almost at will against the game but ineffective Erskiners.

Graham Edwards, 150 Citadel backfield ace, was instrumental in most of the Citadel drives. He threw accurate passes and slipped through the line for good gains.

A Bit of Fancy Batting by Alert Bulldog

Oliver Hunnicutt, alert Bulldog back, went up behind Whatley, of Auburn, to bat down a pass tossed by Kenmore yesterday at Columbus. It was a typical bit of Bulldog defensive skill, the kind that kept the Plainsmen from scoring.

Purdue Trips Indiana in Snow

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 20. (AP)—Cecil Isbell, 190-pound Texan, roamed all over the frozen gridiron here this afternoon, running, kicking and passing the downtrodden Boilermakers of old Purdue to a 13-to-7 victory over their arch downstate foe, Indiana University, before 25,000 shivering spectators.

Snow fell throughout most of the game, turning at times into a driving storm.

In the first quarter Isbell's booming punts, traveling 50 to 60 yards, set Indiana back on its heels, and then from Indiana's 28 he faded back to his 40 and passed 35 yards to Jim Zachary, right end, who trotted the few remaining steps for a touchdown. Isbell kicked the extra point.

Indiana tied the count in the second period on a pass from Frank Filchock, of Braznell, Pa., to R. L. Kenderdine, of Fort Worth, Texas, and a placekick for the extra point by George Fowler, of Augusta, Kan.

Then in the final quarter, with only two minutes left to play, Isbell cracked off left tackle from the Indiana 10 and eluded Indiana's defenders to score the winning touchdown.

Gamecocks Trounce Blue Stockings, 64-0

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 20.—(AP)—South Carolina scored at will today and defeated Presbyterian College, 64 to 0, before 3,000 chilled spectators.

The Gamecocks scored seven minutes after the starting whistle and maintained command of the situation throughout. Presbyterian College never threatened seriously.

A 75-yard run by Gene Robinson and a 70-yard dash by Captain Jack Lyon for two of ten tallies high-lighted the contest which developed into little more than a track meet for the Birds.

The game was already in the bag and the befuddled Blue Stockings were offering little resistance when Gene Robinson took a punt in the last period from Horne on his own 25-yard line and ran for a touchdown.

Lyon's 70-yard dash through the feeble defense came early in the third quarter.

Crackers To Train In Savannah in 1938

Earl Mann To Seek Two Good Pitchers, Outfielder at Minor League Meeting.

By THAD HOLT.

Selecting the coldest day of the year to talk baseball, Earl Mann, popular president of the Atlanta club, announced yesterday that Savannah, oldest town in Georgia, will serve as 1938 training site of the Cracker team. Panama City, Fla., served as 1937 training quarters.

Mr. Mann left no doubt that he considers Savannah a choice spot for the early grooming of the next Cracker club. "We looked over any number of sites, and all things considered, Savannah seems to be the most inviting and suitable. The spring climate there is very good. The ball park is better than some of the Southern League fields. And the hotel accommodations leave nothing to be desired. I really think we've found the place for which we've been looking."

The Crackers will engage the Savannah Indians in a series of games. Mann conferred last week with Bobby LaMotte, Savannah president, at which time the 1938 site was agreed upon. Incidentally, it is expected the Crackers and Indians will form a working agreement, with Atlanta optioning a portion of its talented crop of rookies to the Sally club ere the regular season gets underway.

Mann and Manager Paul Richards will attend the annual minor league meeting at Milwaukee December 1, 2, 3, at which time a hard hitting outfielder who swings from the right side and two pitchers who can start and finish games will likely be acquired. "After that, we'll announce our complete roster," declared the peppery president.

The Crackers will tackle a more ambitious exhibition schedule than in many seasons. Several big league clubs will appear at Ponce de Leon park, in addition to class AA teams.

L. S. U. '11' Routs Louisiana Normal

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Louisiana State University swamped Louisiana Normal College, 52 to 0, here today before some 5,000 fans in freezing weather. L. S. U., readying itself for its traditional rival, Tulane, next Saturday, scored all but one touchdown in the first two periods.

Louisiana State scoring: Touchdowns, Rohm 2; Morton, Milner, Anderson (sub for Morton), Bussey (sub for Rohm), Kavanaugh (sub for Baur), Stell (sub for Milner). Points after touchdowns, Milner, Cajoleas (sub for Booth) 3.

Hurlingham Victor In Polo Semi-Finals

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 20.—(AP) Hurlingham defeated Santa Paulo, 10 to 8, in a semi-final match of the Argentine open polo championship today and qualified to meet either the invading North American team, Aurora, or Santa Ines in the final round. Aurora plays Santa Ines in the other semi-final tomorrow.

COLONIALS HOLD PORKERS TO TIE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 20.—(AP)—George Washington University did today what no Southwest conference eleven had done in three years—stopped the University of Arkansas' scoring attack—and held the passing Porkers to an 0-0 tie before 8,000 shivering fans.

Both teams tried and missed field goals after running and passing attacks fizzled in the shadow of the goal posts.

A soft and, in spots, muddy field handicapped both elevens but proved particularly disastrous to the Arkansas team. Time and again passes were completed for long gains only to have the receiver stumble and fall headlong before a tackler reached him.

The temperature hovered in the low thirties, affecting noticably the handling of the ball by the Razorbacks. Punts were fumbled four times by Arkansas and recovered by the Colonials for what could have been real scoring opportunities.

George Washington put three and four defenders on tall Jim Benton, Arkansas' All-American end candidate, throughout the game but despite this smother, he completed nine heaves for a total of 132 yards. In all, Arkansas tried 34 passes, completed 11 for 158 yards, and had four intercepted.

Score by periods:

Maryland Defeats Georgetown, 12 to 2

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Charley Weidinger's passing wizardry carried Maryland to a 12-to-2 triumph over Georgetown today as the Terrapins scored once through his tossing and moved to within touchdown range on another.

Georgetown picked up two points on a safety in the first period, but not until the final minutes did they threaten the Maryland goal.

Joe Mellendick's 60-yard quick-kick in the opening quarter set Maryland back on its 15 and a bad pass from Bob Walteron, center, rolled over the goal with Weidinger recovering for a Georgetown safety.

COLGATE BEATS SYRACUSE, 7 TO 0.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Colgate won its first major victory of the season and continued its 13-year superiority over Orangemen of Syracuse by a 7-0 victory today as 30,000 fans sat through a snowstorm and watched Andy Kerr's Red Raiders march 70 yards in the second period for the game's only score.

The snow-covered field was a tremendous handicap to both teams. On several occasions backs broke into the clear only to slip without being tackled.

Ed Lalor started Colgate's victory march from his own 30 with a 13-yard gain through center on a delayed buck. Whit "Rubber Legs" Jaeger, who has been out of Colgate's lineup since the Cornell game early last month, circled Syracuse's right end for a 36-yard jaunt to the Syracuse 22.

Davids tossed a 14-yard pass to Jaeger for a first down on the Syracuse eight. Lalor bucked center for three and on the third down the elusive Mr. Jaeger again circles. The Orange right end, this time for five yards and a touchdown. Captain Red Chesbro converted from placement.

Syracuse had its only scoring opportunities in the first period. A poor kick to the Orange 46 was followed by a 22-yard gain around left end by Harold "Babe" Ruth, who added six more to reach Colgate's 18-yard line.

Bruett dropped back to Syracuse's 26 where his attempted field goal failed by inches. Three successive first downs, one on an 18-yard pass from Sidat-Singh to Markowski, gave the Orange a first down on Colgate's 12, where the Orange attack was stopped.

WOMEN FIGHT MONDAY NIGHT

Miss Betty Lee, champion woman wrestler, trained by Professor George Romanoff, of Florida, will make an appearance here Monday night at the Spring Street arena, where she will meet Miss Jean Blondell, of Fort Worth, Texas.

The pretty blonde, Miss Blondell, defeated Miss Lee here at the West End arena, four months ago just before she won from Miss Clair Mortinson, Hollywood, Cal., and states she can repeat if given a chance. The fans will remember their last meeting. They fought inside and outside the ring; the going was exceptionally rough. Miss Blondell pinned her opponent in 18 minutes. Fans are assured plenty of action.

Chin Lee, Chinese wrestler, will meet Raoul Lopez, Mexican, in one of the main matches on the program. The promoter states these two mat artists are the roughest in the game, and a real he-man's battle will be seen once they get into action. Gentleman John Mauldin will referee this clash of villains.

Young Gotch, the former Miami wrestler, will again make his appearance when he tackles Jack Bloomfield, Jewish ace, in a scientific match. Gotch has really made a name for himself lately in wrestling circles. He is a much-improved matman since his return from Boston and the eastern states.

The Spring Street arena is located at the junction of Spring, Peters and Garnett streets.

Princeton Upsets Navy Eleven, 26-6

48,000 Fans See Tigers Finish Worst Season in Years With Surprise Win.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 20.—(AP)—At the tag end of a sorry season a football team was born today in Palmer stadium.

It was a Princeton football team that, already soundly thrashed by Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard and Yale, turned on what the experts thought was to have been another tormenter and gave Navy a 26-6 pasting.

Thus the Tigers salvaged some satisfaction from the worst campaign since Fritz Crisler came to Princeton. They did so smartly and decisively and, from the time they scored their opening touchdown, didn't let Navy's reputed power get up even half a head of steam.

The Princeton line, emerged as a well-knit, cohesive unit. Behind it the Princeton backs, notably Sophomore Bob Hinchman, Junior Tom Mountain and Senior Jack White, worked smoothly to effect Navy's destruction.

The Princeton supporters in the crowd of 48,000 had turned out for the annual show put on by the Middies. They didn't expect their team to win, but, after that opening touchdown, scored in the first three minutes of play, they stayed in their seats until a Princeton interception halted Navy's last, gambling passing attack.

It was Hinchman who set the first scoring drive under way. He started it from the Tiger 34 with a 14-yard end run, finished it with a 13-yard pass to Jack Daniel which the latter toted another 41 yards for the touchdown. Hinchman then added the extra point.

The sophomore halfback's passes also put the Tigers in position for their third score, made by Fullback Ashby Harper on the same fake reverse with which Ken Sandbach beat the Midshipmen a year ago.

White and Mountain combined for the other two.

Wood's 58-yard punt return for a touchdown, first Navy score in Princeton since 1931, was the only time they got by midfield in the second quarter.

NEBRASKA WINS OVER IOWA, 28-0

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20.—(UP)—The Nebraska Cornhuskers broke loose with a surprising display of offensive power today to defeat a hapless University of Iowa football team, 28 to 0.

It was Nebraska's third victory of the season over Big Ten conference elevens. Minnesota and Indiana were the other victims.

Cold weather cut the attendance to about 25,000, but those who shivered through the sub-freezing temperature witnessed the finest showing of scoring power by the once-defeated and twice-tied Cornhuskers this year.

Texas Tech Defeats Centenary Team, 7-2

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Centenary College and Texas Tech fought a bitter battle in almost freezing weather here this afternoon, Texas winning, 7 to 2. Texas Tech scored early in the first and then was on the defensive most of the game until the last few minutes of play, when it threatened to score again.

O'BRIEN IS STAR AS T. C. U. WINS, 7-2

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 20. (AP)—Little David O'Brien, of Texas Christian, hurled one deadly missile from his slingshot today and Rice Institute, Goliath of the Southwest conference, fell 7-2.

The 148-pound quarterback, whose hurling attempts were impotent in the first three periods, picked his spot soon after the fourth period opened and heaved a 41-yard pass. Down on the 12-yard line Elbert (Spud) Taylor, a sophomore, bagged it and headed for the goal line, but was stopped on the 1-yard stripe.

On his second thrust at the Rice Wall O'Brien burrowed through guard for the score and then stepped back and added the extra point.

Big Ernie Lain, the Rice troubleshooter who has carried them through their last four games with his last-minute magic, re-entered the Owl lineup with only five minutes to play and managed to excite the Owls into gaining the ball on the Christian 9, but ironically, it was his own failure that cost them a scoring chance.

He skipped his usually effective passing for a twirl at the Christian right end but was carried far back to the 23-yard line for a loss the Owls couldn't regain. The Christians finally took over the ball on their own 9.

Twice O'Brien hit the line for no gain, and after the Christians had been penalized back to the 1, he grounded the ball behind the double stripe for an intentional safety on the final play of the game.

Chicago Bows To Illinois, 21 to 0

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 20.—(AP) Illinois came through for its veteran coach today, trouncing Chicago, 21 to 0, with a last-half offensive to put a winning finish on Bob Zuppke's twenty-fifth season as Illini grid mentor.

Held scoreless during the first two periods by a gallant Maroon eleven which twice made valiant goal line stands, the Illini struck swiftly for two third-period touchdowns and added another in the final stanza of a battle played in 20 above zero weather. Snow-swept Memorial stadium housed 11,500 fans for the game.

Jack Berner crashed one yard for the first Illinois touchdown in the third and on the fourth play after that Jim Reed struggled over the goal line from the 12.

At the outset of the last quarter, Zimmerman intercepted Sollie Sherman's pass and ran 31 yards for a touchdown. Mel Brewer, Illinois guard, converted all extra points by placements.

Oglethorpe Defeats Stetson Eleven, 10-0

Larry Slay Boots Field Goal; Paulk Runs for Touchdown at Hermance Stadium.

By ROY WHITE.

An underdog Oglethorpe team upset Stetson University, from DeLand, with a 10-to-0 victory Saturday afternoon at Hermance stadium, in sub-freezing temperatures.

The victory was the third for the Petrels and the second on their home field, and a tribute to the fine coaching of John Patrick.

Doped to lose at least a couple of touchdowns, Oglethorpe outplayed the visitors in every department and gained 15 first downs to only four.

Oglethorpe's great line, which has been directly responsible for two previous wins, was again outstanding. It warded off every Stetson threat and held like a stone wall, when the Petrels were forced to kick.

PETRELS DRIVE.

Twice in the second quarter Oglethorpe drove to the visitors' 10-yard line, but Stetson's big line rose up and turned the Petrels back without a score. The first drive ended on the two-yard line and was featured by the many short gains of Martin Kelley. He gained close to 30 yards alone in the 43-yard march, but couldn't score.

Late in the quarter, Buck Thomas passed 33 yards to Murphy, but the gain did no damage, as Stetson's line again rose up and turned the Petrels back on the 10-yard stripe.

Oglethorpe continued its short gains in the third quarter, and failing for the third time in succession to dent the Stetson line in the shadow of the goal, Larry Slay dropped back from his guard position and booted a 20-yard placement for three points.

LOOK PLENTY GOOD.

Those three points looked plenty good, but late in the fourth period Ansel Paulk, a substitute back, sneaked to the sidelines and ran 24 yards to a touchdown. It was a beautiful play that completely fooled the Stetson team. Slay kicked the placement and Oglethorpe won the ball game, 10 to 0.

Oglethorpe's punting was outstanding. In the third quarter Owens' boot went out of bounds on the 1-yard line. Another barely missed the coffin corner and a third punt in the same period was grounded on the 1-foot line. Another boot in the fourth period rolled out of bounds on the 2-yard line.

Oglethorpe's entire line was outstanding, while backfield honors were well divided.

Schaeffer, at end, both offensively and defensively, and McClelland in the backfield played great football for the losers.

DUKE IS WINNER OVER WOLFPACK

RALEIGH, N. C., Nov. 20.—(AP) Duke University defeated a fighting N. C. State football team, 20 to 7, today before 10,000 fans in clear, cold weather.

The victory gave Duke second place in the state championship race. The game ended State's season and gave the Wolfpack third place in the state. Duke ends its campaign at Durham next Saturday against Pittsburgh.

Fought to a standstill in the first quarter, Duke rallied in the second period when high-stepping Honey Hackney, quarterback, opened the scoring by taking a pass from Eric Tipton and racing for a 53-yard gain and touchdown. Hackney's placement was wide.

GREENIES ROUT SEWANEE, 33 TO 7

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Tulane regulars were called from the benches today to turn back a fighting Sewanee team, 33 to 7, after substitutes had trailed 7-to-0 at the half.

A crowd of 10,000 sat through the chill afternoon winds to watch the surprising display of strength by Sewanee.

A fumble by Payne of Tulane late in the second period was recovered by Schuessler for Sewanee on the Wave 15-yard line and led to the visitors' only touchdown. Quarterback Cochrane, running behind perfect interference, raced around right end 15 yards for the touchdown. Lasater kicked goal for the extra point.

With its first string men in the lineup, Tulane began its scoring drive early in the third period. An exchange of punts after the kickoff left the ball deep in Sewanee territory. Line drives advanced the ball to the 9-yard line and Buddy Banker skirted right end for a touchdown. Mattis failed to convert the extra point.

Late in the same period the Tulane Green Wave rolled down the field 45 yards and Andrews carried the ball across for the second touchdown. The half ended with Banker recovering a fumble on the Sewanee one-inch line.

Tulane scored three more times in the last period against the stubborn Sewanee line. Cochrane carried the fight all the way against the strong Tulane eleven.

FORDHAM BEATS ST. MARY'S, 6 TO 0

Joe Woitkoski, running in the clear. It was an easy counter, the entire St. Mary's team having been bamboozled. The attempted placement was fumbled, but it didn't matter.

Obviously anxious to pile up an impressive score, the Fordhams made no effort to protect their lead, on the contrary, they gambled even harder the rest of the way on passes and laterals, secure in the knowledge they had the St. Mary's offense handcuffed. Four more times they stabbed their way well into St. Mary's territory, and when the final whistle sounded they were on the 5-yard line.

PANTHERS KEEP PERFECT RECORD BY EASY VICTORY

Lions Smother Pitt in 3d Period To Get Their Only Score.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The football Panthers of the University of Pittsburgh, rolling along undefeated into the end of their home schedule, pummeled Penn State 28 to 7 today before 23,000 spectators who braved snow and cold to see the old rivals in their 44th annual battle.

Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg, the Elkins, W. Va., flash, scored two of the Panthers' four touchdowns and set up another as he uncovered one of his most sparkling exhibitions.

Pitt banged out 21 points in the first half to take a comfortable lead over a gallant but lightweight band of Lions from Mt. Nittany, who achieved a lot of satisfaction by scoring against the Panthers on a 30-yard pass in the third period.

Nineteen seniors, making their last appearance in the big Pitt bowl, saw service in the contest with Coach Jock Sutherland making frequent substitutions.

The rugged Pitt machine started slowly, but showed all its vaunted power in a 55-yard march midway in the first period with Goldberg bounding 14 yards and 12 yards. Frank Patrick plunged over for the first score.

Another drive went 46 yards to a touchdown late in the same period with Goldberg scoring. Frank Souchak placekicked both extra points.

The hard-running Goldberg collected his third touchdown early in the fourth period as the climax of a 54-yard drive, this time going seven yards through a gaping hole at right guard.

Dick Cassiano, the versatile understudy to Goldberg, raced 78 yards for a touchdown early in the second period.

The Lions scored midway in the third after Harry Harrison's high-bounding kick rolled against Dalle Tezze, Panther tackle, and Alex Barantovich recovered on the Pitt 24.

Wendell Wear, substitute halfback, threw a long pass to Sid Alter in the end zone. Ben Pollock placekicked the extra point.

BAYLOR DEFEATS LOYOLA, 27 TO 13

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The revived Baylor Bears smothered Loyola University, of Los Angeles, 27-13, today as Bullet Bill Patterson tossed three touchdown passes.

Patterson and Bubba Gernand put the Texans in the lead in the first quarter. Gernand took a short pass from Patterson, ran 43 yards for a touchdown and then kicked goal.

Baylor scored two more in the second period, Huessner and Barnes snaring end zone passes from Patterson. The Texans' fourth score was made in the last period when Brazell raced through the Loyola line for 25 yards for a touchdown.

In the third quarter, Fullback Jack Lyons threw a 28-yard pass to Steve Kolton, substitute Loyola back, who grabbed the ball and plunged three yards over the goal line.

scoring.

The bit of Irish good fortune which led to the only score of a bitterly fought battle that kept the greater part of a crowd, of 45,000 seated until the finish, came when a Northwestern lineman was guilty of holding as Bernie Jefferson, negro halfback star, attempted to punt from deep in his own territory. Jeff's first kick went out of bounds on his 40-yard line, but the play was called back, and Northwestern penalized 15 yards to its seven.

BLOCKS PUNT.

Again Jefferson attempted to punt. This time Sweeney, 6 feet and 188 pounds of brilliant right end, and his partner, Alec Shellogg, smashed through and blocked the kick. Sweeney, hardly hesitating in stride, snatched the ball before it reached the frozen sod, and stepped over the goal line for the touchdown. Andy Puplis' place-kick for the extra point split the uprights.

Yellow Jackets Beat Fighting 'Gators, 12-0

Sims, Konemann, Wood Play Brilliantly; Tech Scores in Second Half.

Captain Walter Mayberry, Florida's great back, attempted to punt.

Wood knifed diagonally across and blocked it. Allen Wilcox recovered at the Florida 21. Sims, Konemann and Harry Appleby rammed the ball to the 10. Sims and Appleby carried to the 2. And Sims completed the job on a fierce line buck.

Sims missed the extra point, but it didn't matter, really, for Tech was to score again in the fourth quarter on a beautiful play.

Early in the period. In fact, on the second play, Crockett fumbled at the Florida 10. The 'Gators recovered in the mass.

This followed a late third-period punt return of Konemann, a dazzling piece of running, that was good for 54 yards and put the ball on the Florida 14.

TECH UNDAUNTED.

Undaunted by the break, the Techsters went to work and recovered a fumble late on to set up the stage for the second touchdown.

But before this action took place, there was a great run of 44 yards by Captain Mayberry. Captain Sims was the only man left, and Sims ran Mayberry out of bounds at the Tech 47.

It would have been the tying touchdown had Tech's great captain missed.

Well, Mayberry hit the line for a first down. But Jim Morgan hit him hard on the second play he ran after that, and Mayberry fumbled. Wilcox again recovered for Tech.

And so Tech had the ball at the Florida 47 and Appleby and Sims ran it to the 30. A great play followed.

Sims raced around in his own backfield, going back deeper and deeper as 'Gator defenders pursued him. Sims stopped and passed into the flat. Konemann was waiting. He took the pass and with the help of teammates and with some fancy stepping of his own sped down the western boundary for 30 yards and a touchdown.

MAYBERRY GREAT.

Only twice during the game was Florida able to penetrate Tech territory. The Jackets played superior football, although Florida, chiefly through the magnificent play of Captain Mayberry, outgained Tech in rushing, 156 to 131 yards.

Konemann's punt returning was one of the brilliant features, however. Tech returned punts for a total of 182 yards. Konemann did most of it.

Without Mayberry today, the fighting 'Gators would have been licked within an inch of their very lives. Mayberry, as usual a marked player, managed, nevertheless, to gain 134 yards from scrimmage.

Konemann was Tech's chief gainer from scrimmage. He gained 51 yards. He got more yards than this, of course, on one punt return.

Tech played fine football in the face of an aroused 'Gator team and might have won by a much larger margin.

Florida rushed passes well in the first half, and it was well they did. The 'Gators were still rushing Sims at the end, but he was a "will o' the wisp." They couldn't corner him. Every time he appeared bottled, he would either pick out a receiver or run with the ball. He never lost ground, regardless of how far back he ran.

USE RESERVES.

Tech was able to use Billy Gibson, Louis Crockett, Junior Anderson, Red Roberts and other reserves to good advantage.

The first team came into the game chiefly because Tech was in possession of the ball deep in Florida territory late in the first period.

It came about on a quick-kick by Gibson, which Mayberry caught up with at his 14. He was dropped in his tracks.

Mayberry kicked poorly out of bounds. It was a 10-yard kick that went out at the 24. Tech got the ball to the 19 because of defensive holding, and the regulars trooped in to try to score.

A fine trick pass, with Ed Jones throwing it as a variation of the end around, was no good when on the goal line. Sims' bullet pass to Ed Jones was out of reach and then Sims lost three yards on fourth down.

The purpose had failed, but the regulars stuck in there for most of the game and really struck with a vengeance in the third and fourth periods.

MORGAN STARS.

Morgan's defensive play at end was very good, George Smith also played fine football. The midget guards, Wilcox and Brooks, Wood, Chivington and Rimmer stood out.

In the Florida line, Krejcier, Goff, Koscis and Walker, an end, were fine football players.

But Captain Mayberry showed one and all why he is going to be named all-southeastern. He's really a lone voice in the wilderness here. They don't give him protection, and so he simply goes ahead and does without it.

Captain Sims, too, gave a neat demonstration of why he is considered one of the finest quarterbacks in the entire country.

Of course, Howard Ector and Buck Murphy also were good, especially on defense. Tech might have been looking ahead to Georgia, but you could never convince Florida it was a fact.

The figures show Tech made 10 first down to 8, passed 78 yards to 13, returned punts 182 yards to 4—imagine that, 4 yards of return by Florida—and averaged 33 yards to 30 on kicks.

KONEMANN LOSES.

Florida lost 74 yards from scrimmage, Tech lost 14. Konemann once was tackled on an attempted pass for 9 of these yards.

The Jackets came out of the game in good shape and will turn Monday to preparations for the Georgia game next Saturday.

The team left tonight by train for Atlanta and will arrive at 6:30 tomorrow morning.

This game made up for Tech's last trip here in 1934 when Bill Stark's toe provided the point to beat the Yellow Jackets, 13 to 12.

Tech's defense was a bit too much for Florida's offense today. The Gators, for the most part, just simply couldn't drive into Jacket territory.

BUCKEYES BEAT MICHIGAN TEAM

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Ohio State's Scarlet Tide rolled relentlessly over Michigan's hopes of a winning football season today, vanquishing the Wolverines for the fourth successive year, 21 to 0.

For the Wolverines and their followers among the 65,000 spectators who shivered in freezing temperature and snow, the defeat ended the season on a dismal note. It snapped a four-game winning streak and left Michigan with a record of four victories and four defeats.

Ohio State, paced by Jim Miller, brilliant halfback, scored two touchdowns through the air and reached scoring position for its third touchdown by the aerial route.

LAFAYETTE WINS OVER LEHIGH, 6-0

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 20.—(UP)—Lafayette College defeated Lehigh University 6-0 before 15,000 persons today to wind up its 1937 football season undefeated and untied.

After a scoreless first half in which the Lafayette running attack was bogged down on a soft and slippery turf, a blocked punt set up the winning touchdown midway in the third quarter.

Driscoll, Lafayette tackle, rushed Ellstrom, who was punting from his own 22, blocked the kick and recovered on the 20. Cavello made a first down on the eight and scored through center from the one-yard line.

A 61-yard touchdown run by Ellstrom, of Lehigh, was called back when he stepped out on the Lafayette 37.

Georgia and Auburn Draw at Columbus

Three Tiger Field Goal Attempts Are Wide; First Tie in Series Since 1914.

week they won from Tulane. Today they stopped every threat of one of the south's greatest teams.

FIGHT IT OUT.

Auburn was not unlucky today, nor was Georgia lucky. This was a Georgia team which stood toe to toe and fought it out on even terms. It was not an inspired team, nor was it a flat Auburn team. Both teams were ready; both played good football.

Eighteen thousand people came here today knowing that always out of the great rivalry of Georgia and Auburn comes a fine football game. They saw one. It may be a bit difficult at this late period of the year to stir much enthusiasm about this Georgia team. Yet, in the last analysis the story of this team is one of the most stirring in Georgia's history. Most of the alumni had quit this team and its coach, yet the Georgia students had not quit, and the team had not quit.

Today they met in the little field house, back of the field. They have had a fierce loyalty for Harry Mehre. This afternoon he stood before them and said: "Boys, you know you can do it, and I know you can do it. No one expects you to win this one. We have not got our full strength.

"We are supposed to lose this one, but you go out there and show them you are the fine boys I know you to be."

BILL HARTMAN GREAT.

They did it. Perhaps the story of Georgia's startling upset from the grand old dope is the story of Georgia's captain, Bill Hartman. He averaged not quite 34 yards on his kicks today, but they were kicks that Auburn's safety men couldn't return. Now and then things looked dangerous, but in every crisis, Bill Hartman's foot swung and Auburn was chasing the ball, not returning it.

Georgia had five men to play the whole game today. There was Stooge Davis, Pete Tinsley, Walter Troutman, Bill Hartman and Jimmy Cavan. The Georgia line had the edge today. This was a fighting, skillful team. It never really threatened to score, yet no one of Auburn's three chances came close.

Auburn made 11 first downs and Georgia five. Auburn gained 187 yards and Georgia 112. Twenty-five of Auburn's yards were made through the air. Auburn tried 15 passes and completed three. Georgia none. Their total yardage was leg yardage.

Auburn's first threat came in the second period. The Plainsmen drove to Georgia 23. Georgia broke up three passes and stopped one play with a gain of but three yards.

That was only threat which Auburn tried to score on a p lay or a pass. The next three times saw field goals attempted as a last desperate measure.

The second threat came on the last play of the third period. Fullback Jimmy Fordham, a sophomore, who played brilliant football today, fumbled the ball on a buck at center. Auburn Tackle Bo Russell recovered at the Georgia 29.

Fenton lost a yard. Fenton's second choice was a pass which was incomplete at the goal line. And then Fenton got away on a wide sweeping end. He ran to Georgia's 12. It looked as if Auburn was about to win. Kenmore went around end to score but Sivell had roughed the Georgia player and the play was called back and Auburn penalized 15 yards.

Auburn was still full of fight, Fenton went through tackle for 12 yards, and Kelly in two plays, got 6 to Georgia's 5. There Thorpe tried his first goal. It came closer than did the two following attempts.

All three field goals were tried in the fourth quarter. After the first attempt there was an exchange of kicks and Auburn, in its most serious scoring drive, went from its own 31 to Georgia's 21. The drive was featured by a 22-yard drive by Fenton, then a 19-yard sprint by Kelly on a reverse, and a 11-yard sprint by Fenton on a reverse to Georgia's 18.

FIELD GOAL FAILS.

Kelly and O'Gwynne got only 3 yards in three tries. Walker held the ball and Thorpe tried his second field goal, kicking from the Georgia 23. It was wide.

Georgia took the ball at the Georgia 20. Hartman tried two long passes and then kicked out of bounds at the Auburn 45.

That was the ball game.

Auburn came back and tried another field goal, but Auburn wasn't close. Thorpe tried a triangular kick from the Georgia 32. It was low and wide.

That was all. Georgia had the ball, trying two long passes with Spec Towns, the Olympic champion, in there trying to get down under one. Hartman couldn't hit him and the game was over.

Ahead of Georgia is Tech. And Georgia Tech can't afford to yawn at this one. This Georgia is a fighting team and they will be hard to beat.

Shooters will be classified and those entering the competition will be required to register their scores. Entrance in the prize competition is optional. There will be special awards for high lady shooter, high professional, and best score by shooter under 18 years of age, and best novice score.

Non-members who wish to shoot are welcome to do so, and the grounds are open to visitors and spectators without charge, it was pointed out by the officers. The turkey shoot is a long-established favorite with Atlanta skeet shooters and their families, and a large crowd is expected. Grandstand and office will be comfortably heated, it was announced.

Littlefield Is Star In Cougar Triumph

CORNVALLIS, Ore., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Carl Littlefield's running and Eddie Bayne's passing arm gave Washington State a 7 to 0 victory over Oregon State today in a final Pacific Coast conference football game.

Shortly after the start of the fourth quarter Littlefield, Cougar fullback, went 32 yards through tackle, to the Beaver 18-yard line.

Bayne, halfback, passed 20 yards to Charles Holmes, sub end, standing deep in the end zone, for the touchdown. Halfback Sienko's placekick split the uprights.

Jackets and Bulldogs Renew Keen Grid Rivalry Saturday at Grant Field.

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Vanderbilt's Commodores, victorious over all opponents save Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets, get their chance to change the course of the Crimson Tide when the two clash in Nashville next Thursday afternoon, November 25.

The day is annually designated as Thanksgiving Day by the citizenry of these United States, but the losing team in this game will have little for which to be thankful. Incidentally, the last game lost by Alabama was against Vanderbilt up at Nashville Thanksgiving Day two years ago. Those Tennessee Vols tied the Tide, 0-0, last year, however.

Despite the clash for the crown, the big game for Atlantans and Georgia battle at Grant field on Saturday.

BIG CROWD.

An overflow crowd is expected to be on hand. No matter what these teams accomplish all season, their record is labeled good, or bad, on the outcome of this game.

WILDCATS BEAT OWLS ON PASSES; WYSOCKI STARS

Game Is Biggest Rout in 10 Years of Rivalry Between Schools.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(UP)—Villanova's vaunted Wildcats let loose their aerial circus to crush Temple, 33 to 0, today before 39,000 persons at Temple stadium.

It was the most complete rout ever suffered by either team in their bitter, 10-year rivalry. There was no doubt as to which was the better. The Owls were mastered in every department of the game as Villanova rode rough-shod over a defense which was regarded as one of the strongest in the east.

John Wysocki, Villanova's great All-American end prospect, started the Wildcats on the victory march when he scored on a pass from Stopper in the second period. Alex Bell caught another of Stopper's bullet heaves in the same quarter for the second score.

Stopper came into the scoring column after firing them all afternoon when he grabbed a 15-yard pass from Stoviak and sprinted 20 yards to the Temple goal in the third period.

Commercial Plays Decatur Thursday

Typist Win Will Cause Three-Way Tie for N. G. I. C. Title; Smithies Play Wilson.

By ROY WHITE.

Commercial High and Decatur High, co-holders of the North Georgia Interscholastic conference championship, will battle Thursday morning at Decatur in one of the most important N. G. I. C. games of the year, with a chance at the 1937 championship hanging in the balance.

Griffin and Spalding High, two fine Griffin teams, are unbeaten and untied in the N. G. I. C. ranks and will file a co-claim for the title, should Decatur win, since Decatur has been beaten by Griffin High.

A Commercial victory will leave Commercial, Griffin and Spalding in a three-way tie, each unbeaten and untied in the N. G. I. C.

Thursday's game is not the first Commercial and Decatur have fought for a title, for some five of their former games have been for the crown.

Four other games of particular interest to Atlanta prep fans will be played Thursday, but only Newnan and Russell at East Point will be played here.

Tech High, with both the city and state championships already tucked away, will leave early Wednesday for Portsmouth, Va., where on Thursday the Smithies close their season with Wilson High.

G. M. A. journeys to Bessemer, Ala., for a Thanksgiving game to close its season.

Riverside Military Academy and Monroe Aggies will fight their traditional Turkey Day battle at Gainesville Thursday afternoon. Both are unbeaten and untied within their own ranks, though both have been beaten in higher company.

Forrest Hills Finals Set This Morning

H. O. Davis Jr. will meet Alfred Branch this morning at 10 o'clock to determine the club champion for this year at the Forrest Hills country course.

In addition to this match the club will also hold its usual blind bogey tournament.

Warren Bulldogs Beat Montgomery

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 20. Warren's Bulldogs, of Atlanta, beat the Owls, of Montgomery's Y. M. C. A. league, 6 to 0, here today in a hard-fought battle.

The Bulldogs, who made seven first downs to their opponents' three, scored in the first quarter after taking the ball on the 45-yard line. Bill Fair crossed the goal on an off-tackle play.

A 50-yard drive by the Owls in the second quarter was halted by the strong Atlanta line, featuring Andrews and Roderick. Fair and Laye did most gaining for the visitors.

Sandlot Grid Loop Closes 8th Season

The Rotary Club sandlot football league, composed of 19 teams and over 700 boys, finished it's eighth season yesterday when the East Lake Firecrackers were crowned champions of the 95-pound league.

The Firecrackers and the O'Keefe Panthers battled to a scoreless tie in the championship game. The Firecrackers went through the season undefeated and thus were winners of the league title.

The champions of the other leagues are: 135-pound, Warren Bulldogs; 125-pound, Adair Tigers; 110-pound, the Bonebenders.

dogs, already raising their eyes to the Rose Bowl—victorious over a great Yale team and everything else that had stood in their path—came to Grant Field expecting to stop long enough to engage the Jackets and continue their trip California-ward.

Tech stunned the football world and upset Georgia, blackening their season with a 12-0 loss. The fact that Tech came through next year with the national championship, beating California in the Rose Bowl, 8 to 7, only increased the ferocity of the dual rivalry.

The week's schedule is replete with important conference battles. Every team except little Sewanee engages a traditional foe this week end.

VOLS-WILDCATS.

Up at Lexington, Tennessee's Volunteers tackle Kentucky's Wildcats. Neither has the usual strong team this season, but the important encounters in the past are enough to spice this year's game. Then, too, Kentucky has been a jinx to Tennessee. It will be remembered the Wildcats had a habit of holding the Vols to a tie after the latter would come to this game unbeaten.

Down at Jacksonville, Florida's 'Gators tangle with the Tigers from Alabama Polytechnic Institute, otherwise known as Jack Meagher's Auburn eleven.

ALABAMA ON TOP.

Alabama, now riding the crest of the Southeastern conference gridiron wave, with five victories and three non-conference wins for the season, enjoyed a rest day Saturday in preparation for the titular battle. Vanderbilt did same thing. Maybe the schedule makers foresaw that the conference crown might hinge on this battle.

Last year Alabama won, 14-6. Pre-season ratings this fall had Vanderbilt, with its squad of fleet sophomore backs coming up, figured to take the S. E. C. title.

G.M.A. Is Engaged In Court Practice

Basketball practice was started at G. M. A. during the week end and will continue, on the easy stages until after the annual holiday season. Several candidates from the football team are expected to report after the close of football next week.

Ex-Cripple To Play in Charity Game Thursday

Constitution Staff Photo—Wilson.

Charley Mansour was a hopeless cripple at the Scottish Rite hospital a few years ago. Thursday he will play with the Bullpups against the Jacket freshmen in the annual charity football game at Rose Bowl field. Charley is a living example of what is being accomplished by bone specialists at Scottish Rite with the financial aid derived from sale of tickets to this game. Charley played with Commercial High last year, and now gets his chance to play for the charity fund which aided him. The advance sale of tickets has already passed 6,000, and a sell-out crowd is expected. The two state freshman rivals annually put on a good game, affording fans a preview of next year's varsity luminaries. Charley Mansour's legs are strong now, and he expects to run to the aid of weaker limbs.

CRUSADERS FAIL TO RIP THROUGH SKIBO'S DEFENSE

Dogged Battle Fought in Snowstorm; Osmanski Runs Well.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Undefeated Holy Cross was held to a scoreless tie by Carnegie Tech today in a dogged football battle fought through a snowstorm before 15,000 half frozen spectators.

The visiting Skibos rose up with three great goal line stands to turn back the Crusaders in the first half after Bill Osmanski's running and Ronny Cahill's passing set up scoring chances.

Holy Cross was halted on the four-yard line early in the first quarter after Bill Histen had intercepted a Carnegie lateral. Another overland drive, led by the hard-running Osmanski, was stopped on the 15, but Holy Cross came roaring back with a third charge. The last rally swept the Purple from its 43 across midfield, where Cahill completed three passes in succession, to the six-yard line. But here Jack Lee intercepted a pass near his goal to avert the threat.

Jack Troy's Running Story of Tech-Florida Game

FIRST QUARTER.

FLORIDA FIELD, GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 20.—Those who failed to bring overcoats for the fighting "Gators" homecoming game with Georgia Tech were busily engaged regretting it and turning to other means of keeping warm.

The day was brilliant sunny but a sharp breeze fanned the stadium, making conditions ideal for football. The fans came slowly. But there was promise of at least 15,000 for the game, Tech's first here since 1934.

Florida field is a natural bowl and one of the prettier stadiums. Shrubbery and bright-colored flowers provided a brilliant border for the horseshoe.

Florida people were kidding before the game about installing a "magic eye" camera on the goal lines to avoid any controversy. This "eye in the sky" is being used in Florida dog tracks to decide close finishes.

Tech, however, hoped to punch far enough across the goal in all instances so as to leave no doubt about it.

Coach Alex stuck to his plan of starting a mixture of first and second stringers.

TECH KICKS OFF.

Tech won the toss and elected to kick, defending the north goal. Mayberry made a short return of the kick-off, giving Florida the ball at the 22. On the first play, Mulcahy gained 5. He failed on the next attempt. Then Mayberry punted to Gibson, who returned 19 yards on a nice run to put the ball at the Florida 40.

Gibson went back to pass and Mayberry intercepted it at the 15 and ran back to the 33. Mayberry rammed off tackle for a first down and the ball was at the 43.

Mayberry ran once for a yard and then spun through the line for 9 and another first down at Tech's 47.

Florida tried a long pass but it was knocked down by Crockett. Mayberry then spun through the line and was away for 16 yards before Gibson downed him with a neat tackle. The ball was at the 29. But the 'Gators apparently were stopped. Mayberry was tackled behind the line on an attempted pass by Morgan and Mulcahy failed to gain. Mayberry, trying to pass again, was knocked down for a loss of 6 yards and it was Tech's ball at its own 35.

Gibson quick-kicked when two plays at the line by Gibson and Crockett got only 4 yards, and Mayberry was dropped in his tracks at the Florida 14.

Mayberry got off a dismal 10-yard kick, going out of bounds at the 25.

JACKET ATTACK STOPPED.

Defensive holding gave Tech the ball at the 19 after Sims had gained at the line. Tech tried a trick play, a variation of the end around with Ed Jones passing. But Konemann was covered on the goal line. Sims fired a bullet pass in the end zone, just out of Jones' reach.

The Tech first team had come into the game. Sims lost 3 yards trying to run on fourth down and it was Florida's ball at its 20.

Mayberry, on a spinner, ran 13 yards before the Tech secondary got him.

The quarter ended as Mulcahy was held for no gain.

Tech 0; Florida 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Mayberry got off a nice kick after Mayberry had run 16 yards and other plays had failed. Konemann caught the punt on the run and returned 35 yards to the Florida 36. There was some nice blocking as Konemann reversed his field and sped down the eastern boundary. Blalock made a neat tackle to stop Konemann. He was the only one that could get him. The blockers passed him up and the gain was only two yards. Sims added three on a plunge.

Then Sims fired another pass. Konemann could not get it. Oh, oh, was the cry from the stands as Sims kicked magnificently out of bounds on the Florida one-yard line.

Mayberry got off a good kick back of his goal. Sims returned it 15 to the Florida 32, just about where they had it when Sims kicked.

Tech was penalized five for offside. Tech tried another pass. Konemann threw it. Jordan couldn't get it. Tech again was penalized five yards. That put the ball at the Florida 43.

Jordan made three on an end-around and Konemann followed it up with a 15-yard sprint and a first down at the 21. Sims got three yards around right end. And Konemann got six on a skirt of the same terminal. He was forced out of bounds.

On a driving plunge, Sims made it a first down on the Florida eight.

Sims hit the line again. He was stopped by Krejcier at the five. Sims smacked the line again. He was stopped at the three.

Tech was penalized five yards for something or other. It appeared to have been called for backfield in motion.

FIELD GOAL FAILS.

Konemann lost four. Then Tech, with Sims back, tried for a field foal. It was wide.

So Florida took the ball at the 20.

Evans lost 4 on an attempted end run. Mayberry lost 3 more. That put t' ball at the 13.

Mayberry kicked and Sims fair-caught the ball right in mid-field.

Konemann gained 3 and then passed 4 to Sims. On the play, however, Jordan was put out of the game allegedly for slugging.

Evans came out of the game for Florida. Morgan replaced Jordan and Willis replaced Mullins. Tech was penalized to the 31. Sims kicked and Mayberry was nailed at the 30. There was no return.

Mayberry kicked and Konemann returned 23 yards to the Florida 47.

Sims passed 24 yards to Konemann, who was tackled at the 20. Sims went way back to pass, found no receiver and reversed his field. He made 1 yard. Sims tossed a shovel pass to Crockett. The gain was 4, but there was a penalty. Tech drew 5 more yards for offside.

The ball was at the 24. Sims gained 3 on a plunge and then passed. Mullins intercepted and was knocked down at the 9. Feeling was running high among players on both sides.

Willis raced to the 23 on a reverse. Mayberry gained a yard on a plunge. Willis lost 1, and the half ended.

Tech 0, Florida 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

Tech's first team returned for the second half. Goff kicked off and Sims fumbled. He recovered the ball and returned 8 yards to the 12.

If Florida had been faster in covering the kick-off, there might have been trouble.

Murphy sliced through the line for 12 yards and a first down at the 24. Then Konemann, the Flying Dutchman, skirted right end for 8 yards, Appleby spun off tackle for the first down, putting the ball at Tech's 37.

Sims passed, But Mulcahy was waiting and intercepted the ball at the Florida 40. Mayberry tried to circle left end and lost 6 yards. Smith hit him. Mulcahy lost 3 more on a reverse. It was third and 19 as Mayberry tried to punt. General Wood came knifing through and blocked it at the 21, where it was recovered by Allen Wilcox.

Sims hit the middle for 3. Konemann hit off tackle for 4 more yards. Appleby plunged and barely missed making it a first down. It was fourth and half a yard. Sims plunged and made it a first down at the 10.

SIMS SCORES, POINT WIDE.

Appleby, hit by Lightbown, gained 2 yards. Sims was unable to pass and was tackled for no gain. Appleby ran to the right, reversed and cut back over tackle for 6 yards. Sims hit the line for the touchdown. He needed 2 yards and he made it.

Sims' try for the extra point was wide.

Tech 6, Florida 0.

Sims' kickoff was taken by Mayberry at the 12. He made a great run back of 23 yards to the 35.

Mayberry made three yards on a reverse. Then he kicked out of bounds at the Tech 36.

Walker slashed through and tossed Konemann for a nine-yard loss. Murphy gained back two and Sims faked a kick and ran almost back to his own goal line. He eluded pursuers and passed to Konemann, who gained four yards.

Sims kicked the next time. Mayberry took the ball at the 30 and returned to the 36.

Mayberry was back to pass and he was smothered for a loss of 10 yards.

DUTCH RETURNS 54 YARDS.

Florida players gave him little blocking. Mayberry kicked and Konemann caught it at the 32. And he returned 54 yards on a dazzling run. The ball was at the Florida 14.

Florida reserves were rushed into the game.

Konemann got three yards off right tackle as the quarter ended. The ball was at the 11.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Sims dived over the pile for a gain of 1 more. Crockett fumbled and Florida recovered in a mad scramble.

Mayberry ran off tackle from kick formation. He raced 44 yards to the Tech 47. Captain Fletcher Sims was a heroic figure. He was the only man left. And he knocked Mayberry, the Florida captain, out of bounds.

Mayberry burst through tackle again. He gained 11 yards and a first down at the 33. Murphy was replaced by Ector in the Tech backfield. Mayberry was knocked down by Morgan. He lost 5 yards. Morgan hit Mayberry hard again and he fumbled. Wilcox recovered the ball at the Forida 47.

Appleby smashed the line for 8 yards. Captain Sims hit a stone wall. The gain was 2 and a first down at the 37.

Sims faked a pass and ran 7 yards off left tackle.

Sims passed to Konemann in the flat, and the Flying Dutchman raced down the sidelines for 30 yards and the second touchdown. He got nice blocking and did some neat weaving on his own. Sims' kick again was wide.

Tech 12; Florida 0.

Sims kicked off to Mullins who returned 25 yards to the Florida 47. Mayberry passed twice incomplete and then connected with Walker for a first down at Tech's 39. Mullins gained four off tackle. Both sides were offside.

Florida called time out. Willis ran off tackle for a first down but both teams were again offside, the officials decreed. The crowd booed.

MAYBERRY LOSES 26.

Mayberry fumbled and recovered for a loss of five yards. And then Willis went back to pass. He was thrown for a loss of 26 yards, putting the ball at the Florida 31.

Mayberry ran half across the field for no gain. He kicked to Sims, who lateraled to Appleby. Appleby made a neat pickup of the ball which was low and ran 17 yards to the Florida 33.

Sims ran around in his own backfield dodging 'Gator players and then passed to Appleby into the flat. The gain was 13 yards to the Florida 18.

Gibson replaced Konemann. Gibson passed right into Sims' hands. He dropped it, Gibson fumbled the snap, recovered and was thrown for a loss of 11 yards by Walker.

Sims kicked for the boundary, got a bad bounce and the ball went over the goal. Florida took it at the 20.

On a fake kick, Willis gained four yards. Mayberry kicked. The ball was downed at the Tech 44.

Beard replaced Chivington in the Tech line.

Tech was penalized five for offside.

Gibson and Ector gained five between them. Then Ector plunged for a yard as the game ended almost in mid-field.

Tech 12; Florida 0.

Ralph McGill's Running Story of Auburn-Georgia Battle

FIRST QUARTER.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 20.—There was a bright sun, a cold wind and 18,000 spectators in the Memorial stadium as Georgia and Auburn made ready for their forty-second football game.

Auburn wore orange jersies, Georgia a brilliant red.

Captain Bill Hartman won the toss. And Georgia came out fast from a huddle from the bench and lined up to receive.

Russell kicked off to Fordham who returned 9 and was downed on the Georgia 8. Hunnicutt was smothered at righ tackle. Fordham lost 2 at right end. Hartman kicked to Fenton on Georgia's 48. Auburn had the ball and a first down at the Georgia 48. Two plays got 6 yards. Sitz got 2 yards at right tackle. Fenton took deliberate aim and kicked out of bounds at the Georgia 4. The pressure was on the Bulldogs.

From kick formation, with Hartman back, Georgia tried a trick play. Fordham ran 41 yards off right tackle, giving Georgia the ball at the 45. It was a brilliant run and at least six tacklers missed him. The play took the pressure off Georgia. Two plays at right tackle got 4 yards.

HARTMAN LOSES.

On third down Hartman tried a run from kick formation and lost 2 yards. Harrison got him. Hartman came right back with a kick over the Auburn goal, the ball was almost deaded on the 1-foot line.

It was Auburn's ball at the Auburn 20. On a half-spinner, Fenton got 5 yards. On third down, Fenton kicked out of bounds on Georgia's 39. The Bulldog defense was very alert. So was Auburn's. The Bullogs failed in two plays at the line and Hartman kicked to the Auburn 24-yard line. Fenton made 11 yards at left end but Auburn was penalized 15 for holding and the ball was at Auburn's 4. Fenton kicked out of bounds on Auburn's 44 and Georgia at last had gained an advantage. The ball was in scoring territory.

The advantage was short-lived. Kelly intercepted Hunnicutt's pass and it was Auburn's ball at the Auburn 34. Kelly came off right tackle for 6 yards. Kelly was knocked down at right end for a loss of a half yard. Maffett got him. Fenton kicked to Cavan who returned 5 to the Georgia 28. Fordham got 2 off right tackle. Cavan was stopped at left end. Hartman, back to kick, was rushed and ran with the ball, getting 4 yards at left end.

Hartman kicked to the Auburn 2-yard line. There was an argument. The play was called back and Auburn penalized 15 yards for holding. It was a dubious decision by the Georgia team.

Hunnicutt, on a half-spinner, came back through for center for 12 yards and the first down of the game. Cavan failed at right tackle. Hunnicutt came off left tackle for 4 yards. Hunnicutt went off left tackle for 2 yards, as the quarter ended.

Georgia 0; Auburn 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

It was Georgia's ball, fourth down at the Auburn's 34.

Hartman kicked to the Auburn 11 where Maffett grounded the ball. On the second play Fenton came off right tackle for first down at the Auburn 21. Both secondary defenses were playing a tight game. Fenton and Heath got 3 yards in two tries.

A pass, Kelly to Fenton, got 5 yards. Fenton kicked to Cavan, who stepped out of bounds on his own 44-yard line.

Fordham went 17 yards off right tackle but Georgia was offside and penalized 5 yards. On the same play Fordham lateralled to Cavan but the play failed to gain.

The officials had an argument. They got out of it the easy way, by ruling both teams offside. Hartman kicked to Kelly, who returned 8 to the Auburn 37. An Auburn pass was intercepted by Jimmy Cavan at the Georgia 47.

Georgia seemed to have the jump on a slow Auburn team.

PASS FAILS.

A pass by Mims was no good. On third down Fordham, on a full spinner, came off left tackle for 5 yards. Hartman kicked out of bounds on the Auburn 1-yard line. It was a brilliant kick and for a time the officials appeared not to be sure.

Fenton promptly kicked out the danger zone. Cavan returned 7 to the Auburn 43. This was the second time Georgia had been in Auburn territory. Lumpkin went in at center for Georgia.

Mims came off right tackle for 13 yards and Georgia's second first down. Mims' pass to Maffett was then complete. Cavan got 4 yards at left end. Georgia was looking surprisingly good. Hartman, in punt formation, attempted to pass to Eldredge which was incompleted at the goal line, and Auburn took the ball at the Auburn 25.

Fenton kicked on first down and caught Georgia unprepared. The kick went 60 yards to the Georgia 15. Hartman, running from kick formation, got a yard at left end. Hartman kicked out of bounds at the Georgia 42. He was rushed and the kick was almost blocked. It gave Auburn the first opportunity of the game.

GEORGIA SUBSTITUTES.

Georgia substituted Bagett for Haygood, Towns for Maffett, and Hunnicutt for Mims. Kenmore failed at right guard. A pass, Fenton to Whatley, gave Auburn 9 yards and a first down at the Georgia 28. A pass was no good. Fenton got 4 yards at left end. It was third down and 6. Fenton's pass was incomplete to Whatley at right end.

Auburn had one more chance left in the first Auburn threat. It was a pass and Heath could not quite reach it. Georgia took the ball at the Georgia 23.

The Georgia team was making a brilliant defense game of it. It was not game enough to let Auburn relax. As a matter of fact, Georgia had an edge in the first half.

Fordham got 6 at right tackle but on second down Hunnicutt lost 11 yards trying to pass as the half ended.

Georgia had upset the dope, at least at the first half. The Auburn team appeared to be pretty well stopped. Harry Mehre had prepared his team well for the game.

Georgia 0, Auburn 0.

THIRD QUARTER.

Hartman took the second half kickoff and ran it back to the Georgia 32. Auburn held for two plays. But Fordham lashed through right tackle for ten and a first down at the 42. The Auburn line braced and Hartman kicked to the Auburn 35.

Sitz of Auburn came around right end for 14 yards on third down for a first down at Georgia 46. Georgia held and Fenton kicked over the Georgia goal.

Two line plays netted Georgia five, and then Hartman kicked out of bounds on his own 35. There was a break for Auburn and gave the Plainsmen their second real scoring chance of the day. On third down Bill Hartman intercepted Fenton's pass and ran it back to the Georgia 35. Hartman and Hunnicutt got five in two tries, and then Hartman kicked to the Auburn 24.

Fenton, Kenmore and Sitz made a first down at the Auburn 38. Kenmore then passed to Fenton for six yards. Sitz went off tackle for a first down at the 48. Three passes were incomplete and Fenton kicked out of bounds at the Georgia 32.

Hunnicutt lost two yards. On second down Hartman fumbled, and Russell, Auburn star tackle, recovered at the Georgia 29, as the quarter ended.

Georgia 0; Auburn 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Fenton lost 1 yard on the first play of the last quarter. A long pass, Kenmore to Whatley, had the crowd standing up, but Whatley dropped the ball at the goal line.

Auburn caught Georgia flat and ran 18 yards to the Georgia 12. Georgia was expecting a second pass, and Fenton ran around left end.

Kenmore carried the ball around right end for a touchdown, but the play was called back and Auburn penalized 15 yards for holding on the play. The ball was on the Georgia 23. Milner went into center for Georgia. Kelly replaced Kenmore in the Auburn backfield.

HAYGOOD HURT.

On a reverse play Fenton came 12 yards off left tackle making a brilliant run. Kelly got 2 at right tackle, the Georgia team took time out. Haygood was hurt on the play and had to be carried off the field.

He apparently was unconscious and the blood was running out his nose as they brought him to the bench. Kelly made 4 yards, putting the ball on the Georgia 5.

Auburn decided on a try at a field goal. Thorpe, a guard, came back to kick; Walker, a quarterback, held the ball. Thorpe's kick was low and to the left of the goal post, and Georgia took the ball on Georgia's 20.

GEORGIA HOLDS.

Hartman's brilliant kick went out of bounds on the Auburn 31. It was a 43-yard kick. Auburn took out time. The Georgia team had stopped everything Auburn had.

Kelly came off right tackle for 10 and Auburn was called back and penalized for off-side. The daring Fenton came around left end for a full 22 yards to the Georgia 49. Walker, the quarterback, did some excellent blocking to clear the way.

A pass was no good. On a reverse Fenton handed the ball to Kelly and the Irishman ran 19 yards off right tackle to Georgia 30.

Kelly got a yard at right tackle. On a reverse Fenton went 11 yards around left end.

The ball was at the Georgia 18. Eldredge came in for Gillespie.

O'Gwynne came in for Fenton in the Auburn line.

The Georgia line spilled Kelly after a 2-yard gain at right end. Milner made the tackle. O'Gwynne failed to gain at left end at a brilliantly executed play. The line stopped him. Kelly got a yard at right. It was fourth down and 7 to go.

The ball was squarely in front of the goal post and Auburn elected another field goal attempt.

KICK NO GOOD.

Thorpe was back again and kick went far to the right and was not even close. Georgia took the ball at the Georgia 20. Auburn's first drive reached the 5-yard line. The second stopped at the 15. Hitchcock replaced Kelly in the Auburn backfield. Smith came in for Walker.

Spec Towns replaced Maffett in the Georgia lineup. Hartman kicked out of bounds on the Au-b 45. Auburn had a scoring chance left. O'Gwynne got a yard in left end. The time was running out and the spectators looked for something. Hitchcock could find no receiver and ran with the ball for 11 yards to Georgia 33.

Sitz failed to gain.

O'Gwynne came off left tackle for six yards. Hitchcock tried to pass to Smith but it was no good. It was fourth down and five. Auburn tried another field goal, the ball was at the 38 and Thorpe was back at the 48 and trying for a kick. Davis came running off the bench to replace Smith at quarterback and he called another signal. The place-kick try was out.

Hitchcock ran 8 yards at right end, but the play was called back and Georgia was penalized 15 yards for holding. The ball was at the Georgia 23. Thorpe came back to try a field goal and his try again was wide.

Georgia had the ball at the 20. Georgia tried two passes, Hartman throwing both of them and the game ended after the second pass. Georgia scored a surprising upset.

Auburn 0; Georgia 0.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Stocks did a fast about-face in today's market and leaders retrieved 1 to more than 3 points of their sharp losses of Friday.

The come-back was in the face of still cloudy business trends, continuing labor difficulties and doubts regarding the ability of congress to revise much-disputed tax laws at the present special session.

Brokers attributed the upward reversal partly to quick-turn buying by those who believed yesterday's relapse called for at least a moderate rally. Considerable short covering was also reported by traders who wished to lighten up on positions over the week end. The "shorts" in the majority of cases were penalized by the extreme "thinness" of the market.

Many active issues fell to new low territory for more than two years at the opening, but bids began to come in at higher levels and the list generally held to the upgrade from then on. The ticker tape was late on the initial sell-off.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 1.1 points at 44.3. There was a set-back of 2.7 points the previous day. Transfers amounted to 1,232,100 shares, against 509,500 last Saturday. It was the largest two-hour volume since October 23.

Steels went ahead despite estimates of another substantial recession in mill operations next week.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The wheat market wiped out its week's losses today with a sharp 3 cents a bushel advance in the final hour based on a report that frost in an important Argentina wheat producing area was more damaged than expected. Most of the gain was held.

Prices tilted upward from the start, rising about a cent in early trading as a result largely of rallies in stocks and more active business in North American wheat for export overnight. Later a report from R. O. Cromwell, a Chicago expert now in Argentina, said his survey of southern Buenos Aires province disclosed heavy frost loss. He estimated the Argentine crop at 185 to 195 million bushels.

Much of wheat's early strength resulted from what traders called an oversold pit condition together with quiet commission house buying that developed short covering on the upturn. Liverpool closed 1 to 1 1-2 lower, a smaller decline than expected.

The mill is still a feature of the German landscape, since there are 18,500 water mills and 4,500 windmills there, besides 7,000 mills operated by motor power.

Dullness Distinguishes Stock Dips Rather Than Weakness in General

Important Gain in Past Week Is Administration's Will To Change Conditions Which Appear To Restrict Business, Says Financial Writer.

By CHARLES F. SPEARE.

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—The business world today feels itself to be in the position of a man who, having fallen off a ship and having had a life buoy thrown to him, is fearful that he may be devoured by sharks before the rescuing party arrives.

The rescuers of business are on the way. That is apparent from every administration announcement that has come from Washington in the past week and from the attitude of sections of congress, now more concerned with repeal and revision of restrictive laws than with new legislation.

Progress in Tax Reform.

Actual progress has been made in committee in tax reform. The practical, and, even more, the sentimental barriers to business initiative erected in the undistributed profits tax are being recognized. It is doubtful if repeal of this law will occur. However, concessions that will advantage the majority of those on whom it imposes restraint are in a fair way of being granted by congress.

Similarly, the modifications proposed in the capital gains tax should improve the temper of those on whom it is alleged to have inflicted great nardships and should establish more equilibrium in security markets in periods similar to those of 1929 and 1936

There is no section of the American business world more impatient over delays that affect its field of values than Wall Street. Its barometer is the stock market, and when this does not register "fair" after clouds that had been hanging over it are dispelled, it anticipates trouble. It could not have been expected that the spirit of conciliation, written into President Roosevelt's message to congress, could immediately produce increased iron and steel output, larger car loadings, more active manufacture of automobiles, or an expansion in electric power output. The important gain is the will by the administration to change conditions that appear to restrict business.

I. C. C. Must Move Slowly.

Take, for instance, the three situations out of which substantial expansion in the capital goods industry might occur; namely, the railroads, the public utilities and building construction.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, like all other government agencies, is frightened by the scope and intensity of the business recession. It is disposed to grant the carriers an increase in rates to prevent further insolvency and to promote buying and employment.

It cannot, however, out of hand, declare the 15 per cent advance applied for. There is a certain amount of formality that must be observed in its hearings, whatever the alleged crisis.

Would it be irregular for the I. C. C., in this emergency, to make a preliminary announcement, restating its sympathy with the railroads' position and that they are entitled to higher rates, as it did so positively when it granted the increases in commodity rates last month, but deferring, until after a reasonable review of testimony, announcement of the actual increase allowed? This would give the railroads a life line to which they could cling.

Ailment Is Mental.

The utilities industry is sick, however, but mentally, rather than physically. It feels that it has been browbreaten and bullied by representatives of the government.

This situation seems the easiest of the three to correct. It chiefly involves agreement by the administration to administer the holding company act on the basis of future commitments and not to apply regulation to contracts made prior to the act, and a fair arrangement with respect to generation and distribution of power at federal power plants.

It is not thought that any great difficulty would be involved in adjusting the minds of federal authorities with those of the power company executives on the relative merits of "prudent cost" and "reproduction cost," as the dollar difference between the two, applied to the entire industry, is only from 5 to 10 per cent.

Under Feasible Plan.

The fact that this has been raised and several times has not realized the hope held out for it at once discounts its effectiveness. It may, however, in the present crisis, and with the spirit of concession more positive, be made to work. Under any feasible plan, the government will be compelled to play a practical part, either as a leader or as a guarantor of money required in building operations.

In view of promises held out in these several situations, it is urged on the castaways that they cling to their life buoys, for they may discover that what, in their fear, they took to be sharks were only playful porpoises.

The securities markets this week have been distinguished by dullness rather than by general weakness. The public has again abandoned them to the professional elements. Corporation statements up to the end of October make a showing much better than the known facts of recession in the heavy industries would suggest.

The most difficult of all of the problems facing the administration is that of relief. It is one whose proportions could not have been estimated two months ago and whose requirements are likely to cause a treasury deficit this fiscal year nearer $1,000,000,000 than $650,000,000.

COTTON CLASSED

53 Per Cent Is White Middling or Better.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that 53 per cent of the cotton which has been classed this season was of white middling quality or better.

However, only 37 per cent of that classed during the past week was of that grade or better, the bureau reported. Of the week's total classified, 38 per cent was 1-inch or longer in staple length compared with 34 per cent for the season.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The market is now in the process of testing the lows of panic Tuesday and we would, therefore, not make any fresh commitments for the immediate present, being content to await clarification of the political picture and some indication of a market trend.

BEER & CO.—Saturday's rally was a normal technical development, following five days of decline. Market badly in need of constructive news to stem the tide of fear psychology.

FENNER & BEANE—The early part of the new week should provide more conclusive evidence, but the development of a news background conducive to a sustained recovery appears less probable.

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—It is unlikely that any further price depressing news can possibly develop. Therefore, cotton should now be on an investment basis for the long pull.

BEER & CO.—We anticipate narrow markets to continue for the time being and would buy on dips.

FENNER & BEANE—We do not look for much immediate change in the market, but believe adherence to the buying side will pr

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling f. o. b., 8.45.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Cotton rallied today on further covering in December and owing to a recovery in the stock market. March sold up from 7.74 to 7.87, and closed at 7.86. Final prices were 5 to 10 points net higher.

The market opened 2 to 4 points lower. After prices had eased a point or so further from initial levels, they turned steadier. Spot houses were active buyers in the near month and readily absorbed the additional December liquidation. Toward the close the best prices for the day were touched.

The discounts on the deliveries ranging from December through next May narrowed under those of July and October in today's trading. This was attributed to a theory that large quantities of cotton would ultimately go into the loan and account for a comparatively tight near-month situation.

Foreign orders were on both sides of the market in small quantities. Cotton goods sales for the week were estimated as equal to about one day's production.

COUNTY ON SWIFT PROGRESS MARCH FOR OVER CENTURY

Treaty With Indians Signed at Indian Springs, Ga., January 8, 1821; County of DeKalb Was Created in 1822.

CANDLER RECALLS INTERESTING FACTS

Decatur Made County Seat in 1823; Was First Governed by a Commission of Five Local Men.

By MURPHY CANDLER JR.

The histories of many peoples are often a recital of wars and strifes with the attendant sufferings and hardships. Happily such is not the fact in the life of DeKalb county. Save for the tragic interlude in the 1860s, the history of the county presents a moving panorama of peaceful progress. This progress, though interspersed with setbacks, failures and disappointments, especially in the early days, has been steady and sound.

The early settlers were a hardy lot, comprised of families from Virginia and the Carolinas. Most of them were poor, not highly educated, but industrious and temperate. No large plantations were here then or since, as were found in other states or in parts of Georgia.

The territory now known as DeKalb county was once a part of a vast area lying east of the Chattahoochee river, claimed by the Creek and Cherokee Indians. The federal government in 1802 agreed to extinguish the title to this area held by the Indians and to remove the tribes to lands west of the Mississippi river. Despite continued pressure by the state upon the government, notably by Governors Troupe and Gilmer, this agreement was not fulfilled until 1821.

Treaty with Indians.

On January 8, 1821, a treaty was entered into at Indian Springs, Georgia, by which this territory was freed from the claims of the Creek nation. This was accomplished through the somewhat dubious patriotism of William McIntosh. We of today would look upon the actions of McIntosh as treason, but for the purposes of the settlers it was perfectly in order.

On December 9, 1822, the General Assembly created the County of DeKalb. It was carved almost entirely from Henry county but small portions came from Fayette and Gwinnett counties. It was named for Baron DeKalb, a native German, who was allied with the French and who rendered valuable aid to the American colonists in the Revolutionary War.

With a few minor changes affecting only small areas, the territory thus named DeKalb county remained the same until December 20, 1853, when the western side was cut off and the new county of Fulton created.

In 1822 the population was approximately 2,200. The first census was taken in 1824 with a population of 3,569.

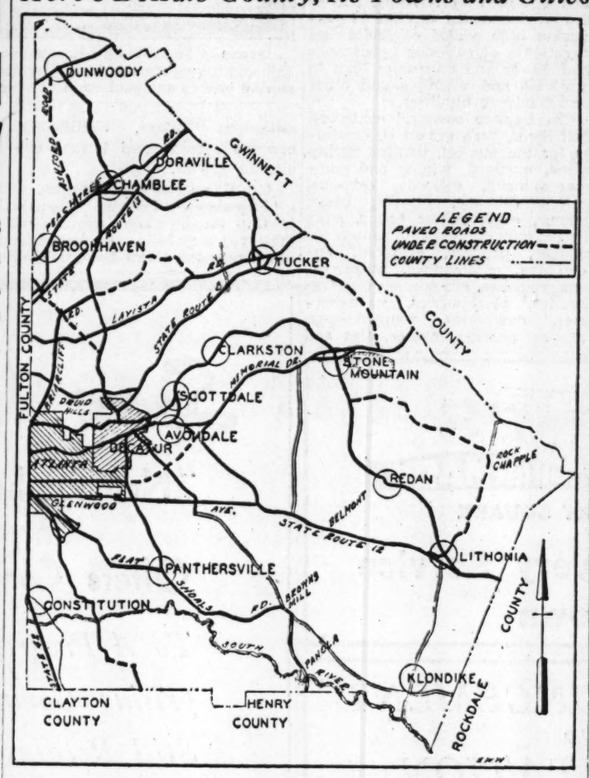

From the time of its creation until July 28, 1823, there was no county seat. The courts and all elections were held in the residence of William Jackson on McDonough road, now Candler road.

Made County Seat.

On the last named date, however, commissioners who had been appointed by the legislature on December 22, 1822, to select the

DECATUR A CITY OF FINE CHURCHES

Including Its Suburbs There Are Churches of Various Denominations.

By DR. D. P. McGEACHY.

Of course, Decatur is a town of homes and schools—but it is that because it is also a town of churches. The history of our churches goes back to the day when Decatur was founded and the progress of the town and the progress of the churches is one story. Doubtless other articles in this series will bring out the fact that our schools grew out of our churches.

Dr. Wilson, who was one of our pioneer ministers over 100 years ago, built a school where he built a church, and it is well known that Agnes Scott College came into being as one of our old-time pastors conferred with his church officers. It is then no idle boast to say that Decatur is a town of churches, of schools, and of homes. These three can never be rightly separated.

Oldest Organizations.

The First Methodist and the Decatur Presbyterian are the oldest organizations in our religious life. These two with the First Baptist are almost in the heart of the town. They are also the largest congregations, although some of the younger churches are running the pioneers a close second. Decatur Presbyterian was organized by Dr. John S. Wilson in 1825. Some years later this church began a mission in what is now Atlanta, and as Atlanta grew it really came about that Dr. Wilson died as pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Atlanta. The Decatur church has an oil portrait of Dr. Wilson as a young man, while Atlanta First has a portrait of him as an old man with a patriarchal beard.

Our First Methodist church is our largest church numerically. It is located at the corner of Sycamore and Barry streets, while the Decatur Presbyterian is situated on Sycamore and Church streets. Only a block away is the First Baptist on Church street and Trinity place. This congregation was organized in 1861. Dr. A. J. Mon-

DECATUR BOASTS FOUR COLLEGES

Citizens of DeKalb County Justly Proud of Its Educational Advantages

By MAUD M. BURRUS.

Decatur and DeKalb county citizens are justly proud of their educational advantages.

From the county's granite quarries and proud Georgia's mountains of pink marble have come many of the imposing buildings through whose doors march thousands of boys and girls each year.

In support of new world interests and problems these schools are alive to the importance of many approved progressive changes in curricula.

Emery University, Oglethorpe University and the Columbia Theological Seminary are located in DeKalb county. These institutions are identified with early history in the south and through their present standards are adding glory to their records.

Agnes Scott College, established in 1889, occupies a magnificent site in the heart of Decatur. It ranks high as an "A" college.

HANDSOME LIBRARY FOR AGNES SCOTT

The new Andrew Carnegie library building is the most recent addition to Agnes Scott College plant. It is named in honor of Andrew Carnegie, who provided personally the funds for the Agnes Scott library building.

Iti s constructed of brick and Indiana limestone with graded tile roof, and belongs in style of architecture to the modern Gothic type.

This library building has created a great deal of favorable comment throughout the United States and scores of requests have come for building details. Two requests for these have come from Europe.

There are two very large reading rooms. The one on the first floor is large and lofty, finished with light woodwork, furnished with easy chairs and davenports in light blue and red upholstery. The informality of the room is emphasized in the use of floor lamps, individual study desks, alcoves and a great stone fireplace.

MEN OF DECATUR GROUP TOGETHER IN STRONG CLUBS

Civic and Fraternal Organizations Have Done Much for Community.

By ALFRED KUETNER.

Decatur citizens, long known as a home-loving, public spirited type of people, bound closely to family, religion and education ties, are also recognized for their serious attention to obligations of civic nature.

Pride in community and desire for its future growth has prompted the organization of numerous civic and semi-civic clubs in the city, the functions having always been directed toward the civic and cultural advancement of the city and its people.

Two strictly service clubs, the Civitan and Lions clubs, have come into prominence in many activities in the community since their organization several years ago. The Elks Club, while in itself a fraternal order, invades the field of local civic activity in its program, and has already become recognized during the short period of time since its organization for its civic-minded atttitude.

In the membership rosters of the various clubs will be found many of the leading figures in the civic, cultural, educational and religious life of the community.

LODGE OF ELKS.

Decatur Lodge of Elks No. 1602, was established on October 13, 1936. It began its operations with a membership of 89 of Decatur's live business and professional men. Since that date its membership has grown to more than 204 active members, who have dedicated themselves to the accomplishment of many good purposes for Decatur, first among which is the work of charity, which is an outstanding feature with Elks.

Although a new lodge in Decatur, this live organization has never failed when called upon for civic or charity work, and its members are very enthusiastic over their plans for Christmas charity. Already they have planned a big charity ball to be given at Druid Hills Golf Club, Tuesday, November 23, the purpose of which is to raise funds that Christmas baskets may be filled.

Some of the most outstanding citizens of Decatur are members of this lodge, and among its chief and enthusiastic workers is Jake Hall, sheriff of the county, who is chairman of the charity ball.

The lodge has fitted up its headquarters adjoining the Candler hotel, where its recreation rooms are well furnished and

County Extends Its Library Service

The Decatur public library extended its service this year to the school children of DeKalb county through appropriations made for that purpose.

Hundreds of boys and girls enjoyed the vacation reading programs during the past summer. Books in units of 100 were placed in different parts of the county under sponsorship of P.-T. A. workers.

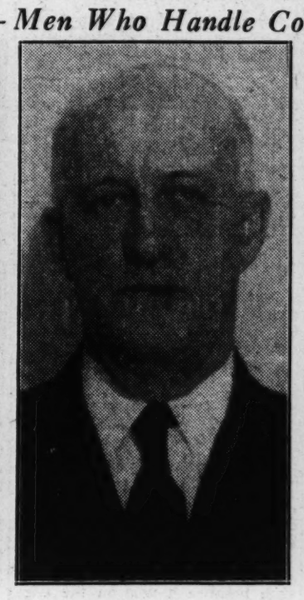

Yearly circulation has increased steadily as the Decatur library has grown in books and service during the past 12 years.

Fifteen hundred books have been added to the shelves in 1937, with a total circulation of approximately 50,000. Federal assistance through NYA and WPA has helped the librarian through the most successful year in the library's history.

Quarry Industry A Big Factor In DeKalb

The cutting of stone from the numerous rock bodies in DeKalb county constitute one of the largest—if not the largest—industries in the county.

There are in this section around Stone Mountain and Lithonia no less than 25 different quarries, all of them operating from time to time, and for many years more than a thousand workmen have been regularly engaged in them. The pay rolls of these united quarries brings to the county and surrounding sections many hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Building stone from DeKalb's quarries is shipped to points all over the United States. It is well known and recognized as a superior quality of building stone.

It is generally conceded that the investment represented in the combined quarries of the county will reach fully $10,000,000. And that doesn't take into account the value of the millions of tons of stone that is banked along this rock ridge. Hardly a start has been made toward exhausting the supply.

The combined value and output of the various plants makes of this industry perhaps the largest taxpayer of any industry in the county.

THE JUNIOR SERVICE LEAGUE OF DECATUR

The Junior Service League of Decatur was organized in 1934, its first president being English McGeachy. Mrs. J. M. Alsobrook is its present president.

The projects for the current year include work at the Scottish Rite hospital, story-telling hour at the Decatur Public Library, sponsoring colored nursery school, and participation in all philanthropic and patriotic projects for the city.

Interesting Facts About DeKalb County Schools

DeKalb county school property has a total value of $1,054,250.

Listed in this inventory are eight high schools, one junior high school, 22 elementary schools.

Including federal aid the county has spent $350,000 on new buildings and additions to older ones. These buildings are equipped with gymnasiums, each featuring stage, curtains and opera chairs in most instances, and are used as community centers.

In course of construction are three federal projects which include the high school at Avondale, two elementary schools in the county, and school for colored children at Lithonia.

Total enrollment for current year is white, 7,500; colored, 1,500. This is an increase of 300 students over 1936. There are 253 teachers in DeKalb county system.

Agnes Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, meets on the second Friday of each month in the chapter's home on Avery street. This early American house was erected several years ago on a lot presented to the chapter by Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Fulton.

The Agnes Lee Chapter was organized 40 years ago and among its early presidents were Mrs. Rebecca Green, Mrs. Albert Cox and Mrs. Murphy Candler. At this time Mrs. H. B. Carreker is president.

DECATUR IN HANDS OF CITY MANAGER

Five Commissioners Aid Keeping City on Pay-As-You-Go Financial Plan.

The ideal city is one in which its citizens may live together in an environment that assures peace, comfort and safety, and a wholesome atmosphere of culture, refinement and happiness.

The city of Decatur meets all of these requirements. Known for years throughout the state of Georgia as a city of homes, it offers almost everything that makes for that quiet comfort so desirable for home life; at the same time its nearness to the metropolitan life of the city of Atlanta, the corporate limits of which touch Decatur on the south and west, supplies the need of large shopping districts and entertainment not found in the average small city.

Trolley and Bus Service.

Decatur, located on the Georgia railroad, is connected with Atlanta by two local trolley lines, one interurban line and several paved boulevards.

The principal highways leading to the east and northeast pass through Decatur, and it is also served by several of the through bus lines, making interstate bus service to all points available directly from Decatur.

The religious, educational and business advantages of Decatur are fully covered in other articles in this edition of The Constitution and will, therefore, not be elaborated upon here.

Oldest Town in County.

Decatur is the oldest town in the county, having been incorporated under an act of the general assembly approved December 10, 1823, with Reuben Cone, William Morris, William Gresham, James White and Thomas A. Dobbs named as the first commissioners to govern the town.

It will thus be noted that the original town government was the commission form, though later the mayor-and-council form was in force for many years. However, in 1921 the commission-city manager form of government was adopted and under this set-up the city has grown to its present position in municipal affairs, and has been pointed out by recognized authorities as one of the best governed and managed in the state of Georgia.

Five City Commissioners.

The city commission consists of five members elected by the people

Commissioner of Roads and Revenues Handles Practically All County Business and Supervises the Police Department.

A. C. MATTHEWS IS NOW COMMISSIONER

DeKalb Embraces Approximately 272 Square Miles; County Is in Good Financial Shape.

DeKalb county has had almost every form of county government in the past 50 years, but for the last 30 years it has operated under a one-commissioner form of government, which has been found very satisfactory.

The duties of the commissioner, of course, are set out in the Georgia code by the state legislature, being an executive office from which practically all the operations of the county have to pass through the hands of the commissioner. The public works department, including all purchases for the county, is handled through the commissioner's office. The police department is also directly under the commissioner's supervision.

The present commissioner is C. A. Matthews, who has served for the past eight years.

DeKalb county is in as good financial condition as any county in the state, having operated on a cash basis for the past several years, thereby being able to assure the citizens and taxpayers an absolute 100 per cent value for each dollar of tax money collected.

All elected officers of DeKalb county are on a salary basis, and it has as high-class officers as any county in the state.

272 Square Miles.

DeKalb county contains approximately 272 square miles and is divided into 18 militia districts.

Real and personal property returned for taxation for the year 1936 amounted to $33,087,135, while property assessed by the comptroller general of the state of Georgia for franchise taxes against public utilities located in DeKalb county, amounted to $3,044,236. The rate of taxation under the levies ordered by the commissioner covering all purposes for 1936 was $1.25 per $100 of assessed valuation of taxable property.

The last census reading, in 1930, showed a population of 70,278. The following towns are in DeKalb county: Decatur, Clarkston, Stone Mountain, Lithonia, Redan, Tucker, Dunwoody, Doraville, Chamblee, Brookhaven, Avondale Estates, Oglethorpe, Emory University, and a part of the city of Atlanta.

High-Class Convict Camp.

DeKalb was one of the first counties in the state to build a high-class up-to-date convict camp, where its prisoners are really treated like human beings. In connection with this camp, it has one of the best-equipped hospitals

COUNTY SHOWING PROGRESS MARCH

site of a county seat made their report. Their selection was in land lot 246 of the 18th district of the county, which is the present site of Decatur. It was accordingly ordered that all public business should be held and done at the town of Decatur on and after the first Tuesday in September, 1823.

Decatur, which was the first settlement, was incorporated December 10, 1823.

The form of government first adopted was under a commission of five men. Years later this was changed to the mayor and councilmanic form but nearly a century later reverted to its original commission form.

First Courthouse in 1823.

The first courthouse was erected of rough hewn logs in 1823 on the north side of the present square. It was supplanted in 1829 by a small brick building which burned in 1842. Until 1847 the county was without a courthouse when a new one was erected which stood until 1898, when it was replaced by a larger structure. This fourth building completed in 1900 was destroyed by fire on September 13, 1916 and the present building was erected.

The county has had three jails. The first was a small log affair which was used for about 25 years. On January 2, 1849, the second jail was erected on the present jail site. The present structure is the third.

For 10 years, 1845 to 1855, the supreme court of Georgia held half of its sessions in DeKalb county. During that period the court alternated its place of meetings between Decatur and Macon.

The town of New Gibraltar was next created in 1839 but on December 24, 1847, its name was changed to Stone Mountain.

On December 23, 1843 the town of Marthasville was incorporated. Previously this settlement had been known as Terminus. Later the name, Marthasville was changed to Atlanta.

Other Towns Incorporated.

Lithonia was incorporated March 5, 1856 and was so named from the Greek word Lithos, meaning stone. This incorporation was followed by that of Doraville on December 15, 1871, for Dora Jack, a daughter of an official of Atlanta and Charlotte Airline, now a part of the Southern Railway System.

Clarkston was incorporated December 12, 1882 and named for Colonel W. W. Clark, a leading attorney of Covington.

Edgewood was incorporated December 9, 1898, and was named such because it was on the edge of the city of Atlanta.

Kirkwood came into being December 20, 1899, and took its name in honor of James H. Kirkpatrick, a pioneer citizen of the county. John B. Gordon and Alfred H. Colquitt, both of whom were both governor and senator, lived here.

Chamblee was founded August 17, 1908. The Postoffice Department selected the name from one of the petitioners named Chamblee.

Oakhurst Joins Decatur.

Oakhurst, now a part of Decatur, was incorporated April 19, 1909, by the superior court and reincorporated August 13, 1910, under an act of the general assembly. It was so named because of the beautiful oak trees in its territory.

East Lake incorporated August 16, 1910, was named such because it was east of Atlanta and the most picturesque part centered about the lake of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Redan, Dunwoody, Ingleside, Scottsdale and Tucker, though thriving communities, were never incorporated.

Avondale Estates, the youngest town in DeKalb county, was incorporated only in recent years.

DeKalb county's citizens have taken prominent parts in five wars, the Creek Indian War, in 1835; the Mexican War, the War Between the States, the Spanish-American War and the World War. Space does not permit any elaboration of these statements.

Outstanding Men.

The county has furnished to the state and nation many outstanding men, both in war and peace. Six members of the national house of representatives have come from her borders, Jesse J. Cleveland, Charles, Murphey, Milton A. Candler, William Schley Howard, Leslie Steele and Robert Ramspeck. It gave the state two United States senators, John B. Gordon and Alfred H. Colquitt and also two governors in the persons of the last two named.

To adequately embrace the activities of a thriving and virile community over a period of 115 years in a few paragraphs is an impossibility. Suffice it to say, therefore, that despite the practical viewpoint which the early settlers took of life and despite their ceaseless labors against an unremitting nature, they dreamed dreams for their children and those dreams are today being realized in a community of an honest, industrious and cultured atmosphere.

Stalwart Young Decatur Fire-Fighters Ready To Go

Portable inhalator used by the department, and purchased through the aid of the Civitan Club of Decatur.

Here are the boys who furnish fire protection in and around Decatur. Just below the group stands the inhalator, used in saving lives of those drowned or suffocated. It has already saved the life of one man. Standing in front of their engine house, left to right, Tom Carter, L. N. Morgan Jr., D. C. Brown, Asa G. Maynard, Assistant chief; J. D. Peck, acting chief, M. D. Googer Jr., Tom Ellis, assistant chief, and R. L. Walker.

Fire Protection Is Well Provided In Decatur

There are no fire bells in Decatur.

But a buzz on the 'phone sends a department of some nine paid alert firefighters — all hustling young men—to squelch any blaze that pops up in and around Decatur.

And, if the department needs additional help, a button is touched, and a siren on the water tower brings all, or many, of the seven volunteers who keep an ear and two eyes open for a call. The volunteers are paid when they come out to render service.

All of which is meant to say that Decatur and its surrounding territory is well protected from fire.

During the year 1936 the department had 188 calls within the city limits, for a total loss of $10,758.50. That's close calculation, but the figures are right. There were eight calls out of the city limits, for a total loss of $135.

So far this year the department has answered 121 calls in the city, with a total loss of $11,706, and one alarm outside the city, with no damage.

The Decatur water system, which is owned by the city, supplies 1,250,000 gallons daily to 3,500 meters, serving approximately 17,000 persons.

Water is furnished free to the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

There are 258 hydrants located throughout the city. The pressure in the distribution system is adequate for fire-fighting purposes, consequently it is not necessary to raise the pressure at the pumping station due to prolonged or serious fires.

One feature of the work of the department which makes it of more value than ordinary, is its operation of a portable inhalator, shown herewith. The purchase of this life-saver was sponsored by the Civitan Club, of Decatur, and it has been in service for about six months. A call for its use in any emergency in the county will be readily answered.

This machine has already saved the life of one—a co-worker among the firemen. A month or so ago it was used on Ned B. Fowler, whose life was saved after it had been despaired of. Fowler is still unable to return to fire duty, and so is not shown in the picture above.

Growing of Truck Profitable in DeKalb

R. F. Sams Jr. is recognized as one of the largest and most successful truck growers in Georgia. His farm is located at Clarkston, in DeKalb county. Speaking of the possibilities of market gardening in DeKalb county a few days ago, Mr. Sams said:

"We can grow practically any kind of vegetable, fruit or berry in DeKalb county. Atlanta, one of the best markets in the southeast is next door, which enables us to put fresh vine-ripened produce on the market with comparatively little expense for packaging and hauling. The soils we have are full of minerals and are capable of producing high yields of fruits and vegetables of superior appearance and flavor and unusually high in minerals and vitamins and other health giving qualities.

"In DeKalb county," continued Mr. Sams, "are grown successfully for the market, turnips, turnip salad, mustard, winter and summer spinach, collards, cabbage, celery cabbage, carrots, beets, onions, okra, butter beans, snap beans, parsley, broccoli, squash tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, cucumbers, cantaloupes, watermelons, radishes, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, youngberries, dewberies, scuppernongs, grapes, peaches, apples, figs and asparagus celery, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and lettuce can also be grown.

Can Grow Fine Strawberries.

"Strawberries have an unusually fine flavor when grown on these red clay hills. At Avondale are grown the finest flavored and most beautifully colored peaches I have ever seen. At Clarkston we have secured yields of 10 to 15 tons per acre of as high quality tomatoes as grown anywhere in the United States. One of the most popular watermelons grown was originated at Stone Mountain.

ple to serve two years each, two being elected one year and three the next. There are no wards, and the commissioners, being elected from the city at large, are free to consider the needs of the entire city without feeling they are representing any one particular section.

At the first meeting of each year the commissioners elect one of their members as chairman, and he is also the mayor, police court judge and ex-officio member of the board of education. The commissioners constitute the governing body of the city.

The city manager is the chief administrative officer of the city and is appointed by the city commission for an indefinite term, holding office until his death, resignation or removal by the governing body. A. F. Newman is the present very efficient and popular city manager.

Finances Are Sound.

The financial affairs of the city are maintained upon a sound basis, and outstanding bills are paid each month out of funds on hand. The income of the city is arranged in such a manner that borrowing on anticipated revenues is not necessary, and is therefore not practiced. The pay-as-you-go plan is in effect all the time.

Assessed values of property are on a fair basis, and at present are approximately $11,000,000. With a tax rate of $1.50 per hundred, the larger portion of tax receipts are used in the maintenance and operation of the school system.

In physical property the city owns and operates its own water works system, the revenue from which goes into the general fund of the city and finances, to a large extent, the operation of the general government of the city.

A "City of Homes."

Decatur, a "City of Homes" and an outstanding educational center, is the county seat of DeKalb county, has an area of 2,240 acres, an elevation of 1,050 feet, mean temperature during the winter months of 44 degrees and during the summer months of 76 degrees, with an average yearly rainfall of 48 inches; has an estimated population of 17,000, with approximately 3,500 families; has 38 miles of water mains, 41 miles of sanitary sewers, and 43 miles of paved streets.

The business and civic life of Decatur is built upon the influences of church, home and school.

Decatur has every modern convenience, and its location, accessibility, climate, markets, banks and organizations make it the ideal home city.

Typhoid Almost At Zero Point In County

Carrying the banner of public health service into the remotest corners of DeKalb county, the DeKalb health department in recent years has seen the reaping of a golden harvest in the remarkable improvement of general health conditions in the county at large.

Typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox, "big three" of communicable diseases, have rocketed downward to almost a zero point in DeKalb since the department began its fight to eradicate as far as possible these health menaces.

In 1924 47 typhoid cases were reported here, which caused nearly 15 deaths, while this year only three isolated cases are on record with no deaths.

LIONS' CLUB.

The Decatur Lions' Club, organized in May of 1932, with 20 charter members, has become one of the leading civic organizations of Decatur.

With W. Joe Scott, now principal of Bass Junior High school, as its first president, the club soon after its organization launched a progressive and uplifting program.

The first major project was the sponsorship of a Girls' High orchestra and Boys' High band for the two high schools of the city. These two units today stand as a tribute to the work of the club and are widely acclaimed for their success as permanent high school activities.

Other presidents of the club are Grady Duffee, Frank Thomas, Perry Mullinax, O. L. Amsler and J. T. McEntire.

CIVITAN CLUB.

The Civitan Club, of Decatur, received its charter from Civitan International in 1925, and is one of several hundred similar clubs throughout the United States and Canada. The idea that gave Civitan existence is the need for an intelligent and loyal citizenship. Its motto sums up its aim: "Builders of Good Citizenship." It seeks to accomplish this aim by building, in various ways, civic pride and loyalty. It seeks to cultiavte respect for constituted authority in city, state and nation. It stands for obedience to law and order.

Luncheon meetings of the Decatur club are held on the first and third Thursdays of each month at the Candler hotel.

The officers of the club are: Rev. Charles Holding, president; Dr. Homer Allen, vice president; Hoyle Nichols, secretary and treasurer; Wylie West, sergeant at arms; E. P. Johnson, assistant sergeant at arms; Rev. J. W. O. McKibben, chaplain.

Doraville Bowls In Her New Alleys

The Men's Club of Doraville, one of the thriving little cities in DeKalb county, has brought many improvements to its village in the past, but its recent move of building and opening a bowling alley has brought pleasure to many.

The alleys were opened a few nights ago, Dr. J. E. Flowers, a prominent physician and member of the County Education Board, rolling the first ball, after appropriate ceremonies. It was he who built a modern black and white building especially constructed for the purpose.

J. W. McElroy is president of the club, and among other good things it has done is the organization of a Boy Scout troop, building of tennis courts and creation of citizenship awards in the schools.

DECATUR BOASTS FOUR COLLEGES

The reading room on the ground floor is also spacious.

A special feature which takes into account the mild open winters of the Atlanta area is the outdoor reading terrace.

The stacks are arranged in a tower effect and, with the shelves of the reading room, provide accommodations for approximately 150,000 volumes, giving ample room for development.

Buttrick Hall, erected in 1930, is the principal administration and recitation building of the college. It was made possible by a gift of $300,000 from the general education board of New York, and is named in honor of Dr. Wallace Buttrick who was the first president of that board.

COLUMBIA SEMINARY

Columbia Theological Seminary is ideally located on a rolling, wooded 57-acre site within the city limits of Decatur, Ga. Organized at Lexington, Ga., December 15, 1828, removed to Columbia, S. C., in 1830, and relocated in Decatur in 1927 this revered institution has for more than a century been training men for the Gospel ministry.

Columbia Seminary is owned and controlled by the synods of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi of the Presbyterian church, United States, but its present student body is composed of men from 13 states and one foreign country. Over 1,100 men have received their theological training at this institution, 55 of whom have served or are serving on foreign mission fields.

While history records the notable contributions made by this great school of the prophets and by its alumni not only to the Presbyterian church but to the world, it is not content with present and past accomplishments and is continually seeking to improve its service and to broaden its usefulness.

OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY

In the northern part of DeKalb county, 600 acres of beautiful land has been set aside for the Christian education of young men and young women. It is the campus of Oglethorpe University.

In 1823, on Midway Hill, near Milledgeville, Ga., it was first organized and named for the founder of the colony of Georgia, James Edward Oglethorpe.

From that time until the War Between the States it grew in strength and gave a Christian education to many southern boys.

In 1860 the war came, and Oglethorpe cadets, money and buildings were sacrificed for the ideals the university held.

Fifty years passed. On September 13, 1909, a little group of men, led by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, set about refounding the institution. There were dreams in their ideals but faith in their hearts and today that faith has brought about an astonishing amount of realization of those dreams, as is evidenced by the beautiful campus, the splendid physical plant valued at approximately $2,000,000 and the contented student body now composing the modern Oglethorpe University.

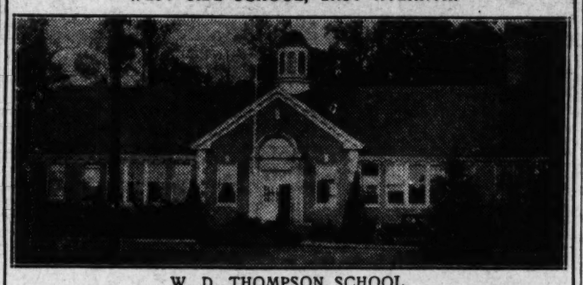

The legal title to the university is vested in the board of trustees, composed of men of the Presbyterian faith.

In Riverside, Ill., no theater or moving picture house can be built without providing 200 feet of parking space for every six seats in the building..

to be found in any section. One of the best physicians in the state is in charge of this hospital.

The police department is a credit to the county, having built for itself a record that is statewide, and which speaks for itself.

The county also operates under the Ellis health law, and it has a health department that is second to none.

The juvenile court of DeKalb county is doing a wonderful work under the leadership of a very capable official and is taking care of, or has under its supervision, approximately 50 children.

Busy County Agent.

A county agent looks after DeKalb's extensive dairying interests as well as its farms. In connection with this the home economics department is equal to, or superior to, most any other section of the state, so its citizens think.

What is of most vital interest to all DeKalb citizens and concerning which they feel that wonderful progress has been made in the past few years, is the road system. A very extensive road program has been on for the past six years, thereby being able to hard surface approximately 20 miles per year and the county now has a system that its people can reach practically any part of the county in any kind of weather. At least there is radiating from the county seat—Decatur—all-weather roads leading to almost every schoolhouse in the county.

Educational Advantages.

Those living in DeKalb county feel that they have unusual educational advantages. An excellent county school system is provided, including both grammar and high schools. They also feel that the city schools, both grammar and high schools, are of the best.

DeKalb county boasts of some of the finest colleges in the state and of which its people are very proud—namely, Agnes Scott College, Columbia Seminary, Emory University and Oglethorpe University. Also in DeKalb county is one of the finest hospitals, Emory University, which speaks for itself.

Summing up all the above mentioned, its citizens feel that DeKalb county is the best residential county in the state. If details were gone into, the number of new residences that have been built in the county in 1937 would substantiate this fact.

PRETTY DRUID HILLS IS PRIDE OF DEKALB

Tract of 1,500 Acres in Which Around $15,000,000 Is Invested in Homes.

One of the most beautiful residential sections in Georgia—a tract of some 1,500 acres already dotted with nearly 1,000 handsome homes—lies in DeKalb county.

This popular site for the erection of palatial homes lies between Decatur and Atlanta, and is known as Druid Hills. The growth of this residential area, since its development was started a few years ago, has been steady and gradual—never a rush or "boom" has been made, neither by the owners of the property or by seekers of home sites. But a high standard of citizenry has gradually selected home sites in Druid Hills because of the restrictions surrounding the property, its spacious lots, its wooded and pleasing surrounding and its accessibility.

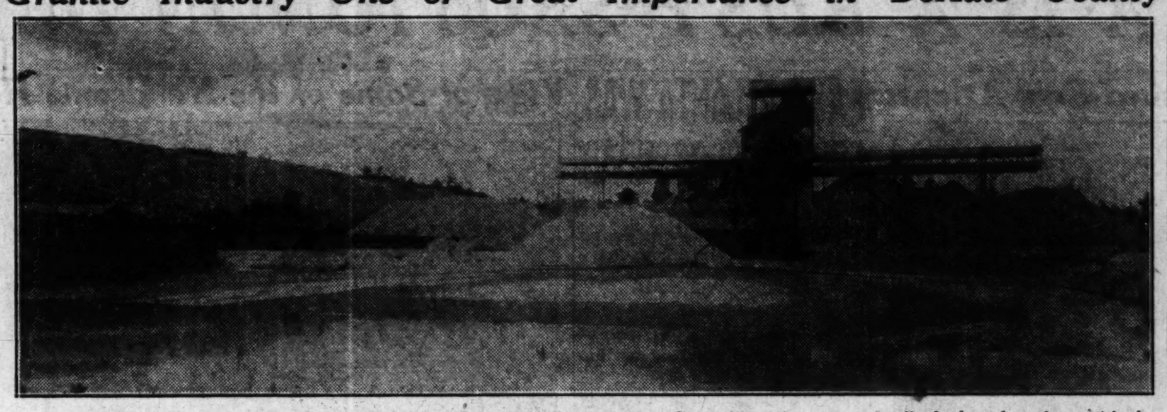

The homes now occupied in this residential section represent an investment of between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000.

Druid Hills has as its western boundary Briarcliff road, which is the dividing line between Fulton and DeKalb counties. It reaches to Fairview road on the south side, and extends northward a mile or more, and eastward into the borders of Decatur. A good portion is in the city of Atlanta, but a larger portion is in DeKalb county. It is just one handsome home following another, each noticeably distinctive and attractive, as one motors through this decidedly charming section, with its tiny sparkling streams, its stately oaks, its luxuriant shrubbery, its hills and vales, and it thousands of dogwood, which form a spectacular riot of bloom in the spring.

And while there are hundreds of what might be termed expensive homes, there are in some sections of the parkland homes less pretentious, yet of the most modern architecture. Within the tract are four distinctive sections, so-called to simplify location. There is the Emory section, Lullwater parkway, Parkwood and Clifton sections.

Ponce de Leon avenue is perhaps the main artery running through this property, and it is a journey out through this thoroughfare when the dogwood is in bloom that attracts thousands.

Granite Industry One of Great Importance in DeKalb County

This company operates one of the largest and most modern quarries in the county. It employs 75 men, nearly all of whom have been with the plant since its beginning of operations in 1929. Investments in quarries in this section approximate $10,000,000.

Where Decatur Women's Club "Carry On"

Type of Handsome Homes in Druid Hills

Handsome residence of Ira R. Johnson, just erected on East Lake road, in Druid Hills. Built of red brick, it is most attractive, and one of the many beautiful residences dotting the Druid Hills section.

COUNTY SCHOOLS GAIN IN STUDENTS

Increase of 300 Over Last Year; Property Valued at $1,054,250.

W. M. Rainey, superintendent of DeKalb county schools, announced that 7,500 white children and 1,500 colored children are enrolled in county schools. This is an approximate increase of 300 students over last year. Twenty-one buses are employed to carry children who do not live within walking radius of a county school. There are 253 teachers in the system.

DeKalb county school property is valued at $1,054,250. With federal aid the county has spent $350,000 on new buildings and additions. In course of construction are three federal projects, which include the erection of a high school, two elementary schools and a colored school.

Many of the school buildings are used as community centers. Spacious gymnasiums are equipped with chairs and a stage with curtain and settings suitable for the presentation of plays, concerts and lectures. Vocational training with shops for boys and home economics for girls provide a varied schedule. Science departments, libraries, and directed athletic activities contribute to the pupils' development.

A program of socialized work according to progressive methods is being carried out in the lower elementary grades under the direction of Mrs. Irene Wells, supervisor.

Decatur Woman's Club Brings Newest Ideas in Many Fields

The Decatur Woman's Club was organized February 1, 1924, and built their clubhouse in 1926. They are members of the Georgia and General Federations of Women's Clubs and the garden division is a charter member of the Atlanta Garden Center and the Atlanta Flower Show Association.

Not only does the Decatur Woman's Club contribute to the life of its community through the generous use of its clubhouse and its facilities for such occasions as Community Chest, Red Cross and tuberculosis meetings but also brings the best and newest ideas in many fields to the attention of its members and community. Applied arts, music, book reviews, gardening are encouraged; education, citizenship, conservation of trees, plants and natural resources are studied and applied to the community and its particular needs; a common meeting ground and wholesome entertainment is provided for all citizens through the activities of the club and a natural means of communication provided for the dissemination of ideas for the welfare of the community.

DECATUR CITY OF FINE CHURCHES

crief is pastor here, with Dr. D. P. McGeachy at Decatur Presbyterian, and Rev. J. W. O. McKibben at the First Methodist.

Episcopal Church.

In this same section of Decatur is Holy Trinity Episcopal church, organized in 1893. The present pastor is Rev. Charles Holding, who came to us in 1925. His first work was the erection of a commodious brick building on East Ponce de Leon and Columbia drive.

In an opposite direction on Adams street and Ansley is the First Christian church. Rev. Charles L. Garrison is pastor. These churches are all located within the bounds of what was the original Decatur when it was no more than a village.

In the large section of Decatur to the westward and including the Oakhurst neighborhood and its extension are quite a number of churches which have come into existence within comparatively recent years.

Among these are the Oakhurst Baptist, the Oakhurst Presbyterian and the Patillo Memorial Methodist, this last located on West College and Feld and the other two on East Lake drive—Oakhurst Baptist at Third avenue, and Oakhurst Presbyterian at Second avenue Rev. A. B. Couch is pastor of Oakhurst Baptist; Rev. R. L. Armor of Patillo Memorial, and Rev. Russell Johnson of Oakhurst Presbyterian.

Two other growing churches in Decatur are the East End Methodist, with Rev. J. Hamby Barton as pastor, and South Decatur Baptist, with Rev. David S. Kellam as pastor. East End Methodist was organized over 40 years ago purely as a country church, but Atlanta and Decatur have so grown around the location that now this is distinctly a city church.

There are several strong negro churches within Decatur limits, Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian. For a full generation a mission has been carried on by the white churches of Decatur for the negro population and this is now located on Herring street with a kindergarten, Sunday afternoon Sunday school, a number of clubs for girls and for boys, and out of it has grown a clinic which ministers in a wonderful way to the health and general social conditions of the colored section.

Why Certified Milk Is the Milk of Choice

Many are vitally interested in this question, including the Health Officer, the Milk Sanitarians, the Health Educator, the Medical Practitioner, the Pediatrician, the Dairy Scientist, the Milk Dealer, the Consuming Public, the Housewife and Mother, and finally the chief consumer—the baby and child—the child specialist knows only too well that milk is much more than just a happy combination of food factors—he is fully aware that the quality of any milk is determined on the Dairy Farm—Milk may be made safe very easily but it can never be made better than the Cow that produces it and the Cow cannot be any better than the food she consumes.

EAST ATLANTA IS A BUSY SECTION IN DEKALB COUNTY

Up-to-Date School Facilities Furnished East Atlanta

A view of the rear of the John B. Gordón Grammar school on Moreland avenue, showing some of its hundreds of children at play. It is one of many fine grammar school provided for the thousands of children in that section. The J. C. Murphy Junior High school and city's Girls' High school are in that immediate vicinity.

EAST ATLANTA WAS FORMER CROSSROAD

Within the Past Two Years $100,000 Has Been Spent in Improvements.

The business center of East Atlanta is one of the busy trading sections in DeKalb county, although within the corporate limits of Atlanta. It was started about 50 years ago. At that time that section was considered to be a good distance out in the country—in fact, it was then just a crossroad.

The late J. W. McWilliams and Luther L. Marbut, together with E. A. Minor, entered business there about that time. Their business grew very fast and from time to time they purchased a large portion of the land in and around that center.

The firm of Marbut & Minor was finally formed and it continued in business over a period of 40 years. The city limits were finally extended to take in East Atlanta and surrounding territory, streets were paved, new homes built, new business houses sprang up, and the community in general grew very fast.

Luther L. Marbut, a partner of the firm of Marbut & Minor, died early in 1932 and the business of Marbut & Minor was liquidated, after which E. A. Minor retired from active business. The important business properties of what is known as East Atlanta were owned by Marbut & Minor, and after the death of Mr. Marbut these properties were sold to younger businessmen of other sections of the city, and being men of considerable means the properties are now in strong hands. New stores and other business properties have been built within the last two years at a cost of about $100,000, and during this time a number of new homes have been erected.

The late Dr. E. F. Fincher and C. C. Crabill were both instrumental in the growth of East Atlanta.

Manufacturing Plants.

A number of industrial and manufacturing plants are located in East Atlanta, such as Atlanta Oak Flooring Company, Floyd Brothers Company, Williams Refrigerator Corporation, Williams Brothers Lumber Company, Tri-State Culvert Company, Kraft-Phenix Cheese Company, The Warren Company and many other plants of this kind.

That section also is favored with an up-to-date movie, which now shows to an average of 7,500 people a week, good drug stores, dry goods stores, hardware stores, grocery stores—in fact, every facility for a well-rounded business center.

The schools are John B. Gordon, Faith Street, Whitefoord Avenue, J. C. Murphy Jr. High and Girls' High.

The churches are Martha Brown Memorial Methodist, Moreland Avenue Baptist, East Atlanta Christian, Church of the Nazarene, Ormewood Presbyterian and the Church of Christ.

There are some very historic and interesting spots in and around East Atlanta, as some of the thickest of the "Battle of Atlanta" took place where this business center now stands. The old breastworks ran along Flat Shoals avenue. General Walker and General McPherson were killed within a few blocks of the business center. The famous Liggett's Hill is also located within a few blocks. The old Koch home, on Moreland avenue, corner of Trenton avenue, stands in the midst of what is known as Liggett's Hill.

GOOD BANKING SERVICE.

That section is also provided with splendid banking facilities. The East Atlanta Bank was established in 1910. Its total resources now exceed $500,000, and its daily clearings exceed $20,000. M. A. Thompson is president, W. S. Smith and D. P. Marbut, vice presidents, and E. J. Striplin, cashier.

Superintendent's Message

November 21, 1937.

My Dear Boys and Girls:

During this week we will celebrate Thanksgiving Day. Most of us think of Thanksgiving as a holiday, and a holiday means to us a time for play. Usually a holiday is a day set aside because it is the anniversary of some great accomplishment in the past.

When the colonists came to this country, they were able to get turkeys from the fields and ship loads of food were sent to them from England. Before they ate any of these good things they went to church and gave thanks to God. Since then, every autumn through all these years, we have observed a Thanksgiving Day on which we go to church or meet in our homes and thank God for His blessings to us.

Surely you and I and all American people have much for which to be grateful. We live in a great democratic nation; a mighty flag flies over our heads; a splendid state helps to educate and protect its children; a wonderful city is ministering to the welfare of our people. We have had an excellent harvest of corn and cotton and grain; fruits have been plentiful; the apples are overabundant. God has preserved our city from scourges, floods, and death by epidemics of diseases. For all His mercies to us, Thanksgiving should be more than just a holiday when we eat a fine dinner and have a big time. It should be a real day on which each of us should express to God our love and praise and glory for His gracious Providence in preserving our lives and giving us the blessings of our civilization.

Always your friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON,
Superintendent of Schools.

Opportunity School Candy-Pulling Provides Funds for Holiday Gifts

On Thursday the Opportunity School students enjoyed their annual candy-pulling under the direction of Mrs. Wright. This occasion is sponsored for the purpose of raising funds for Thanksgiving and Christmas giving. All of the money raised in previous years has gone for this purpose, and is distributed by organized agencies to those who are not provided for at this time.

Pre-employment classes in salesmanship will continue at the Atlanta Opportunity school for adults who are interested in securing Christmas work. Instruction in cash register operation and package wrapping is included. Students may enroll at any time for this short unit course.

Miss Frances Woodberry, WPA educational supervisor, was a visitor in the school during the last week. Miss Woodberry has unusual interest in public education not only through her official connections, but through her long years of experience as an educator.

The Hi-Y Club of the Y. M. C. A. is sponsoring a unit in the Opportunity school under the direction of W. B. Sharp, a student in the school. This club and other organizations and facilities of the Y. M. C. A. are available to the boys of the school on Tuesday and Thursday. P. S. Woodward, assistant principal of the school, is sponsoring the boys activities.

CARNEGIE MEDAL ASKED FOR TEXAS HEROINE, 5

The presence of mind of Peggy Miller, five, deserves the attention of the Carnegie Foundation, thinks County Judge W. H. Franks, of Menard, Texas, who has written the Foundation.

When the home of her married brother caught fire with no one home but Peggy and her four-month-old nephew, Peggy walked into the smoke-filed bedroom, lifted the baby from its crib, and carried it to safety. The roof and walls of the burning house collapsed a few minutes later.

BUILDING and REAL ESTATE NEWS

PRESS HUDDLESTON—Real Estate Editor

ATLANTA REALTORS ALL ARE PREPARED FOR REGIONAL MEET

Large Delegation Will Go to Jacksonville; Frank C. Owens To Preside.

As the date of the convention of the southeast region of the National Association of Real Estate Boards approaches, much interest is being shown by the Atlanta realtors in this meeting. Some of the Atlanta delegation will drive to Jacksonville Saturday, some Sunday, and some will leave on the train Saturday night, November 27.

Entertainment in St. Augustine is being planned by the Florida Association for Sunday, November 28, and the convention opens Monday morning, November 29, with Frank C. Owens, of Draper-Owens Company, realtors, in Atlanta, regional vice president, presiding at the general session from 9:30 to 12 o'clock.

The Tennessee State Association and other state delegations will hold luncheons on Monday. During the afternoon, there will be a general office program, meeting of the property managers, and of the brokers' division. Monday evening the Jacksonville board will be host to the delegates at a "Florida frolic."

Tuesday morning there will be another general session, followed by luncheons of various groups on taxation, appraising, and problems of board secretaries and presidents, which will be discussed with National President Paul E. Stark and Executive Vice President Herb Nelson.

Tuesday afternoon there is scheduled another program for the general office, in addition to meetings of the home builders' and appraisers' groups. Tuesday evening, from 6:30 to 9, there will be the president's banquet with an address by President Stark.

Atlanta Realtors Going.

Among those from the Atlanta board who are planning to attend are Frank C. Owens, Ward Wight, Paul C. Maddox, B. M. Grant, J. H. Whitten Jr., W. J. Hogan Jr., H. C. Baldwin, D. W. Watson, Ed M. Chapman Sr., W. A. Sharp, G. M. Garner, Jack Adair and Board Secretary Louise H. Peacock.

Observation of today's market peculiarities is a recurring theme in the list of topics to be discussed by realtors when they meet in Jacksonville. Prefabricators will present their case to operative home builders at this regional meeting; plans will be outlined for the new home builders' guild, now being formed to bring operative builders together in joint action for lowering home building costs and setting home building standards.

Legislative objectives sought by the national association as means for immediate encouragement of the lagging movement for new home building will be presented by President Stark, of Madison, Wisconsin.

Underlying the talk of current real estate trends and of means through which the individual real estate company may best meet these trends will be discussion of fundamentals in the understanding of real estate values and of basic principles in appraising and real estate management.

Hold Special Forum.

A special forum for real estate managers will be a convention feature. More novel will be a two-day group meeting on the problems that are daily to be met in a general or one-man real estate office.

Percentage leasing for retail store properties is of very general present importance as providing a fair means of meeting uncertainties in the general business future. A special forum of brokers will hear J. F. Brownlow, Knoxville, Tenn., president Tennessee Association of Real Estate Boards.

At meetings for the one-man real estate office or the office doing a general real estate business, speakers of national reputation are listed.

As previously announced, other notable speakers include:

Frank C. Owens, of Atlanta, who, as vice president of the association, will make the keynote address at morning sessions of November 29.

Senator Walter W. Rose, Orlando, Fla., immediate past president of the association, and vice chairman of its national committee on real estate taxation, and sponsor of much of Florida's recent notable legislation for tax modernization, who will open a discussion of tax action ahead in the seven southeastern states.

Other Prominent Speakers.

Fred M. Lorish, president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, who will address management specialists.

Kenneth S. Keyes, Miami, Fla., chairman of the brokers' division of the association, will talk to brokers at their special forum on sales ideas that click.

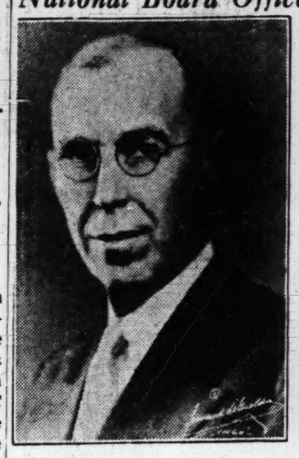

Vincent P. Bradley, Trenton, N. J., long-time head of the New Jersey Real Estate License Commission and sales consultant of the national association, will address general sessions of November 30 on "Co-operation for Profit."

Gilmer T. Richardson, Memphis, Tenn., will address the general office session on "Trends of the Farm Land Market."

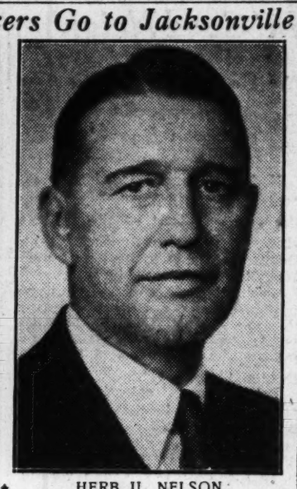

The convention will draw realtors from Tennessee, Mississippi Alabama, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

The George Washington hotel and Mayflower hotel, Jacksonville, are to be convention headquarters.

Tremont, on Mitchell Street, To Be Improved.

Leasing of the Tremont, 108-room hotel at Forsyth and Mitchell streets, for a term of years and plans for extensive improvements were announced Saturday by M. J. Watts.

Mr. Watts, who has operated the Tremont hotel for several years, also operates the Morris hotel in Birmingham.

Plans for a program of improvements and redecoration, which will be put under way early in 1938 and will require several months, are in keeping with a general property improvement program prevailing in the Mitchell-Forsyth community, Mr. Watts announced.

Mr. Watts served his apprenticeship as a caterer under Henry Durand, famous restaurateur, with whom he first was associated in 1907.

For a number of years he was connected with railway dining car service, hotels and clubs. He formerly was with several of the largest hotels in Atlanta and other cities of the south. He opened the Hotel Floridan, Tallahassee, in 1927 as manager and secretary-treasurer.

Coincidental with the expansion program at the Tremont, Mr. Watts announced John Champion has been named assistant manager.

MORE UNIFORM FORECLOSURE LAWS

Urged by Russell for All States.

Horace Russell, former Atlantan, now living in Washington, where he is general counsel for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was a speaker at the recent convention of the United States Building and Loan League, recently held in Los Angeles. He urged a uniform real estate mortgage and foreclosure law for the several states to encourage liberal home financing.

He said that such a law can be devised by students of the problem, and that it can be demonstrated that it is in the public interest.

"We find that state by state the legislatures enact laws in good faith which they think are in the public interest, but which have in fact, brought about our present situation," said Mr. Russell. "Adding additional procedures and costs and delays to foreclosures has created a situation which prevents lending institutions, in many instances, from extending consideration to the debtor which they ordinarily like to give.

"A better foreclosure situation results in more liberal practices in financing homes, enabling the young man to assume responsibility of home ownership earlier when he has accumulated a comparatively nominal sum from his meager earnings. Whereas harsh or cumbersome foreclosure laws prevent him from obtaining financing until he has accumulated a much larger sum in cash. In England, mortgages are very quickly foreclosed at nominal cost and yet we find no substantial injustice is done to home mortgage borrowers, and some of the greatest progress on earth is being made in home ownership there.

"Immediately after we have improved our mortgage and mortgage foreclosure laws, lenders will be able to extend greater accommodations to home owners. Business recovery will be promoted by the building and financing of more and better homes. The hue and cry of unconscionable excess judgments will be silenced, and more families will be induced to undertake the responsibility of home ownership, feeling a greater security under such law.

SPEEDING UP FHA INSURANCE LOANS

Can Now Complete Processing Application in Very Few Days.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20. Three years of experience now enables FHA insuring offices to speed up their procedure very considerably, according to Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing administrator.

Many offices can complete the processing of an application for mortgage insurance in six or eight days or even less. The maximum time allowable for processing an individual case has been set at 15 days.

"I advise prospective home buyers to beware of those who try to steer them away from FHA with the specious argument that an insured loan involves delay and red tape," Mr. McDonald said. "They usually have some ulterior motive decidedly detrimental to the buyer. A few extra days devoted to careful appraisal, investigation of the neighborhood, and examination of the borrower's ability to pay may save years of misery and worry later.

"As a matter of fact, it takes very little longer to get an FHA insured mortgage than an insured one and the extra time is well worth while both to the borrower and to the lender. We have abundant evidence of the folly of hasty and unsound lending practices which the Federal Housing Administration procedure is designed to eliminate."

The Housing Administration is constantly studying ways and means of reducing the time required for processing applications without impairing the soundness of its underwriting procedure.

"While we have always recognized the prime importance of promptness in our underwriting procedures," Mr. McDonald said, "we will not sacrifice quality for quantity in our appraisal and risk-rating methods. In fact, it is not necessary to do so.

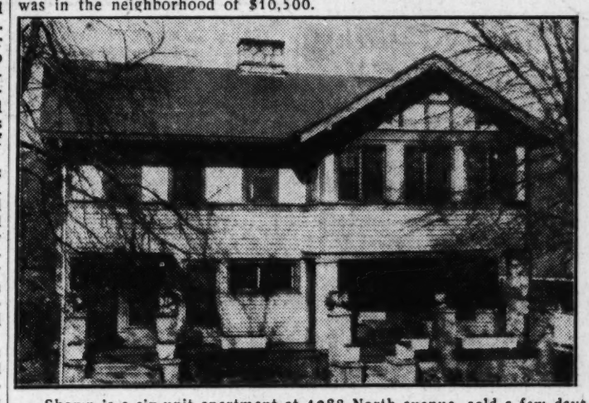

"We have, for some time past, set 15 days as the maximum time allowable for the processing of an individual case in a field office. All of our offices have had the majority of their applications analyzed well within this period, in fact many have done so within 6 to 8 days. Others, faced with unusual problems of travel in order to properly ascertain the soundness of the property and the risk, have been delayed. Our new plans include provisions for such situations as well as a simplified method of procedure in routing cases through the various divisions of the local field offices. All are calculated to cut the time elapsing between submission of an application for insurance and a commitment thereon."

Homes and Apartments in Week's Realty Sales

Constitution Staff Photo—Roton

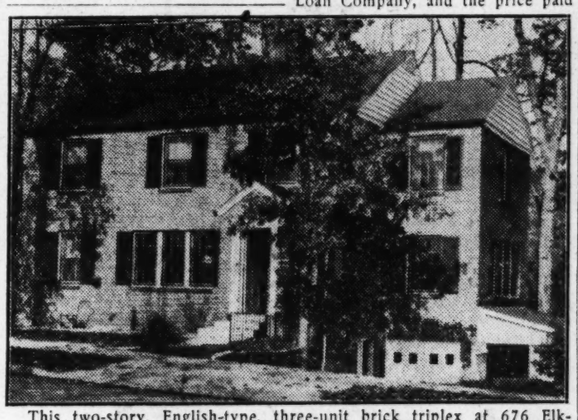

This pretty home at 422 East Wesley avenue, N. E., was recently completed by Mr. Jacobs, of the Jacobs Realty Company, and sold by him to Roy S. Marsden, who has taken possession. It is understood the price was in the neighborhood of $10,500.

GOOD PLANNING FOR SMALL HOUSES

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 20.—"Planning the Small House," booklet No. 31 in the series of Home Information publications, points out that because a house is small or must be built economically is no reason why it cannot be good architecture, have individuality and adequately meet family requirements. It states, further, that the failure to obtain a good small house is due most often to lack of foresight, failure to correctly grasp the lack of application of common sense in planning and the selection and use of materials. While cost is an important factor, it is seldom a sound excuse for a small house that violates the fundamentals of good design.

PROGRAMS MAILED FOR STATE MEETING

All Licensed Realty Brokers in the State Are Invited to Savannah.

Every licensed real estate broker and salesman in the state of Georgia will receive this week a copy of the program for the Georgia Real Estate Association convention, to be held in Savannah December 9-10.

The invitation is being issued to all real estate operators on the list of the Georgia Real Estate Commission to attend this meeting, whether they are members of local real estate boards or not.

The convention will be held at the DeSoto hotel, with President William C. Gilbert Jr., of Savannah, presiding. Members of the five real estate boards over the state, including Atlanta, Savannah, Macon, Augusta and Columbus, have an unusually good program in store for them at this meeting, and the Atlanta board is anticipating sending a representative group to this state meet.

A new and unusual feature of this meeting will be the exhibit of standard forms used by realtors over the state. Each board will be asked to send copies of the standard form leases and contracts used by board members, and these will make up an interesting and attractive display. Such displays are usually found at national conventions, and always prove a source of much interest.

PRESIDENT TO AID BUILDING PROGRAM

Two-Billion-Dollar Project Will Have His Support, It Is Said.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 20. Members of the Home and Community Builders' National Association today received definite assurance that their plans to launch a $2,000,000,000 home-building program in 1938 will have the support and encouragement of President Roosevelt and officials of the federal administration.

This assurance came in statements from the White House following the appointment of a commission to effect ways and means to stimulate residential construction throughout the nation.

In announcing the administration's objectives, the President clearly showed that he is definitely in accord with the aims and ideas of the association, as outlined in a communication sent to him two weeks ago, and which will be discussed in detail at the association's national convention in Washington January 11, 12 and 13.

One of the principal points stressed in the communication, and which later was supported in expressions by the chief executive, was that large-scale community building of modern, low-priced homes was needed to meet the nation's requirements and to elevate the home-building industry to normal levels.

Papers are to be submitted by members of the association to a committee of state judges, and the trophy awarded at the annual convention, which this year will be held in Savannah, December 9-10. Each board in the state must hold a local contest and pick only one paper, which will be entered as representing that particular board.

D.A.R. Conservation Chairman Requests Pictures of State Trees

By Mrs. J. L. Mims, of Hawkinsville, State Editor Georgia D. A. R.

An urgent request for photographs of historic trees in the state, with data and story about each, has been sent from Mrs. Harry K. Nield, national vice chairman of conservation, in charge of historic trees, through Mrs. C. H. Leavy, 705 Union street, Brunswick. She says:

"Kodak pictures, postcards, magazine prints, drawings, etchings or sketches are acceptable. Georgia has many such trees, but only three such pictures have been sent in through the state conservation chairman, as reported by the national chairman. These trees are fast disappearing, and it is urgent that the best efforts to preserve these priceless records.

"To date there have been sent in approximately 350 photographs and stories of "historic trees of America" by the D. A. R. of the nation. These are to be revised, filed, mounted and carefully preserved in properly bound folios, and our goal is to make this, with the earnest co-operation of each D. A. R., state society, chapter and member, the most complete record of its kind in the country. When completed, the folios will be placed in the library in Constitution Hall in Washington, accessable to all members. There has already been placed on the wall of the library a beautiful rack with three reversible wings, presented in honor of our president general, Mrs. William Becker, by Mrs. Avery Turner, national chairman of conservation. This rack will always display six folio pages of mounted photographs, thus becoming another incentive to each state to send in pictures of all historically valuable old trees of each community.

"The collection will also include pictures of D. A. R. groves of historic trees, and a section for D. A. R. forests, and Georgia is the proud possessor of the latter. The photographs collected could first be displayed in your local library or other suitable place, with notations of how and where they will be used. This would create additional interest and might be instrumental in obtaining some hitherto unknown material. So please send your pictures, with their stories, as soon as possible, so that I may forward them to the national vice president of this committee, as they are wanted in time for the national congress next April."

Mrs. Albert Sealy recently entertained Benjamin Hawkins chapter of Cuthbert. Mrs. C. B. King presented the honor guests, who were Mesdames Harrison Hightower, state first vice regent; Roy Stephens, state chairman of motion pictures; W. H. Hightower Jr., recording secretary of John Houston chapter, and Emory Holland, chairman of Ellis Island, all of Thomaston.

Hawkinsville chapter met at the Brown hotel with Mesdames M. H. Boyer, Stewart Turner and W. L. Joiner as cohostesses. Senator Walter F. George and Mrs. George were honor guests. Senator George spoke on the constitution of the United States, speaking of the philosophy or spirit of the constitution, and its various branches, and of the colonies and their charters and the events that led to the framing of the constitution. He was presented by Colonel H. F. Lawson as a "friend and neighbor." Mrs. T. H. Bridges presided over the business meeting and Mrs. J. B. DeLamar was chairman of program. Mrs. George was presented a corsage by the chapter. An informal reception followed.

The Elijah Clarke chapter, Athens, entertained at a barbecue for a distinguished group of national officers of the D. A. R. who recently made a tour of the southern states visiting approved schools of the D. A. R. They were in Athens the guests of Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, recording secretary general, N. S. D. A. R.

Officers honored were Mrs. William A. Becker, president general; Miss Katharine Matthies, national chairman of approved schools; Mesdames Julian G. Goodhue, historian general; William H. Pouch, organizing secretary general; William H. Belk, vice president general from North Carolina; J. H. Dunavant, regent of Mecklinburg chapter, Charlotte, N. C.; Julius Y. Talmadge, recording secretary general; Frank L. Nason, Massachusetts, state regent; Miss Emmaline Street, vice president general of Connecticut, and Mrs. Gracie Cumming, New Haven, Connecticut.

Miss Marianna Adair Presented At Brilliant Tea-Dance at Club

MISS MARIANNA ADAIR.

Miss Marianna Adair, lovely debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ben Jones, was presented formally to Atlanta society yesterday afternoon by her parents at a brilliant tea-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The beautiful ballroom of the club was artistically decorated for the occasion in an autumn color scheme. Autumn leaves were garlanded about the columns down the sides of the room and between hung festive clusters of lighted balloons in yellow, green and red. Balloons of the same color hung before the fireplace and in a series of groups suspended from the ceiling down the center of the room, which were lowered during the dance. The receiving line stood at the right of the entrance to the room before a trellis of autumn leaves in front of which were arranged the many beautiful floral bouquets sent to Miss Adair by her many friends and admirers.

On either side of the ballroom were long buffet tables featuring as the center decorations red and yellow baskets of fruit. The punch bowls were placed on tables in the foyer of the club and these were banked with autumn leaves.

In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Forrest Adair, grandmother of the debutante; Miss Adair, and Misses Elizabeth Butler and Elizabeth Yerkes, of Jacksonville, Fla. Miss Adair was exquisitely gowned for the occasion in a model of banana satin finished with large bows of brown velvet. The dress featured a bouffant skirt and puffed sleeves and with it was worn a tiny brown velvet Juliet cap with an off-the-face veil. The debutante carried a dainty muff of gardenias, small white rosebuds, and purple orchids.

Mrs. Jones wore a handsome gown of dark green duvetyn, the elbow length bell sleeves of which were trimmed in mink. The dress was finished at the neckline with a green clip studded with rhinestones and her flowers were a shoulder bouquet of purple orchids. Mrs. Adair wore a black crepe back satin cut along simple lines, and a spray of lavender orchids adorned her shoulder.

Miss Yerkes was dressed in light green satin trimmed with bows of a darker shade on the puffed sleeves and cut with a tightly fitted bodice. Her flowers were lavender orchids. Miss Butler wore a gown of salmon colored moire, cut along bouffant lines and trimmed in bows of black velvet. She wore a shoulder bouquet of lavender orchids.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames William E. Campbell Jr., Forrest Adair Jr., Robert Gregg, Frank Adair, Arthur Howell, J. P. Garlington, Richard Sawtell, Robert Maddox Jr., Clark Howell, John Appleby, William Shipp, John Donaldson, Charles F. Stone, James Dunlap, G. C. Jones, William F. Manry and Miss Betty Gregg.

Miss Adair danced the first dance with her father.

Miss Helen Bell Is Presented To Society at Beautiful Luncheon

MISS HELEN BELL.

Miss Helen Bell, lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Bell, was presented to members of Atlanta society at a luncheon given yesterday by her mother at the Piedmont Driving Club. The occasion assembled 60 members of the social contingent at 1 o'clock, the number including the entire Debutante Club of 1937-38.

Mrs. Bell and Miss Bell, who is one of the most popular and admired of the season's buds, received the guests in the lounge of the club, standing before the fireplace which was banked with palms and ferns. Receiving with them were the debutante's cousins, Mrs. W. L. MacDougall and Mrs. L. P. Longino, of Milledgeville.

The background of foliage behind the receiving line was studded with numerous bouquets and baskets of colorful flowers which were sent as tributes to Miss Bell's wide popularity.

Mrs. Bell chose for the occasion a handsome gown of moss green crepe, embroidered at the waistline with gold leaves to form a corselet effect. A green suede beret, draped with a brown veil, and brown accessories completed her costume. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of rubrum lilies and valley lilies.

The debutante presented a charming picture in her costume combining a black velvet skirt with a lame blouse of silver, red and black. Fashioned with brief puffed sleeves and a high neckline, the blouse buttoned down the front with small self-covered buttons. A black velvet pill-box hat, trimmed with a veil and black accessories were worn with the costume. A spray of crimson-throated orchids adorned Miss Bell's shoulder.

Mrs. Longino's effective costume was of hunter's green crepe, finished with a necklace and bracelets of pearls. Her hat and accessories were in a matching shade of green and her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. MacDougall was gowned in gold crepe, trimmed in mink tails, and worn with a brown hat and accessories. A cluster of talisman roses and valley lilies graced her shoulder.

The guests were seated for luncheon at a beautifully-appointed E shaped table placed in the sun room of the club. The Thanksgiving motif, developed in the autumn shades ranging from yellow to bronze, featured the decorations.

In the center of the table was a huge white pottery bowl filled with talisman roses, bronze snapdragons and yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. Down the length of the main table and extending to the arms of the E shape was an attractive serpentine arrangement formed of low white bowls filled with similar flowers. The guests' places were marked by handpainted cards bearing the Thanksgiving motif, and other details of decoration featured the holiday note.

ELLA F. WHITE ENDOWMENT FUND MARKS JUBILEE YEAR; PROGRAM SUGGESTIONS OFFERED FOR GEORGIA CLUBS

Why Our Endowment?

Editor's Note: The following editorial was written in 1913 by Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, then president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and published June 4 of that year in the Woman's Edition of The Constitution. It is reprinted today as a splendid contribution to program suggestions:

Philips Brooks said: "Do not pray for easy lives, pray to be stronger. Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers, pray for powers equal to your tasks. Then the doing of your work shall be no miracle, but you shall be a miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come in you by the grace of God."

We may not tell here of all the power and richness of growth that have come into our federation life since its birth 17 years ago.

It has grown until it comprises all educational, philanthropical and social welfare subjects.

Untiring work for civic beauty, parks and playgrounds, food inspection and better sanitary and health conditions, urging legislation for an industrial school for wayward girls, helping to establish domestic science in our public schools, organizing home and school improvement clubs in our rural districts, maintaining rest rooms, establishing public and circulating libraries, founding a splendid students' aid fund, securing gift scholarships—both business and literary—in many of our best schools and colleges for worthy girls who are unable to bear the entire expense of a collegiate education; supporting model industrial schools, and setting high educational ideals are some of the things accomplished by our federation.

Where once women pleaded for a chance for service they are now asked to help in every reform movement and to lend our assistance for all kinds of work and effort. This proves that we are a recognized state power "with the burdens and responsibilities that this honor entails."

The greatest hindrance to a great forward movement is the lack of a solid financial backing. We must have money if we are to bear our part with dignity and efficiency. "The best work is always done when energy need not be spent worrying about the money for meeting daily needs."

The thought of the endowment fund is modeled upon a similar plan to meet similar needs in our general federation. It will mean a strong, steady income which will enable our federation to do its work and carry out its plans more effectively. While raising this endowment may not be the easiest, most idealistic work in the world, it is the one thing for which we should work most strenuously, as it is the only means by which our ideals can become realities.

Think of the joy there will be in having our federation fixed with a stated income upon which we can count!

How appropriate, too, that this fund should be called the Ella F. White endwoment fund, in honor of that beloved president who answered God's call to a higher life while she was unselfishly giving her time and talents to "inspire to organization for mutual helpfulness." A worker in every good cause for the uplift of humanity, sincere and true, always thoughtful, kind and dignified, she was the ideal Christian clubwoman, and we honor our federation in thus perpetuating her memory.

The united thanks of 28,000 clubwomen in the state are given the generous managers of The Constitution who have made it possible, through this Woman's Edition, to begin our endowment fund with a good sum. Let us press forward until the entire amount is raised and powers equal to our tasks are vouchsafed to us, and may our organization continue more and more to glorify God by its helpful work in the state.

'Make an Effort' Is Year's Slogan Suggested By Mrs J. K. Ottley

MRS. JOHN K. OTTLEY, Trustee.

Who was the lovely Dickens heroine who was constantly being admonished to "make an effort?" Well, never mind! Let us borrow that piece of advice anyhow as especially applicable to the silver jubilee of our Ella F. White Endowment Fund. Let's choose "Make An Effort" as Georgia Federation's slogan for this year of privilege and opportunity and hustle about and really finish this projected fund of $25,000 which has waited far too long for completion.

One thousand dollars a year would not have been a prohibitive sum for a powerful organization like ours to have built into a permanent endowment fund which is working ceaselessly in our behalf. As a matter of fact, however, much less than $1,000 a year would have put this fund over the top.

Two windfalls amounting to $7,600. (Ella F. White edition $3,-100, and four years reinvested interest $4,500), left $17,400 for clubs to give of the fixed amount of $25,000. This would have been about $700 a year instead of $1,-000 by which we could have completed our endowment in 25 years. Think nothing of this figure, however, for we have not raised even half of $25,000 in that time. At what rate then have we actually paid on our endowment? Substracting from our present figure of $11,000—the two windfalls of $7,600 gives up $3,800—which is the amount given by Georgia clubs in 25 years towards their $25,000 endowment. Now, how much is this a year?

Calling the sum $4,000 instead of $3,800 (as easier to remember and easier to figure) we have $160 as the average annual contribution from Georgia clubs to their endowment during 25 years. A first rate investment we must agree since interest on the whole fund during these 25 years has been about $5,500. We have actually received therefore $1,500 more in interest than the sum of $4,000 which we have put in. Of course the windfalls of $7,600 draw interest just like our $4,000 club contributions as indeed they should but we must bear in mind clubs did not give these but only $4,000 or $160 a year.

This should indeed be a jubilee year for the federation! Any organization has a right to jubilate over the possession of $11,000 in endowment of which they have only given $4,000—and which has paid them $1,500 more interest in 25 years than they have put into the principal!

Why not be encouraged by this unusual good luck to really put out so that the close of the jubilee year will show something even more worthy of jubilation and also of organization pride? I believe many clubs and individuals will be glad to make their $25 jubilee gift and many clubs will like to build their present endowment credit of whatever amount to a founders' $100. In 25 years it would seem that any active club could contribute $100 to come back to them perpetually in federation support.

Remains the great field of individuals who will give one of the founders' roll hundreds—if and when we care enough to show them how very much we want their names on our founders' roll. It all depends on how sincerely and earnestly Georgia clubs and clubwomen resolve during the next six months to "make an effort."

fail through indifference, lack of participation, or lack of financial support. Let's go!

Mrs. Bryan Stresses Better Financing

By Mrs. Morris Bryan, Trustee.

There is work to be done to increase the foundation fund of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, for the progress requires adequate financing needed by any big business. We have the organization. We know the needs and we have the plans. All that we lack is the accumulation of the dollars so vital to the proper accomplishment of our aims. Every business needs working capital and it is certainly needed by an organization as important as the Georgia federation. The interest only is used in the operating expenses, and this is the only income the federation has except the small dues. All members of group one clubs are expected to pay 75 cents into this fund. The policy of investment is strictly legal securities. The interest provided a way for Georgia federation to pay its allotment of $1,600 to the general federation fund, thus saving the individual clubs from additional demands. In 1920, when the trustees were elected and the 75 cents per capita plan was adopted, the fund amounted to $3,-410.10; at present the amount is $11,447.60. Our goal for 1938 is $25,000. Our program must not

Trustee Expresses Her Appreciation.

By Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, Trustee.

I want to express on our special page today my heartfelt gratitude to my club friends who have shown their loving sympathy during my illness and to assure them that they will hear from me more fully. In offering the cook book, "The Georgia Clubwoman's Souvenir Collection of Prized Recipes," for the benefit of the endowment funds in Georgia and the general federation, I have performed a labor of love and I am deeply grateful for the co-operation so many contributed toward the success of my undertaking. There are latent powers in all of us and work is co-extensive with the life of our organization. As long as our federation lives we must keep on building.

Ellijay Woman's Club.

The Ellijay Woman's Club met at the clubhouse November 3 with Mrs. E. T. Hudson, Mrs. R. W. Smith, Mrs. Johnson as hostesses. Mrs. R. W. Smith, the president, presided.

After the business meeting, during which the standard committee reports were given, the following program was rendered: The picture of the month was "La Belle Jardiniere," by Raphael. The song, "America the Beautiful," was sung by the club members. "Youth Prays for Peace," by Grace Noll Crowell, read by Mrs. Joel Stembridge. "Thanksgiving," by C. W. L. Day, read by Mrs. S. C. Gunnels.

Press Chairman Writes of Need Of Endowment

By MRS. HARVIE JORDAN, Press Chairman.

In featuring today the Ella F. White memorial endowment, the trustees of this foundation are offering clubwomen inspirational material to study and use during 1938, the silver jubilee year of the fund which was started 25 years ago. Already there are many evidences of the splendid way in which clubs are making their contribution as an integral part of our great organization. Our work is clearly before us. The necessity for a state federation foundation fund is imperative and the reasons manifold for better financing. Loyalty to and co-operation with the state organization only strengthens devotion and service to the local clubs. In building up the working power of Georgia federation effective machinery is set in motion to create limitless avenues for progressing, culturally, physically and spiritually.

We have read the story of the master builder whose edifice was rising step by step, higher and higher, and another builder who was very near, watching him, said wistfully, "I should like to add some stories to my building, but the foundation won't stand it." The master builder said, "Strengthen your foundation. Then you, too, may build to reach the skies." "Lengthen thy cords; strengthen thy stakes," catch the spirit of the master builder, radiate it to others, and we, too, can build to lofty heights. With an adequate endowment we will grow steadily in numbers, enthusiasm and objectives; our headquarters where the work must be carried on will be maintained permanently; it will be possible to send our efficient leaders to carry our message of service; and our departments, sadly under-financed, will have the monetary handicap removed. Like the Arabs of old, we will learn to measure our distances not by milestones, but by horizons. The horizons beckon and we go marching on, "with lofty aims and purpose high to lead you on to victory."

Questions, Answers Explain Foundation

By MRS. E. M. BAILEY, Of Acworth, Trustee.

Requests for information regarding the Ella F. White Foundation are so often made that this data in the form of questions and answers is offered. You have heard of Kipling's service men—"Who taught him all he knew; Their names were what and why and when, And where and how and who." We have six service women who are telling you today about the why, where, when; the what, how, who of the endowment: our state president and the five members of the board of trustees, with Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, chairman.

1. What is this Georgia Federation Endowment Fund we hear so much about? Answer: A fund of $25,000 to be given by clubs, clubwomen and friends for the financial permanence of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, the interest only to be available to be used for the necessary expenses of the state organization and its service to member clubs. This is your invested bank account, not a loan fund.

2. Why is it necessary for Georgia federation to raise the money? Answer: With the per capita fee of 30 cents (10 cents of which goes to the general federation), the federation cannot adequately extend and broaden its service. All funds given this year will be considered jubilee gifts.

3. Why are clubwomen vitally interested in raising this fund? Answer: Every clubwoman recognizes the value of a larger endowment, income from which will enable Georgia federation to give greater emphasis and support to its projects and plans, and greater service to local clubs.

4. How was Ella F. White begun? Answer: By a special edition of The Atlanta Constitution on June 4, 1913, which earned $3,-100. The suggestion that the fund take the form of a memorial to Mrs. Harry C. White (Ella Frances Roberts), state president who died while giving her time and talents to the office, was made by Mrs. Hugh M. Willet.

5. By what plan has the original sum been augmented? Answer: It was ruled in 1919 that all group one clubs pay 75 cents per capita for their membership. In 1936 it was further ruled that all honor clubs (those in which each member had paid 75 cents into the fund) be asked to pay for all members joining since the roll was made.

6. How was the fund raised to $10,000? Answer: Dissatisfied with the slow progress of the endowment fund the trustees suggested to the state executive board in 1926 that all the interest be turned in for investment until the fund reached $10,000. This goal was attained in 1931 when the fund stood at $10,178.81.

7. How was interest first used again? Answer: By order of executive board and Macon convention of 1930, endowment fund interest was paid to general federation endowment fund at $400 a year for four years—totaling a gift of $1,-600.

8. How is interest now used? Answer: Since 1934, by order of the executive board, full amount of interest is sent by the chairman, Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, to the treasury of Georgia federation to be used for general expenses.

9. How did the Ella F. White Fund profit by the plan for a Georgia Clubwoman's Cook Book? Answer: The first money sent in by any club was used to pay the 75 cents per capita for that club, amount based on the membership in 1936. Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, member trustee, edited the book and gave to Mrs. Fitzpatrick $177 for the foundation fund.

10. Are junior clubs coming into the federation expected to pay 75 cents per capital to the Ella F. White Fund? Answer: If they are group one clubs, yes. The fund is really more important to juniors than to seniors, for they will enjoy the use of it longer.

11. What is the total of the Ella F. White Foundation to date, November, 1937? Answer: About $12,000.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick Issues a Message To Clubwomen of Georgia Today

Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, resident trustee of Tallulah Falls school, who was president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs when the first money for the Ella F. White Memorial Endowment was raised through the Woman's Edition of The Atlanta Constitution. Mrs. Fitzpatrick has been chairman of the fund since 1920. Serving with her are the following trustees: Mrs. John K. Ottley, Atlanta; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, Athens; Mrs. E. M. Bailey, Acworth; Mrs. Morris Bryan, Jefferson.

"The year of jubilee is at hand." The third and youngest of Georgia federation's three great foundations will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary in 1938 and our state convention meeting in Macon last April decreed the Ella F. White endowment jubilee celebration by Georgia clubs—beginning with the autumn meetings of our 10 congressional districts just concluded and reporting results at the forty-third annual meeting in Albany in April, 1938. The goal set is full completion of this support foundation set by Georgia federation at $25,000.

Every district meeting has enthusiastically agreed that Georgia federation needs this completed endowment and by generous gestures has approved the jubilee year. Everything that can be said or done by our leaders of state and district has been said and done. The matter is now squarely up to our splendid individual clubs and the magnificent individual clubwomen who constitute the membership of these local clubs. These are the Georgia federation.

To these clubs and clubwomen I appeal as chairman for 22 years of your endowment foundation—If you want this third foundation finished you can do it easily and by no other means or agency in the world can or will this be done now or ever. I hope especially that every Georgia club will heed the request for an Ella F. White jubilee meeting during the year when no other subject will divide the time and the program will be one of information. In this case information is inspiration, and the Ella F. White committee is using the space so graciously extended us on the club page today to provide all clubs with actual material for an Ella F. White meeting. All Georgia clubwomen should and must know the facts about this support foundation which is every year making possible their great work for social betterment. Read every item on this page to your members at this Ella F. White meeting and send the story of it in to Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Stafford.

We hope that every club will not only make a jubilee gift of $25 from the club itself but will secure many personal gifts of $25. Many clubs have already made fine gifts through Mrs. Ritchie's cook book fund—all of which will swell the jubilee endeavor. And founders! Surely each of us knows somebody who will give you $100 for permanent investment in Georgia federation's endowment fund. Give your friends a chance to help you in your work. They may think it even more important and worthwhile than you do! Clubs may build on to former gifts to make $100 and thus secure a founders' place. Why should we delay? Ella F. White is the only one of our foundations for which a limit has been set—why not reach the appointed goal and that quickly?

In the new year we shall hope for another special club page in which to report the names of jubilee givers and founders up to date. Will not every club and clubwoman resolve now to be found upon this honor roll?

MRS. Z. I. FITZPATRICK,
Chairman Ella F. White Foundation.

State Treasurer Sends Message

By MRS. C. W. HEERY, State Treasurer.

As the present treasurer of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs I reiterate what each of my predecessors has said, that we positively could not get along without the interest from the Ella F. White endowment fund. It is a businesslike plan for putting the work of the federation on a dependable, self-supporting basis. The undertaking to complete this fund during the silver anniversary year has been ratified by the state and the districts, and has been assumed as a definite task of our membership. The time is ripe for the completion of the unfinished endowment and an intensive drive is being made to that end. Before we can release our thought and power towards the theme of the General Federation, "Education for Living," we must build material security so that we can put our best selves into our pursuit for the things which satisfy the mind and elevate the spirit. Remember, "Raising the fund is your responsibility. You reap the benefits. You are the Georgia Federation. The Georgia Federation and the General Federation are you multiplied. The completion of our foundation fund is the remaining need essential to the successful realization of our aims.

Material Suggested In Study Paper By Mrs. Watts

The following suggested material for programs is from a study paper prepared by Mrs. H. A. Watts for a club institute held at the Civic Club of West End, Atlanta.

Georgia Federation is unique among all state federations in the character and set-up of its three foundations—Student Aid, Tallulah Falls school, and the Ella F. White Endowment Fund have been so well chosen, so wisely planned and so continuously carried forward that they fit together as the component parts of a perfect whole and challenge the admiration and commendation of all students of organization. All three are educational in their object and none more so than the third and youngest which provides permanent support for the federation itself and thus supplies a firm foundation for all the splendid service of whatever nature carried on by our great federated structure. This fund is absolutely of endowment character. No penny acquired for it may ever be spent. All must be invested by the chairman and committee named for this purpose and the interest only is applied (by order of Georgia Federation's executive board) "to meet fixed and indispensable annual charges of the central agency" which is of course the Georgia Federation itself.

The need for some permanent financial background for Georgia Federation's work was recognized by the decision in 1912 to "establish an endowment fund of $25,-000." Keenly conscious of this need the plan was warmly championed by the president of Georgia Federation, Mrs. Harry C. White, of Athens, who threw herself with zeal and power back of the project. While making a series of club visits largely bearing upon this proposal, Mrs. White died suddenly in Augusta on January 13, 1913. The federation suitably decided that this greatly needed fund which Mrs. White actually died in advocating should not only be raised in full but should bear her name as a perpetual memorial of her loyal and devoted service towards this end. We should remember this inspiration in pushing the Ella F. White Endowment Fund to completion this year.

Memorial Edition.

By offer of the late Clark Howell (a close personal friend of Dr. and Mrs. Harry C. White) the clubwomen of Georgia published on June 4, 1913, the Ella F. White memorial edition of The Atlanta Constitution from which $3,100 was realized and formed the nucleus of the Ella F. White Endowment Fund of $25,000. Upon the editorial page of this edition appeared a masterly expression entitled "Why Our Federation" from Mrs. Fitzpatrick who succeeded Mrs. White as president in 1913, and served as one of the general managers of this special edition on June 4, 1913. Reprinted in full upon this page this article is as timely today as when it first appeared 25 years ago. Every woman's club in Georgia should make it an important feature of the Ella F. White program which all clubs will hold during the silver jubilee year.

Every reason for stable financial background recited so cogently by Mrs. Fitzpatrick in 1913 is just as pressing in the life of Georgia Federation now as a quarter of a century later. Indeed, we must be far more fully convinced of the value of this support endowment now than when it was begun because we have seen our federation profit increasingly by its ownership as the fund has increased from year to year. Surely no better investment was ever planned or made by any group of women for every dollar put into this endowment fund comes directly back to Georgia clubwomen through the support of their federation itself. Figures in yearbooks show that the actual interest earned by this endowment and spent for the support of Georgia Federation during 25 years equals the entire amount put into the fund for investment by clubwomen. We could scarcely ask more of any fund!

Should we not be encouraged by these facts to get busy and finish this 25-year-old endowment which must be more than twice as large as it stands at present?

Your study program must remind you also of the services of the Ella F. White Endowment Fund to Georgia Federation.

Splendid Fund.

We all remember its provision of $1,600 for our General Federation Endowment Fund in 1930-1934. No mean gift and a big relief to hard-pressed Georgia clubs! But for the interest on this fund we could not maintain our federation headquarters and our incomparable executive secretary. Without these helpful agencies Georgia Federation would be indeed like Sampson shorn of his locks! Our state treasurer received last year $549.17 from Ella F. White endowment interest. And faith did we need it? But for this interest many expenses necessary to our scope and service must have been cut to the bone or club dues must have been greatly increased.

Is it not better for us all to make a "long pull—a strong pull and a pull all together" and carry

Mrs. Conger Issues Proclamation Declaring Silver Jubilee Year

By Mrs. A. B. Conger, State President.

By virtue of the power vested in me as president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and in accord with the act of the executive board, of the board of trustees of the Ella F. White Foundation and of the state convention, I do hereby declare that this year be a year of special endeavor by clubs, districts and inviduals to complete this foundation, and I hereby designate the interval between November 21 and April 15 the time in which a special drive shall be made by all clubs in the state to disseminate information concerning the foundation and raise funds for same.

This is not an ordinary year for Georgia clubwomen. It is a singularly important year, as it marks the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Ella F. White Foundation.

Now we have a program of action that challenges the best that is in us and we have hitched our wagon to a star. We will complete our Ella F. White endowment of $25,000. We have been through periods of struggle, but we managed to meet our obligations because we have a part of this fund. When we fully evaluate the past and present of our federation, and catch the vision of greater service, we will want to respond to this definite objective the trustees are directing. These trustees have a two-fold obligation. They must safeguard the funds which are in hand, and continue to add to these funds. They have made safe investments which are drawing semi-annual interest which on several occasions has truly saved the treasury temporary embarrassment.

The challenge comes to us to strengthen our foundation in order that there may be "more light upon our woman's way." The Georgia Federation has been a living, pulsating light in our state for the past 42 years. By the radiance of its enthusiasm and earnestness the way has been pointed to higher plains of living for women, burdens have been lifted from weary shoulders, health and happiness have been brought where there was disease and disaster, and information and understanding have been disseminated to thousands of women—information that has led to self-culture, that has meant better mothers, better housewives, and better citizens. Although the Ella F. White endowment does not contribute directly to our other two foundations, Tallulah Falls School and Student Aid, it does contribute indirectly to every phase of club work.

If it is true, as some one has said, that the Federation of Women's Clubs "is the greatest collector and distributor of ideas and of the latest methods of accomplishment within the reach of womanhood," surely it must be economically able to progress. The 30 cents per capita is not sufficient to finance the demands modern times and problems present. Greater working capital will provide many advantages that are now denied. A practical program to complete this foundation has been launched and we cannot afford to fall short of the mark if we hold the high standards of our federation. Each year our vision widens and our endeavors grow to greater accomplishment.

this indispensable fund over the top? And why must we go so slowly? In 25 years we have not quite compassed half of the allotted sum. Why not push it over quickly this year by numberless silver jubilee gifts of $25 from clubs and individuals and by placing a lot of $100 names on the founders' roll?

In your Silver Jubilee Club programs of the year you will also tell your members how this support fund of Georgia Federation has been managed from its inception in 1913 with the sum of $3,-100 realized by The Constitution's Ella F. White memorial edition. During the first three years after its establishment the Ella F. White Endowment Fund was under the direction of a chairman appointed by the federation who was responsible only for securing contributions from clubs and clubwomen. In 1915 the fund (which had by this time grown to about $4,000) was turned over to Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick as chairman. In 1920 the executive board of Georgia Federation created a "board of trustees for the Ella F. White Endowment with authority to initiate plans, form policies, secure and invest funds" and again appointed Mrs. Fitzpatrick to head this fund. She has continued in this responsible position until the present time. To Mrs. Fitzpatrick Georgia Federation is deeply indebted for the increased growth of their fund through 22 years and especially for its careful and successful management. No invested money has ever been lost under her guidance and no investment has failed to pay its regular annual dividend. Mrs. Fitzpatrick certainly deserves grateful recognition for 22 years of such valuable service. Why not "say it with gifts"—and bring the Ella F. White Endowment Fund up to its full quota of $25,000 this year and give its splendid chairman the thrill of her life? At one and the same time remember we shall be greatly serving ourselves for the financial independence we all so much desire for our splendid federation will really be at hand if and when we finish our Ella F. White Foundation Fund of $25,-000.

Financial Security Is Emphasized.

By MRS. J. W. GHOLSTON, of Comer, Chairman of Finance, G. F. W. C.

My years of service to the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs in the capacity of past president and chairman of the committee on finance during the present administration, have made me keenly aware of the vital necessity for an adequate endowment fund built up by Georgia clubwomen to promote an expanded program, to meet emergency demands and to provide for the future welfare of our state organization.

It is a comparatively easy thing to build a comprehensive budget, but quite another thing to watch with bated breath the exigencies of time which often make the balancing of said budget next to impossible. The wise parent makes a definite provision for the protection and security of a growing family; so should we, the membership of Georgia Federation, strive to increase our Ella F. White endowment fund to such proportion that a steady income from its wise investments shall flow through our treasury along with other sources of income to meet our growing needs.

Through individual and club gifts to the founders' roll, the honor roll, and the jubilee celebration with teas, benefits and parties commemorating the silver anniversary year of the founding of this fund, let's make the goal of $25,000. Anything less would not be commensurate with the dignity and service of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Now the stage is set—the need is imperative—the plan is before you—the work is started—the goal is in sight. The federation has already placed its stamp for good upon the state and its work will be pursued and felt for generations to come—a glorious goal worth striving for!

Mrs. McCall Pays Tribute to Mrs. White

By MRS. HOWARD H. McCALL.

Among the women of Georgia who heard the call to service was our own beloved past president, Mrs. Harry C. White, of Athens, for whom the federation endowment fund was named, a leader recognized at all times in all things for the benefit and uplift of womanhood. The energy and zeal which characterized her work are enduring incentives to the clubwomen to continue their efforts with unabated enthusiasm. It is fitting that we as clubwomen should appreciate and emulate the work of Mrs. White, whose last dominant message to the women was for a livelier interest in the schools, a keener insight into health conditions, and, above all, a closer study for the welfare of the home and relation to the community.

She splendidly practiced this spirit in her own home as the wife of one of the most popular members of the faculty of the University of Georgia, Professor Harry C. White, and her mother heart gave always a loving care and guidance in her home to her great-nieces, Coatsie and Harriet Benedict. Her impress upon the students of the university was far-reaching. In her service to the federation she carried the same determined spirit evidenced in the church and home, the same devotion to duty and she was identified with all constructive work. There is something beautiful and inspiring in the thought that we, as clubwomen, can carry out the objectives so dear to her heart.

While president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, it was the wish of Mrs. White that an endowment fund be created on a firm foundation and the money raised to assure the continuance of the ideals of the founders. Through all the years to come, this memorial, the Ella F. White fund, will continue to enlarge and carry out the work of the federation, defray the necessary expenses and aid in the practical work Georgia clubwomen are doing. We are not here to play, to dream, to drift, but we have hard work to do and loads to lift. We will have during this silver jubilee year our opportunity to complete our memorial endowment to an honored leader and to express our faith in our federation.

Miss Nisbet LeConte Weds Mr. Grizzard at Brilliant Rites

MR. AND MRS. JAMES T. GRIZZARD.

Miss Nisbet LeConte, second daughter of Mrs. James T. Williams, became the bride of James C. Grizzard last evening at a brilliant ceremony taking place at the North Avenue Presbyterian church in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple who are representatives of prominent Atlanta families.

Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony at 8 o'clock. Miss Emily Parmalee, church organist, presented a musical program prior to and during the ceremony.

Church Decorations.

The interior of the church was beautifully decorated. The altar was banked with palms and fern and placed in the foreground were three tall pedestal baskets filled with white chrysanthemums. Interspersed amid the palms and floor baskets were two 21-branched cathedral candelabra which were offset by smaller candelabra holding seven burning tapers.

Acting as ushers were Julian Thomas, George S. Whitman, Roy LeCraw, R. P. Wilson, W. W. McManus and Dean Paden. The groomsmen were Maxwell Marsh, John D. Humphries Jr., Rosser Shelton, Claude D. Grizzard Jr. and Matthews Harper.

Mrs. J. H. Haddock Jr., of Detroit, was matron of honor for her sister. She was beautifully gowned in a Grecian style model fashioned of orchid net posed over taffeta of the same shade and made along graceful flowing lines. The pleated neckline was full and the waist was featured by a girdle effect formed of three bands of velvet of matching shades. The shoulder straps were of velvet of the same shade and extended from the wide pleated ruffle which formed a border around the low and becoming bertha.

Miss Virginia Hart, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor and wore a gown similar to Mrs. Haddocks' in turquoise blue. The bridesmaids were Misses Ida Akers, cousin of the bride; Clara Lambdin, Emily Harvey and Mrs. Dewey T. Nabors, another cousin of the bride. Their gowns were similar to those of the other attendants and two were in coral pink and two in green. All the attendants carried shepherd crooks topped with bouquets of pink and yellow snapdragons and roses and tiny lavender chrysanthemums. Patricia Grizzard, niece of the groom, was the flower girl and wore a gown like those worn by the other attendants and carried a basket of the same flowers.

Beautiful Bride.

Entering with her brother, George King Williams, by whom she was given in marriage, the lovely young bride was met at the altar by the groom and Harry McCowan, who was best man. The petite blond beauty of the bride was further accentuated by her exquisite wedding gown of old ivory brocade which was worn by her mother at the time of her marriage. The deep bertha, which formed a blouse, was of rose point lace and extended to form a long train which fell over the brocade satin train, which was built into the skirt. The lace veil was embroidered in seed pearls and was scattered with orange blossoms. The V-neck was a becoming feature as were the long tight sleeves. Her veil was of illusion tulle, was worn over her face and the cap was of rosepoint and Brussells lace and fell in graceful folds to join with the same lace which formed the train. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Williams, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in blue sequin fashioned along becoming lines and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Claude Grizzard, mother of the groom, wore a beautiful model of ashes of roses silk lace. Her flowers were orchids.

After the ceremony Mrs. Williams entertained at a small reception at her home on Piedmont avenue for her daughter and Mr. Grizzard, the guests being limited to members of the bridal party and family.

Reception at Home.

The receiving line stood in the living room before a bank of palms and fern and baskets filled with white chrysanthemums. In the receiving line were Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Grizzard and the bride and groom. Throughout the home quantities of bright-colored flowers were used in artistic arrangement as the decorations. The table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and was featured with silver appointments. Mrs. Eugene Harrington and Mrs. Clark Broward presided at the silver coffee services and pouring tea were Mrs. Charles Boynton and Mrs. William P. Dunn. Punch was served on the porch which was enclosed and decorated with palms, fern and baskets of varicolored flowers. Mrs. R. P. Wilson presided at the punch table.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. George E. King and the sisters of the hostess, including Mesdames Hamilton Hart, Claude Smith, William Akers, Jilian Thomas and Carolyn Harris and Miss Frances Grizzard.

Among out-of-town guests attending were Mrs. Morris Bush, of Birmingham, and Mrs. E. W. Grove, of St. Louis.

Mr. Grizzard and his bride left for a wedding trip to points of interest along the Mississippi gulf coast and to New Orleans. Upon their return they will spend two weeks with the bride's mother until they move into their new apartment. The bride chose for traveling a red coat suit trimmed with krimmer fur in cape effect and worn with a bright-colored plait vest. Her hat, gloves and bag were in gray.

Yehudi Menuhin.

Atlanta music lovers are anticipating a rare treat in the concert of Yehudi Menuhin at the Fox theater at 8:30 Wednesday night, for the boy prodigy is returning here as a full-fledged adult artist, who has passed the milestone of manhood, his 21st birthday. He is returning to the concert stage this season after a two-year absence, during which time he rested and studied at the Menuhin ranch in the Santa Cruz mountains in California. And advance reports are that he returns a greater artist than ever.

Novaes' Program.

When Guiomar Novaes, Brazilian woman pianist, who is considered one of the world's greatest, gives her Atlanta concert December 14 at the Woman's Club auditorium, she will play a program that bids to intrigue musician and layman alike.

She will play four sonatas by Domenico Scarlatti, the entire "Sonata in E flat, Opus 27, No. 1," by Beethoven; "Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel, in B Flat, Opus 25," Brahms; three dances by Spencer Norton; "Scherzo in E major, Opus 54," Chopin, and "Dance of Terror" and "Dance of the Miller," both by De Falla. Don Cossack Chorus.

The Don Cossack Chorus, directed by Serge Jaroff, will be presented as an added attraction of the Student Lecture Association of Emory University at Glenn Memorial auditorium on Tuesday night, December 7. Holders of season tickets to the lecture association will be given tickets at half price. Orders may be mailed to Dr. R. H. McLean, 1088 Clifton road, N. E.

The Don Cossack Chorus was organized in 1923 in a prison camp near Constantinople, and since that time they have made musical history as a great singing unit. They have a record of over 3,000 concerts in Europe, England, Australia and America. A Don Cossack concert is a thrilling listening experience.

Ensemble Program.

The program of ensemble music presented by the Atlanta Music Club Tuesday night at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium was one of particularly outstanding artistry.

The artists were Mrs. William Elsas and Mrs. Pierpont Spiker at two pianos, and a trio, Mrs. Leroy Loemker, 'cello; Mrs. F. Henley Gilbreath, piano, and Walter Coleman, flute.

The trio opened the program with Leclaire's "Trio Sonata No. 8" in its entirety. The combination of flute, 'cello and piano is a happy one, and the artists each contributed generously to make the ensemble a finished product. They played with fine tonal balance and colorful shading. Later in the program they gave the entire "Trio Sonata No. 2," by Loeillet.

Mrs. Elsas and Mrs. Spiker played with superb artistry, with perfect synchronization, with unified delicacy and emotion and drama as required, with meticulous phrasing and rich color.

Their first group opened with "Fugue in A minor," Bach-Grainger, arranged for two pianos by Earle Chester Smith, followed by "If I Were a Bird," Henselt, and "Minute Waltz," Chopin. Their last group presented the four movements of Rachmaninoff's "Fantaisie," "Barcarolle," "Night of Love," "Tears" and "Easter."

Impressive Gu'd Service.

The annual service of the Georgia chapter of the American Guild of Organists, Emilie Parmalee, dean, held at All Saints Episcopal church last Monday night, with the combined choirs of All Saints and Peachtree Christian church singing the choral part, was one of great impressiveness, inspiration and beauty. The choir of some 75 voices, with their respective directors, Joseph Ragan, of All Saints, and Mrs. Victor Clark, of Peachtree Christian, did some exceedingly beautiful singing.

The anthem during the prayers, "O Lord, Support Us," by Thiman, was a memorable bit of singing. The climax of the choral part of the service was reached in the offertory anthem, a magnificent and compelling work by David McK. Williams. Mrs. Ragan was at the organ during the service, and Mrs. Clark played the prelude and postlude.

The Rt. Rev. H. J. Mikell preached the sermon a most appropriate and inspirational address on music and its part in one's life.

A CHANGE IN TACTICS

It is apparent to the careful observer that the nation is today witnessing the dawn of a new period in governmental economics. There is abundant indication that the national leaders, faced with imminent failure of those alleged panaceas with which they have attempted to build a new, national prosperity, are now prepared to follow a new road of approach to the consummation of their objectives.

The revelation of this new approach to the nation's vital problem began with the speech of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., in New York. It was followed by the message of President Roosevelt at the convening of congress in special session.

It is emphasized by the evident determination of a large proportion of congress to follow the path pointed out by the President and by Secretary Morgenthau, to lift the too onerous and restrictive burdens from the shoulders of industry and appeal to private enterprise to assume the leadership in the struggle to American prosperity and the fuller life.

Responding to these appeals with action, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, majority leader in the upper house, on Friday revealed that it is planned to modify the undistributed profits tax, the capital gains tax and the capital stock tax. No indication as to the extent of the proposed modification was given by Leader Barkley, but he said "I feel that every assurance should be extended to business, and that business should accept assurance, that the tax structure shall be modified to aid it. . . . We are convinced of the need for reasonable modifications."

It is as though the coach of a football team, seeing that he is losing ground by following one mode of attack, sends in a new back and adopts new tactics to win to the enemy goal line.

Business is being given the ball, after government spending has failed to score.

The attitude of many members of the congress is well illustrated by the declaration of Senator Bailey, of North Carolina, that federal spending must be decreased by one billion dollars and his assertion that the undistributed profits tax must be repealed. This can be done, he states, without the necessity of either sales tax or a broader income tax to offset any possible loss of revenue, but adds that he would "vote for both in order to balance the budget."

The era of huge New Deal spending is evidently over. The President declares that the federal budget can and must be balanced during the present fiscal year. That determination is but a reflection of the overwhelming belief of the whole nation.

Unjust taxes must be removed from business. The undistributed profits tax, which has, ever since its enactment, served to effectually prevent industrial expansion, business enterprise and the re-employment of many workers, must be removed. Other hindering enactments must be modified.

If private business is asked to "carry the ball," it must be given a fair chance. Otherwise this effort is, like previous programs, foredoomed to failure.

Congress is expected to repeal, or amend, those restrictive laws on business to which the President refers in his message. This done, private industry will be expected to absorb a large proportion of the unemployed, to increase production and to provide the sound economic foundation for the building of a more permanent structure of prosperity.

The time is crucial in its probable effect upon the future domestic policies of the United States.

If business succeeds, it will mean the beginning of a new era which may be tagged, in history, the New Capitalism. A capitalism rid of those evils which have, in the past, resulted in unfair division of the nation's wealth, a capitalism awakened to enlarged responsibility and providing the sinews for a new and greater life for all citizens.

If business fails it will probably mean a future given over to more extreme experimentation by the left, radical element in the population. Failure of the New Capitalism may mean, according to leading students of government trends, on the return swing of the pendulum, nationalization of the railroads, the utilities and insurance, which is merely the preliminary to nationalization of industry. Such nationalization is nothing, more or less, than radical rule and would make of the United States a nation bound in the paralyzing bonds of collective totalitarianism.

Congress may be trusted to give private industry a fair break in the tax reforms it will enact as rapidly as possible. Then it will be up to business to make the dreams of the New Capitalism come true. If business succeeds we shall see an America grown triumphant by the force of her own self-discipline, emerging from the morass of world disorder and world despair a stronger and better democracy.

If business fails, the door will be opened for the entry of radical rule into America and the note will be sounded for the dirge upon constitutional democracy.

Never before has American business been faced with such an opportunity for national service as that which, it now seems certain, will in the near future be offered. Never before has the vaunted ability of American executives to plan and to manage faced a test upon which so much depends.

In the ranks of the industrial and business men of the nation is leadership fully capable of accepting the challenge to lead the nation out of the darkness of fear into the light of a new economic day.

A SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-five years ago next January the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs established the Ella F. White Endowment Fund, a memorial to a woman who had contributed tremendously to Georgia's progress and whose leadership will never be forgotten among the clubwomen of the state.

The nucleus for that endowment came from a special Woman's Edition of The Constitution published on June 4, 1913. The money derived from this edition, $3,200, has since grown to $13,000, held in gilt-edge investments. The ultimate goal is $25,000. The interest on this fund is dedicated to the carrying expenses of the state federation and to aid in the practical work of the Georgia clubs in educational, philanthropic, legislative and social reform programs.

The Constitution has been, for 40 years, the official newspaper organ of the Georgia Federation. Every Sunday the official Woman's Club page is published in this paper, carrying the messages of the federation president and other officers and reporting the outstanding activities of the organized women of the state.

Today, in commemoration of the Woman's Edition of 25 years ago and the launching of the Ella F. White Endowment Fund, there is a special Woman's Club page. It is of vital interest to every clubwoman of Georgia.

There is nothing in the history of The Constitution of which this paper is more proud than its part in the work of the women's clubs of the state.

Once again, with the special club page of today's issue, this paper is honored to have an important part in the launching of the silver jubilee celebration, to be observed by every woman's club in the state.

GOVERNOR QUINN IS RIGHT

Governor Robert E. Quinn, of Rhode Island, will receive universal support in his appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the federal government not to enact legislation or rules "affecting freight rates which would give the south an advantage designed to forever prevent further industrial expansion in the north."

Every southerner will agree wholeheartedly with Governor Quinn's words. For every southerner realizes that industrial or business recession in any section of the country cannot fail to have adverse effect upon the prosperity of all other sections.

The south, through its Governors' Conference, is asking the Interstate Commerce Commission not to give this section a freight rate advantage, but merely to undo an injustice which has operated for half a century to handicap industry in the southeast. All the south wants is the removal of a disadvantage which has served to limit industrial expansion here and which would undoubtedly have prevented it altogether had it not been offset by God-given, natural blessings enjoyed by this section.

The entire system of freight differentials arbitrarily established according to territory is unjust. When it penalizes the southeast by unreasonably increasing the cost of transporting its product, it is only simple justice to rectify the inequity.

So we repeat the south agrees, fully, with Governor Quinn's position.

It wants nothing but equality and desires no freight rate "advantage"—even an "advantage" similar to that which the north and east have enjoyed for more than 50 years.

Let There Be Light—Let Reason Prevail—III.

In the course of analyzing in this column the utility problem, and trying to show how the administration's policies have prevented the industry from carrying out construction badly needed for general recovery, we have alternated from discussing certain broad principles of democratic government to minute problems of accounting, such as valuation and taxation. There is a reason for that. Although it may seem paradoxical to those who believe that the essence of liberalism is the unlimited extension of political power, the real essence of liberal government is the detailed coordination of principle and practice.

In the history of 20th century liberalism in America one name is pre-eminent: that of a man whose 81st birthday is being celebrated in these days—Mr. Justice Brandeis. And one of the finest expressions of this liberalism is to be found in his career; and in his program of rational reform, when he was a people's attorney in the 15 years before the war.

In statements which he made before congressional committees in 1914, he harped upon the theme of practical social and economic reform inside the framework of liberal democracy.

The principles of such reform he held to be three: (1) "The first essential of wise and just action is knowledge." (2) "Nobody ought to be absolute; everybody ought to be protected from arbitrariness and wrong decisions." (3) "It was, as I remember, the great Colbert who said, 'Accountancy—that is government'."

The approach of this great liberal statesman to the utility problem differed fundamentally from that of the last four years. In the fight over gas rates in Boston, Brandeis consistently steered a middle course between the diehards and the radicals. He did not permit the public outrage over "watered stock capitalization" to prevent him from working out, in the proposed merger, a just settlement on the basis of the British social invention of a sliding scale rate with profit-sharing by the public, and, within limits, by the stockholders.

His biographer, Alfred Lief, tells us that his proposal at that time was that the invested capital should be allowed a dividend commensurate with the risk—with rates equal to that on borrowed capital for accumulated surplus. And the Public Franchise League, a reform organization which supported his adaptation of the sliding scale, declared:

"The sliding scale will put gas managers out of politics, and politicians out of gas management."

Isn't that still what we want today?

It is still, of course, not what the die-hards want. And it is certainly, of course, not what the politicians want. But isn't it what the people want—the people who, in 1933 and 1936 voted in a liberal government, and not a system of state socialism or state capitalism?

To Brandeis, one of the most conspicuous and consistent of American liberals, who led the fight against the excesses of capitalism, socialism has always been a specter. "Mazzini's program," says his biographer, "expressed his own: 'No war of classes; no wanton or unjust violation of the rights of property'."

The Brandeis spirit expressed itself when he served as special counsel to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Although branded by the die-hards as a dangerous radical, he aroused the opposition of the more radical progressives, because he sought to be impartial, and admitted the inadequacy of railroad earning power, though differing as to remedy. Then he maintained, "The net operating revenues of the carriers . . . are smaller than is consistent with their assured prosperity and the welfare of the community." That the prosperity of an industry had something to do with the prosperity of the whole community was something that he did not doubt for an instant.

And, in regard to surplus, he said, "I, for one, think it very much better to run the risk in court of protecting the community against injustice in respect to the surplus when that comes up, rather than to deny the surplus essential to good business, and essential to the retaining of capital at reasonable rates."

This spirit, when it was younger and at large, and not confined to the sacred precincts of the supreme bench, discomfited the radicals as well as the conservatives. For it was, and is, a spirit moved by reason and an acute sense of equity, and when he was proposed for the supreme court, it was not only the die-hards who fought against confirming him. Senator Clifford Thorne, of Iowa, charged that he was "guilty of a breach of faith and unprofessional conduct in connection with one of the greatest cases of this generation," and he added, "If you pack the tribunal with men possessing preconceived notions . . . as to extremely high returns . . . it is going to be very costly to the American people."

To which Senator Walsh made the observation—according to Mr. Lief—that Thorne represented the cattle shippers upon whom Brandeis tried to put an additional but justifiable load. The commission, of course, refuted the charge and through its counsel showed that Brandeis's function was "to ascertain the truth on both sides." Again, one may say that this ascertaining of truth—of fact—is of the essence of liberalism.

And a score of years later Justice Brandeis, in voiding the original Frazier-Lemke act providing for a five-year moratorium, said: "The fifth amendment commands that, however great the nation's need, private property cannot thus be taken over even for a wholly public use without just compensation." The state, that is to say, may regulate and curb the power of private persons, but it may not expropriate them.

The only real issue in this country today is whether the New Deal is to be, or to become, liberal, or whether it is to be, or to become, collectivist. If collectivist, it will be pseudo-socialist, for it has no genuine socialist philosophy. And pseudo-socialism has taken more nations along more dangerous paths than any other tendency. It is a guaranteed way of upsetting a social order and then defaulting.

And I have discussed the utility question at such length, only because it furnishes a microcosm in which this issue can be plainly seen. As this question is settled, so will other questions be. If settled in reason and equity, in harmony with the Brandeis spirit, much of the present fear will be greatly alleviated.

TEXT AND PRETEXT

M. ASHBY JONES.

The fourteenth Psalm opens with the sentence: "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." One day Jesus took that sentence and dramatized it, with such vivid artistry that "a certain rich man" has lived in the familiar thought of every generation since.

The stage setting is given in a single significant sentence. "The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully." Now you can imagine him viewing from his housetop the broad fertile acres, with their abundant harvest, while he quickly calculates the capacity of his barns for storage.

Then there follows the soliloquy—"he reasoned within himself." How effectively this form is used by all of the great dramatists, when they would reveal the motif of the play, or the essential character of the hero. It is because what others may say about a man, or what the man may say about himself to others, may or may not be true. But what a man says "within his heart," when he "reasons within himself"—what he says to himself—is the man himself. There is revealed the creed with which his life will be consistent, and the motive which will account for all his words and acts. We instantly think of Hamlet's "To be, or not to be," where we are given the key to his character in that inward meditation: "Thus conscience doth make cowards of us all, and resolution sickled o'er with the pale cast of thought, loses the name of action."

The Secret Soul of Man.

Thus, here we enter the secret soul of this man. Read again this monograph of egotism. Note the monotonous chorus of "I." "What shall I do, because I have nowhere to bestow my fruits. This will I do. I will pull down my barns and build greater. And there will I bestow my corn and my goods. And I will say to my soul: 'Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years. Take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry'."

Remember, every man lives within the world of his consciousness. When we entered the soul of this man, we entered his world. Look around. There is no God there. We talk about atheists. There are theoretical atheists. These are the men—many sincere—who failing to justify to their reason the existence of a God, declare there is no God. (However, despite this skepticism, many of these instinctively act day by day, upon the premise of a reasonable universe, which could only be determined by a reasonable Creator.) There are many others, who glibly proclaim a divine creed in orthodox, pious, phraes, but who live day by day without the thought, direction, or inspiration of God. These are practical atheists. There is no sense of obligation to anyone higher than ourselves, and no consciousness of aid from, therefore no gratitude to, any power beyond themselves.

Enter God.

The denuement of this play, is intensely dramatic. Up to this point there was only one man, and his bursting barns of things to eat and drink. Then God enters. His voice interrupts the soliloquy. It is always a shock, sometimes amounting to terror, when thinking you are alone with your own thoughts, the voice of another suddenly breaks the silence. It would be terribly shocking for one who had lived his life without any thought of God, to hear God speaking to him with accents of authority.

And the sentence which is pronounced is simple, but tragic. This man is to be separated from his barns. But that is all that he had. He had spent his life accumulating all of these goods. This was all that his soul had to eat and drink. He had never cultivated appetite or taste for anything else. Without his barns he must starve. This was indeed the sentence of death. We have seen something of this sort happen here in this life. A man has centered his whole soul upon his business, without cultivating the finer tastes for literature, art, music, friends or any of the human interests. Then on account of health, or age, he is cut off from his business. Life for him means starvation. Jesus introduced this drama with the words: "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." How hard it is for men to believe this truth, until here, or hereafter, the sentence is pronounced, that one must leave that which can be weighed and marketed.

The Statue Of Liberty.

I suppose there is hardly a work of man so familiar to as large a proportion of the world's population as the Statue of Liberty, on Bedloe island, in New York harbor.

Even those who have never seen the actual figure of bronze know the picture as the symbol of that freedom which has been the idealistic goal of mankind through the ages.

The other day, for some reason or other, thoughts of the great statue persisted and, to satisfy curiosity, I looked up some history and some statistical facts about it. Maybe you'd be interested, too.

Statistics first:

The height of the statue, from the foundation of the pedestal to the torch is 305 feet, 6 inches.

From the base of the statue proper to the torch is 151 feet 1 inch.

From the heel to the top of the head, 111 feet, 6 inches.

The length of the hand is 16 feet, 5 inches.

The length of the index finger is 8 feet.

The size of the finger nail is 13 by 10 inches.

The head, from chin to cranium, is 17 feet, 3 inches.

The head thickness, from ear to ear, 10 feet.

The eye is 2 feet, 6 inches across.

The nose is 4 feet, 6 inches long.

The right arm is 42 feet long.

The arm, at widest part, is 12 feet through.

The waist is a perfect 35 feet. That is, in thickness.

The mouth is 3 feet wide.

Now for The History.

It was soon after the Franco-German War that a group of prominent Frenchmen proposed the gift of such a statue, from their country to the United States, to mark the centenary of American independence.

Frederic August Bartholdi, sculptor, was commissioned to do the work.

A committee was formed in 1874 to raise funds and, in France, 180 cities, 40 general councils, many societies and thousands of individuals contributed. The cost of the statue was about $700,000.

On February 22, 1877, the United States congress authorized President Hayes to set apart a site on Bedloe island which Bartholdi, on a visit to America, had suggested as the finest location possible.

The money to erect the pedestal, costing $300,000, was raised in the United States by popular subscription. Thus the total cost was about $1,000,000.

The statue weighs 225 tons, or 450,000 pounds. The bronze used in its construction alone weighs 200,000 pounds. It is 3-16 of an inch thick.

Forty persons can stand, at one time, in the head and 12 inside the torch. There are 161 steps inside the statue from the pedestal to the head, and 54 rungs in the ladder which goes up the uplifted right arm.

There are 11 points in the star.

The book which Liberty carries under her left arm represents the Law, which bears upon it, in block letters, the date of independence, July 4, 1776. It is meant to represent Liberty based on Law.

Unveiled Late in 1886.

The head of the statue was completed in time for display at the Paris exposition of 1878. The forearm was sent to America before this, and was shown at the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in 1876. It was removed from there to Madison Square, New York, where it remained until 1886.

On October 24, 1881, the framework and base were first put in place in Paris. Levi P. Morton, the American ambassador, drove the first rivet.

The statue was finished in 1883. On July 4, 1884, M. De Lesseps, president of the French committee, officially presented the statue to Ambassador Morton.

On August 5, 1884, the cornerstone of the pedestal on Bedloe island was laid. Late in June, 1885, the French vessel Isere landed the statue at New York, having transported it from Rouen, France.

The work of putting the various portions together was begun in May, 1886, and the statue was unveiled on October 28, 1886.

The new floodlight system was put in effect in October, 1931, by Mlle. Jose Laval, daughter of the French premier. Ninety-six 1,000-watt lights, placed at the 11 corners of the star-shaped pedestal, flash upward on the monument. For the torch there are 14 1,000-watt lamps.

The statue, has, in recent years, been renovated by the use of PWA funds and there are now freshly tinted walls, a new interior lighting system, sandstone floors and arched, copper-enameled ceilings, all, of course, inside.

A little theater was installed inside the statue in 1935, where a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, is nowadays given, summarizing the history and construction of the statue.

Approximately 250,000 persons visit the statue each year.

Now, I hope, you know a little more about France's magnificent gift to this nation.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Thursday, November 21, 1912:

"MOULTRIE, Ga., Nov. 20.—(Special.)—The establishment of a medical branch of Mercer University in Atlanta was recommended by the committee of education of the Georgia Baptist convention in its report, read by Dr. John E. White, tonight."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Monday, November 21, 1887:

"The population of Elberton has about doubled in the last 10 years, and it is still gradually increasing."

THIS BEDAUX BUSINESS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

If Charles Bedaux had not worked out his scheme for time studies in industry, some one else would have done it. As a matter of fact, many other persons have done it, because "time studies," "measured work," or whatever you wish to call it, is inevitable in mass production. Without some method, wage payments, whether on an hourly basis or by piecework, would be in confusion.

I once made a study of the Bedaux system and I must admit that it was a bit of a job for me. I gave it up in distress. Apparently, you need to be something of an engineer to grasp its relationship to production.

I know one company that uses Bedaux and that has had less labor troubles than its principal competitors who use their own time studies. And the average wage a worker in the company that I know is $1.15 an hour with a 36-hour week—which is not so bad as things go.

"SPEED UP" IS SMEAR WORD

Now the word "speed-up" is a smear word like reactionary, Fascist, etc. And I do not like smear words. Let us get at the essential facts and away from smear words. It is essential in mass production to work out units of production to determine labor costs.

If time studies were not worked out, it would be altogether impossible to know what it takes to make, let us say, a pound of steel or a rubber tire or an automobile. Therefore no price could be fixed.

Even if an annual wage were paid the workers, it would still be necessary to know exactly how many units of a commodity would be produced for the total pay roll, or no price could be fixed.

Of course, all systems of time studies lend themselves to vicious abuses. The worst abuse is that when a so-called norm becomes usual and the men become efficient at that norm and better it, either the norm is changed to prevent the men from earning more money or a new process is devised to justify a new time study.

The employer who does this sort of thing is a crook. He is like the grocer who used to put water in a can of milk. He is like the fellow who sells a diabetes cure or a cancer cure. He just does not play the game, and ought to get a good swift kick in the pants.

DON'T RAP IDEA FOR FEW CROOKS

The fact that some employers are gyp artists does not mean that time studies should be thrown out of the window. I am willing to prophesy that the day will come when leading unions in mass production industries will employ engineers to prepare time studies and measured work charts for them and that union engineers and employer engineers and outside consultants will come to terms on a scientific basis satisfactory to all parties.

And if Bedaux had not got himself mixed up in this stupid business of wet-nursing the Duke of Windsor in this country, there would not have been this hue and cry and general smearing of a normal scientific process. And if the Duke of Windsor had not heiled Hitler so much, maybe the entire seven days' wonder would not have occurred.

Be all that as it may, the scientific value of the system, as I describe it, must not be confused with the Duke of Windsor's political schemes, Charles Bedaux's social aspirations or crooked employers' mental and moral twists.

Soviet Russia employs a system very much like Bedaux. It is a horrible, inhuman use of a scientific method, just as airplanes are used for horrible and inhuman purposes.

A REPORT FROM MOSCOW

Joseph Barnes, Moscow correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, in a dispatch published on April 13, writes as follows:

"The current revision of the norms is important because, unlike that of last year, it will also revise the piece rates paid for each unit of production up to the norm. Although the productivity of labor was increased in heavy industry last year by 26 per cent, the chronic overfulfillment of many norms by good workers was interpreted here as a threat to the primary function of differential wages in the Soviet Union—the incentive to increase the efficiency of labor.

"The Cheliabinsk tractor factory, for example, recently discovered that relatively unqualified workers were getting higher pay than engineers because norms were not adjusted to the recent mechanization and speeding up of their jobs. Overfulfillment of norms by 1,000 per cent is not rare in some factories. All the heavy industries show only 15 per cent of the workers at present under the norms. . . .

"Other miners and steelworkers are now earning up to 2,000 rubles monthly ($400 on the basis of the ruble's internal exchange value) by overfulfilling norms. The average monthly wage, which is estimated at 230 rubles ($46) is likely to continue rising despite the revision of the norms. . . ."

BRUTAL DESCRIPTION

Now this description of the Stakhanov speed-up is absolutely brutal. Overfulfillment of a norm by 1,000 per cent is inconceivable in this country. It would lead to strikes, to attacks by social workers, to government investigations. And quite rightly so. And that is one reason why Russian industry is suffering from what they call "sabotage." The men simply cannot turn out the work on that basis. Nobody could.

Our problem today is not the speed-up, but the need for orders. When such experienced industrialists as Harry Hopkins are advising what should be done, the fact stands out clearly that for the week beginning November 8 steel production was down to 41 per cent, as compared with 74 per cent for exactly the same week a year ago.

No smearing of Bedaux and no Duke of Windsor red herring can laugh that fact away. In August of this year, steel employment was far above 1929 levels; today, steel employment is rapidly going down. This is true in every major industry and we all might just as well look that fact straight in the face.

REASONS NOT FAR TO SEEK

And the reasons for this condition are not far to seek:

1. Labor disturbances.
2. Over-regulation of industry.
3. Ill-timed deflation.
4. Unscientific taxation.
5. Excessive taxation.
6. The conduct of the National Labor Relations Board.
7. The possibility of the passage of the wages-and-hours bill.
8. Consumer resistance.
9. Government competition with private industry.
10. The failure of the building industry to move into line with production.

Take these 10 causes and analyze them yourselves and see how they have affected the economic life of your own city, town or village. Go out and ask questions and see for yourselves how these 10 causes have worked together into a witches' jazz band to put an end to what looked like a boom. When a problem is so obvious, it is not necessary to call in a specialist of the left eyebrow.

COMMUNIST ACTIVITY

And there is still another factor. William Z. Foster, leader of the Communist party, in a brochure entitled "The Crisis in the Socialist Party," writes:

"Here I can mention only a few of the Communist party's chief current activities: At the present time it has mobilized the support of at least 5,000,000 workers and others in support of the workers' unemployment insurance bill (H. R. 2827). It is playing an important part in the American Youth Congress, which at its convention in Cleveland, July 3, 1936, had 1,400 delegates representing a membership of 1,700,000. The Communist party is likewise a vital factor in the American League Against War and Fascism, a movement which held its third congress in Cleveland in January, 1936, with an attendance of 2,070 delegates from 1,840 organizations of 3,291,906 members. The party's role was also one of significant importance in the organization of the great united front National Negro Congress in Chicago, February, 1936, of 1,817 delegates representing 1,200,000 members organized in trade unions, churches, youth clubs, etc. In all these united front movements the Communist party is an official participant. It also is taking an active part in the present big drive of the CIO to organize the steel, auto, rubber and other mass-production industries. In addition, the party is active in developing the Farmer-Labor party movement. This was acknowledged when, at the May 30, 1936, Farmer-Labor conference in Chicago, attended by prominent leaders of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, many local labor parties, etc., the Communist party delegates were officially seated."

FEAR IS MOTHER OF DEPRESSIONS

I am willing to take Mr. Foster's word for it. But with all this going on, capital becomes very careful. Instead of our dollars flowing into new enterprises and expanded enterprises, they are being kept close at home. Mr. Foster's report stimulates fear, and fear is the mother of all depressions.

Personally, I think that Charles Bedaux stepped out of line when he attempted to guide the Windsors—they can find their way around without him. Similarly, I think that the Windsors are becoming a nuisance and ought to find an occupation that would keep them off the front pages of newspapers.

But Bedaux and Windsor apart—what about production in the United States? What about keeping men at work at decent incomes?

Landing on Plymouth Rock

(The First Thanksgiving.)

Dark were the skies—
The thunder rolled and crashed!
Destructive billows raged
And wild waves pounded—dashed
About the Pilgrim ship—
The Mayflower—
Trying the weary hearts aboard,
In that tense hour.

No turning back
Nor wavering the course were they;
Undauntedly all through the night
They knelt to pray
For the faith to kindle
Where a hope was dead . . .
For strength to seek
The steadfast light ahead!

Bright were the skies!
The dawn at last!
Realization of their dreams in store,
And comfort from the stormy past.
No boasts of conquests filled the air,
Nor vain rejoicing did they share;
But one by one in meekness knelt
Expressing all the glory felt.

In prayer of gratefulness
For peace through the turmoil . . .
Safety . . . clearing all the doubt
And fear of foreign soil.
How firm the Rock of Refuge seemed
To that Pilgrim band!
How sweet that first Thanksgiving
Fulfilled in Freedom's land!

GEORGIA TRAILS VIRGINIA IN REVENUE BY $28,220,000

Sister State Raises $62,960,000 Income Without Either Ad Valorem or Sales Tax

With $9,000,000 Eliminated in Liquor Levies, Corporations, Inheritances, Automobile and Trucks and Intangibles Seem to Supply Difference in Revenues Between Two Commonwealths.

The state of Virginia, which has Carter Glass and Harry Flood Byrd in Washington watching the federal treasury, last year received for its state government a total of $62,960,000 and expended for all purposes the sum of $60,-207,500, raising this tremendous sum without either a state ad valorem tax or a general sales tax.

Georgia received and expended only $34,800,000.

In area Virginia is only slightly more than two-thirds the size of Georgia. In population it has 2,400,000 residents compared with 2,900,000 Georgians. But with numerous fortunes that date almost as far back as the founding of Jamestown the state has a per capita wealth of $2,347 as compared with a per capita wealth of only $1,528 recorded for Georgia.

Largest in South.

Virginia's per capita wealth, the largest in the south, tells a great part of its tax story.

In telling any story about Virginia and its finances it is well at the outset to stress the fact that the state has what is considered one of the best commonwealth controlled liquor store setups and to point out that in its revenues of $62,900,000 there is included $13,-380,000 received from liquors and wines and that of this $9,993,000 was paid out during the year.

The state's profit from its liquor stores and its wine business therefore is considerably less than $4,000,000. In other states which have a population close to that of Virginia and which license liquor dealers and tax their products the tax yield runs about $3,500,000, just about the profit Virginia receives.

So in any comparison of tax structures with the state of Georgia perhaps it would be best just to knock off the $9,983,000 which the alcohol control board spent and call its profit a tax on the liquor industry. In doing that Virginia's income drops off to something like $54,000,000. That figure is still far more than Georgia's and even more when the difference in population is considered as well as the smallness of Virginia's area.

Population Denser.

Virginia, though truly a southern state, is more like the north than any other state in our section, unless it is North Carolina. Virginia's population is far denser than that of Georgia. While it has no large city comparable to Atlanta it has many more secondary cities than does Georgia. And it has a far greater percentage of its population living in municipalities and therefore paying city taxes and reaping any benefits derived from municipal government than does Georgia.

As has been pointed out Virginia gets all of its money without levying a state ad valorem tax and without a general sales tax. It is interesting to note where this money comes from. It seems that while all of the state departments get their cash in a somewhat different manner they spend it in the same way. So the interest lies chiefly in where the money comes from.

Like every other state in the union the chief source of revenue is the gasoline tax. Virginia has a five cents per gallon tax. Last year it yielded $13,600,000. Georgia has a six-cent levy which last year netted the state about $18,-000,000. Considering the lower tax and the smaller population, not to mention the much less road mileage to be built and maintained, Virginia got a little more per capita out of its gasoline tax than did Georgia.

Auto Tag Rate Higher.

But that is only half of the picture. Virginia is one of those states which gets big prices for its auto, bus and truck tags. Last year the tags brought in $5,380,000, making the income from automobiles approximately $19,000,000. Georgia obtained only $1,000,000 from tax so, added to the $18,000,000 from gasoline it is shown the two states received approximately the same amount of revenue.

This year Georgia has added a special bus and truck maintenance tag but the cost is still only about half of that in Virginia on small trucks and less than half on larger trucks. So if the other figures are not changed materially a much larger Georgia will get only a slightly larger income from gasoline and auto, truck and bus tags.

Virginia's liquor and wine picture has been painted. Beer also is an important item. Beer is not under the liquor control board but is handled by the state tax commission. The tax is $2.75 per barrel, compared with $2.50 per barrel in Georgia. Virginia's levy figures to 1 cent per bottle, Georgia's to slightly under 1 cent. Last year Virginia netted $1,700,000 from its beer. Georgia, with a tax then of only $1.25 per barrel, received about $500,000. This year Georgia's beer income is expected to be just about $1,000,000. So it would appear that Virginians go in for beer on a much larger scale than Georgians do.

Intangible Tax Levies.

Although it has no state ad valorem tax, a source of revenue which yields Georgia $5,000,000 annually Virginia has a system of intangible tax levies which last year yielded $2,300,000 or nearly half what Georgia got out of its ad valorem tax. This money came from the following items: Bonds and notes, $875,000; money, $200,000, and capital not otherwise taxed, $1,225,000. Georgia's yield includes what little the state got from intangibles but it is frankly admitted by tax officials that only the minutest portion of this income came from intangible property. Practically all of it came from tangible properties.

Virginia's $2,300,000 appears to roll in because the state long ago set up a classification program, something Georgia is trying to do now. It must be remembered, however, that this classification program has been in effect for nearly 10 years and the $2,300,-000 yield therefrom has been built up over this period of years.

The rate of taxation is 50 cents per $100 on bonds. The same on other evidences of debt. Money in banks is taxed at the rate of 20 cents per $100 and capital is levied on at the rate of 75 cents per $100. There is no tax on stocks.

The last available Virginia figures show that the bonds, notes and other evidences of debt in the state totalled $169,000,000, while money in the banks totalled $93,-000,000.

Virginia's comptroller general estimates that these figures represent only about 50 per cent of the total intangible wealth. They are still trying to get the rest of it on the tax books.

Income Tax Greater.

Virginia obtained a much larger revenue last year from its income tax than did Georgia, the former netting $3,000,000 from corporations and $1,100,000 from individuals while Georgia was getting a total of approximately $2,500,000. The individual rate in Virginia, however, is is only 1.65 per cent. This year the Georgia rate has been practically double and the State Revenue Commission is anticipating a yield of nearly $5,-000,000 next year when the taxes on 1937 incomes are collected.

Virginia levies a 3 per cent tax on the net income of corporations. It might be added that the state also collects 2 per cent on the gross receipts of common carriers.

A sizable portion of Virginia's revenues, $4,800,000 comes from its own institutions, its board and tuition fees for students. Georgia last year obtained $3,000,000 from this source.

In addition Virginia obtained more than $1,000,000 from sales of products produced in its institutions, including its penal system.

Georgia last year received $1,-500,000 from its cigar and cigaret tax. Virginia makes no special levy against tobacco products. This year Georgia's levy on cigarets has been doubled and the income from tobacco is expected to run between $2,500,000 and $3,-000,000, a sizable figure in comparison with the total revenue.

Under the head of "rights and privileges" Virginia collected last year more than $3,000,000 in various licenses and taxes. Business licenses alone netted $1,900,000. Other licenses brought in $1,-300,000, while corporation registrations and charter fees netted more than $500,000.

Georgia obtained from business licenses and corporation fees only $1,300,000.

Insurance Income Double.

Insurance companies paid Virginia nearly twice as much as they did Georgia. The Virginia records show that $1,500,000 came from this source, while Georgia obtained $800,000.

Virginia likewise collects a stiff inheritance tax from its decedents while Georgia satisfies itself with only that portion of the federal inheritance levy allocated to the states. Inheritance taxes netted Virginia $930,000 last year, while Georgia obtained only $86,000.

The revenue figures are concluded by showing the grants from the federal government.

Virginia last year received $4,-380,000, while Georgia received $5,540,000. In both instances most of the grants were for highways.

Here follows a comparison of the expenditures of the two states:

Although all of the figures are based on the reports for the last fiscal year, taxpayers, of course, are more interested in the present situation. Therefor, at the outset of any discussion of the expenditures of the two states it might be well to point out that neither state participated in the federal social security program last year. Virginia is not yet doing so. Georgia is going in for it on a large scale. Despite a late start Georgia now is the second southern state in the matter of social security benefits. It bids fair to be the top ranking state in this connection before another year rolls around.

Highways Lead Costs.

Highways, of course, lead the expenditures. Including the federal moneys expended Virginia laid out $20,900,000 for road construction, maintenance and the like. This included that it spent on primary as well as secondary roads. Georgia, federal grants included, spent a total of $16,245,000. None of Virginia's gasoline revenue is allocated to other sources. A third of Georgia's gasoline income goes to the counties, half of the grants for schools and the other half for road work.

Education got the second largest slices of the total incomes of both states. Here Virginia has a large lead.

Virginia gave its common schools more than $7,000,000 last year. Georgia gave only $4,000,-000, although during the year former Governor Talmadge, by transferring other funds, paid off several millions of dollars in past due school debts. This year, however, Georgia is doing better by its elementary schools. There has been an appropriation of $9,000,000 which though reduced by budget necessities will net the schools about $8,000,000 and unless Virginia steps up its school expenditures Georgia bids fair to surpass it for the first time in history.

In higher education Virginia likewise expended last year far more than did Georgia.

Including tuition and fees which the Virginia institutions retained and their appropriations from the general assembly of that state the colleges and universities under state control expended a total of $7,400,000 of which $1,900,000 was from appropriations. The balance was from fees and federal grants.

Georgia Expends $3,400,000.

For higher education Georgia expended a total of $3,400,000 including students fees and tuition and also including the state's portion of a building program launched during the year.

Virginia's outlay in connection with its liquor store operation already has been pictured.

Virginia expended $1,300,000 during the year in paying interests and reducing principal on debts. Georgia has no debt.

Georgia appears to be far in arrears in expenditures on its penal system. Virginia spent $900,000 on its convicts, Georgia only $200,000.

Likewise, Virginia expended far more than Georgia on its eleemosynary institutions, the care of its insane and feeble-minded alone costing more than Georgia's entire outlay for all eleemosynary institutions. Georgia's total appropriations paid for these purposes were only $1,500,000, while Virginia spent slightly excess of this amount on feeble-minded alone. Another $500,000 of Virginia money went for its tuberculosis sanitarium. Still other sums went for its various boys' and girls' training schools, which in Georgia were under the old board of control of eleemosynary institutions.

Public Health on Par.

For public health, Virginia laid out a total of $600,000, compared with $100,000 in Georgia. This year, however, Georgia's health program has been expanded to a point where it now equals the program in Virginia.

Virginia had one expense last year Georgia did not have, a session of the general assembly. It cost $200,000.

Despite its smaller size and smaller population Virginia spent as much or more than Georgia for its executive department, including constitutional offices as did Georgia. The cost of the courts ran about the same.

No effort has been made here to tell whether Virginia has a better state governmental set-up than does Georgia. Only the revenues and the costs have been shown.

Leaving liquor out of the picture the income of Virginia has been shown to be $20,000,000 more than Georgia. The corporations, inheritances, automobiles and trucks, and the intangibles seem to supply the difference in schools and colleges get the money in higher appropriations. revenues. The roads, public

EMORY LAW SCHOOL GETS HISTORIC RELIC

Bishop Candler Presents Jefferson Davis Letter, Resenting Term 'Rebellion.'

"It is an abuse of language to denominate the act of a sovereign a 'rebellion.'"

Thus did Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy from 1861 to 1865, condemn congressional records in a letter to L. Q. C. Lamar, then a leading Mississippi jurist, which has been presented to the Emory University law school by Bishop Warren A. Candler.

Written in 1881 from Davis' home, "Beauvoir," located near Biloxi, Miss., the letter reads:

Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar,
My Dear Friend:

Please accept my thanks for your many favors in sending me parts of the Congressional Records. I have this day received the first volume of the series of the official records of the so-called rebellion, to me both a matter of interest and use, if they will only publish what our people wrote we can afford to let them employ as many epithets as they please, though I always feel that it is an abuse of language to denominate the act of a sovereign "a rebellion," and that anyone must be very ignorant of our political history who does not know that the states of the Union were and necessarily must be sovereign as long as the Union exists. We are all looking forward with much interest to the deadlock in the senate. Jacob is not satisfied with robbing his brother of his birthright, but wants to steal his loose treasure to make himself secure in his possession.

Very truly yours,
JEFFERSON DAVIS.

The letter will be added to the "treasure room" of the law school, where other valuable documents of interest to Georgia and the south are kept.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The columns of The Constitution are always open to the expressions of the public, regardless of the opinion expressed. The only limitation on communications are that they shall be signed; be brief—preferably not longer than two or three hundred words—and not libelous. All communications will be subject to editing, and none will be returned unless postage is inclosed.

FOR MILITARY ROAD BUILDING

Editor Constitution: The increasing success of Japan in its present war of aggression is a threat to all other countries, not excepting our own.

Since our country is obviously not going into a war in order to "prevent war," some other method of defense is called for, and it seems to me that the best is a system of military roads from the center of the United States to strategic points on both oceans. The Atlantic is included, because not even a war-crazed nation would dare attack us without some assured ally, and that ally would have to be a European nation.

This system should obviously include railroads, but mainly it should be trunk highways, like the two recently built into Atlanta. The military advantage of this preparation would be to effectively quadruple our present military force, making great enlargement unnecessary, even in actual warfare. Even the present force, with the filling out of the existing divisions and the national guard, as already provided by law, would be able to "git thar fust with the most men," according to the receipt for victory usually attributed to Nathan Bedford Forrest.

If all the present activities of the WPA and PWA were turned to the job of such road building, the program would not materially increase our expenditures. Yet, directly and indirectly, it would provide work for most of those now unemployed. Hence it should stop at once the incipient "depression."

"THE POPPY LADY" IS PLEASED

Editor Constitution: May I attempt to express my appreciation and gratitude to you and your remarkable paper for your loyalty to the Flanders Fields memorial poppy symbol? From the beginning of its public service The Atlanta Constitution has been ever enthusiastic and loyal to the limit. I am truly indebted to the press for its success, and to no member of the press more than to The Atlanta Constitution. I thank you.

MOINA MICHAEL,
"The Poppy Lady."
Athens, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

THE FARMER-LABOR PARTY

Editor Constitution: Ever so often both the Republican and Democratic parties are threatened with a Farmer-Labor party. Can you imagine anything more amusing than the farmer and union labor dwelling in the same house?

The standard wage paid by the farmer to the experienced day laborer is 10 cents per hour without bed or board. This same old dollar has been paid by the farmer for 50 years for 10 hours' work; sometimes in snow, sometimes in rain, often in mud or freezing weather; while union labor is demanding of industry or its lowest paid laborer 40 cents per hour in warm, comfortable factories.

The farmer is misguided by speeches of politicians and labor leaders and led to think that industry is gouging them with high prices on everything that the farmer buys that industry makes. Nothing is farther from the truth. It is only by mass production that industry can make any profit whatever.

AIDED THE A. M. E. CONFERENCE

Editor Constitution: In your paper of Wednesday, November 17, practically a column of your most valuable space was used to tell about the closing of the A. M. E. conference in Atlanta last week, and also gave a list of the appointments as well as the notice of the Macon (Ga.) conference that is beginning today.

I am writing to express the deep appreciation, not only of the A. M. E. churches in the city of Atlanta, but also my personal appreciation to you and your paper for giving to the conference so much space. I am quite sure that it will hearten our people and encourage them to go forward when they see a great paper like The Atlanta Constitution giving so much space to their religious activities. Personally, I am not surprised at the gracious attitude of The Atlanta Constitution because of my acquaintance with its personnel.

President Morris Brown College.

THE GOVERNOR'S PROGRAM

Editor Constitution: If ever a legislative body had its duty cut out—and that of its own cutting—the general assembly which meets in extraordinary session Monday is that body. That duty is to impose sufficient taxes so that ample revenue will be available to carry out the Governor's program.

Governor Rivers made his campaign upon a platform that could not have been misunderstood by any voter of sufficient intelligence to mark a ballot; old age pensions, free school books, seven months' free school term, and exemption of homes and household effects from taxation. This was a pledge to release a major portion of property from ad valorem taxation, and at the same time materially increase the expenditures for the benefit of public schools, and the new charge of old age pensions, otherwise known as "social security."

The general assembly recognizing the constitutional restrictions that stood in the way of the program hastened the passage and submission of amendments to enable the fullest exercise of the taxing power of the state and counties in its behalf.

A vigorous campaign was inaugurated in behalf of the amendments, sponsored by the state Democratic executive committee, and supported by the individual members of the assembly, urging ratification of the amendments; the amendments were overwhelmingly ratified, and have received the sanction of the courts. So, what remains to be done? Simply provide revenue.

The people of Georgia have said they want the program and the Governor is well within his rights in demanding that revenue ample for its needs be supplied.

GEORGE L. GOODE.
Toccoa, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

AN APPRECIATION FROM MEDICAL PROFESSION

Editor Constitution: I want to thank you for the news item about the public health survey.

It was a pleasure to note your editorial of indorsement, and I want to assure you that the medical profession is unanimously behind every movement that is for the benefit of the masses.

I also desire to express to you the good-will that the profession holds for your paper, especially in indorsing this movement.

C. C. AVEN, M. D.
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

SAYS FOREIGN DEBTS CAN BE PAID

Editor Constitution: Your editorial of recent date explained why foreign countries failed to pay their obligations to us, after we had entered the war and saved them from utter ruin.

You will find, however, that they are able to pay all debts they care to pay. They lay out billions annually for war preparations of all sorts and pay everything except their debts to us. They raise money, without trouble, for anything else except to pay what they owe us, and the only reason they do not pay us is because they do not want to. Their record in world affairs shows very clearly they can pay anything they want to pay.

C. F. SMITH.

CATHEDRAL HONORS ROBERT E. LEE

Editor Constitution: In the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine in the city of New York, a stained glass window has just been installed in the Army-Navy bay of the great nave.

In the military side of this window are the figures of the following:

Saint Cornelius, Saint Alban, Charles Martel, George Washington, General U. S. Grant and General Robert E. Lee.

St. John's is the largest Gothic cathedral in the world. Eminent architects have said it should last as long as the Pyramids.

I trust that southern visitors who come to New York will visit this great cathedral — one of whose windows honors General R. E. Lee.

F. P. EDGAR.
New York, N. Y., Nov. 20, 1937.

TO RELIEVE THE TAX BURDEN.

Editor Constitution: The seriousness of the tax burden upon the shoulders of the citizens is so great that every avenue of reduction should be considered. And there is no real reason why we should continue to use the gasoline tax exclusively for roads when we might be able to use part of this for relief, social security and for other revenues.

The condition of Georgia roads for the past several years required the spending of many millions, but I don't believe it would hurt if we tapered this off and used part of these funds for other purposes so as not to continue to burden the taxpayers who are now heavily laden.

ARMAND MAY.
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

COUNTY OFFICERS' APPRECIATION.

Editor Constitution: I appreciate the splendid write-up and position given the county commissioner campaign against centralization, and I want you to know that your co-operation is appreciated.

I know this has been a great aid to us in our work.

C. A. Matthews, Chairman, Board of Managers, Association County Commissioners of Georgia.
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

LIBRARY BOOKS ASKED FOR SCHOOL FOR DEAF

Editor Constitution: The Georgia School for the Deaf, at Cave Spring, is in serious need of a library of general good reading matter for its resident students. We are endeavoring to fill this need through personal gifts and we would deeply appreciate if any Georgians who could would send us a few volumes. Those who have duplicate copies of favorite works, or who can spare some of their books, could find no better cause to which to donate.

Once we had a flourishing library in the school, made possible by the kindness and generosity of friends. During the depression our library suffered so seriously, however, that it now needs rebuilding from the ground up.

The state supplies necessary school books and reading for classroom purposes, but our limited funds are inadequate to supply recreational or out-of-school reading, which the deaf children need so vitally in their handicapped lives.

Our local friends here are responding splendidly to our appeal for books. If other friends throughout the state will do likewise we will soon rebuild our library into a collection worthy to fulfill an urgent need.

MRS. HARRIET CONNOR STEVENS.
Cave Spring, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

DAVENPORT STORY TOO ABSURD FOR BELIEF

Editor Constitution: I wish to express to you my appreciation for the splendid editorials and the space given in your paper in answer to the unwarranted attack on the textile industry by Walter Davenport in the Collier's Weekly. It is indeed strange sometimes to observe the measures some people will adopt and the extent to which they will go in some things. Even though there are a great many mills who do not have company stores, the mill commissary or outside store that may be used for that purpose is an extremely helpful thing for the people, as it enables them to obtain credit and at competitive prices.

To a person who is familiar with textile conditions in the state and treatment accorded the employes of the textile mills by the management of the mills, such an article as that by Mr. Davenport is so ridiculously absurd that it seems almost inconceivable that anyone could believe it, and for such to be represented as the normal conditions obtaining among textile mills is an insult to just plain ordinary intelligence.

L. L. JONES,
President, Canton Cotton Mills.
Canton, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

THANKS CONSTITUTION FOR CHEST CAMPAIGN AID

Editor Constitution: I feel that I should say to you that The Constitution has gone farther in its efforts to help this year's Community Chest campaign than any of us had any right to expect and I feel that it is only right and proper that I should express to you on the behalf of those of us concerned with this year's campaign that we all owe you a debt of gratitude for the generosity displayed toward the campaign by the management of The Atlanta Constitution.

HARRY SOMMERS,
Chairman 1937 Community Chest Campaign.
Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

A TAX FOR VIOLATION OF ETHICS

Editor Constitution: The editors of a certain publication, in publishing the story entitled "All Work and No Pay," have violated the ethics of their profession. All of which was a deliberate and purposeful slam at the southern textile industry.

I submit this suggestion as a remedy to such propaganda:

May the next session of the legislature impose a 50-cent tax on all newsstand sales of this magazine, making the single copy sell for 55 cents and a $25-a-year tax on every subscription sold in this state, making a year's subscription cost $27.

LEON RESPESS JR.
Decatur, Ga., Nov. 20, 1937.

HELPFUL ENEMIES

Editor Constitution: Mr. Davenport's article about our textile manufacturers will have a constructive effect on our southern mills.

One's bitterest enemies often help one more than the closest friends.

Recently I saw a pay envelope for two weeks for a hosiery worker in Decatur, Ala., a young man recently from a farm, which contained $109.

Now as to the effect of the Davenport article, it might be said that all church people are unfit for society by reason of the fact that some one member is unfit for society.

I am writing a letter to Mr. Davenport, as a southerner thanking him for his help in throwing the light on the whole of us as well as a few.

WORK IN HARMONY FOR PROSPERITY

Editor Constitution: The recurrence of depressions in America is not a necessary economic phenomena. The remedy is intelligent co-operation upon the part of all of the different groups which make up the American public. Such co-operation is sufficient to stop depressions and install an era of continuous prosperity in America.

A great step toward such co-operation would be made if the different groups would stop blaming one another, recognize their relations to each other and give credit to the other for what he is doing for us.

Who having any faith in American institutions, regardless of the particular group to which he may belong, doubts that if the laborer, the employer and the banker will honor and respect one another, work together, remembering that they all together constitute the great American family, depressions will end and prosperity reign.

IN DEFENSE OF SOUTHERN MILLS

Editor Constitution: I am wondering just how thorough Mr. Davenport traveled the mill districts of the southeast? He certainly couldn't have made a very extensive trip, because after traveling this territory for over 25 years, I find it very hard to reconcile his findings with what I have seen every day.

If the poor downtrodden slave or peon of our southland has so little or no money, where does he get the money to pay for over 400,000 automobiles that are registered in the state of Georgia? Who gave the cars to them? Who pays for the upkeep, tires, gas and oil? Where do they get the money to attend the numerous picture shows that you find in every community where first-run pictures are often seen before they reach the larger centers at about half the cost? What does he use for money when he buys a radio, and who pays for the mechanical refrigeration in his mechanical ice box?

If they are in such bondage or slavery, would they be inclined to spend much time on the recreational grounds that are to be found in most mill villages, where can be found swimming pools and all of the newest recreational devices that can be found on any up-to-date playgrounds? Isn't it human nature that if one is poor and miserable for the lack of funds or from overwork that they seek solace in their own homes, rather than in these parks?

Mr. Davenport is no doubt sincere in what he has written, but I feel sure that if he were to make an independent investigation without seeking out isolated cases, or going to the out-of-the-order mill, as he undoubtedly has, he would find much on the brighter side that would make just as interesting, and certainly more truthful, reading than what he has written.

Tomorrow Is 183d Anniversary Of Birth of Abraham Baldwin

Georgia Signer of Constiution, Native of Connecticut, Declared "Father of the University of Georgia."

By HERMAN H. DIERS.
Courtesy of the United States Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission.)

The state of Georgia tomorrow pays tribute to one of its most illustrious sons, Abraham Baldwin, on the 183d anniversary of his birth. Baldwin was born on November 22, 1754, at North Guilford, Connecticut, a son of Michael Baldwin, a blacksmith.

He graduated from Yale College in 1772 and joined the ministry in 1775. He taught at Yale for four years and was a chaplain in the Continental army, returning as a tutor to Yale at the close of the Revolutionary War.

Later he entered the legal profession and was admitted to the bar in Fairfield county in 1783. In January, 1784, he went to Georgia and a year later became a member of the Georgia house of assembly. He lived in Augusta while representing the middle district in congress in 1790.

Little is known of his political activities prior to the federal convention, though it is a matter of record that he served in the congress of the confederation in 1785, and subsequently, and he was thereby entitled to membership in the house of assembly of Georgia.

Played Significant Part.

At the United States constitutional convention which met in Independence Hall in Philadelphia from May 25, 1787, to September 17, 1787, he was considered the most able and brilliant of the three delegates or "deputies" from Georgia. Although a fine speaker, he was never aggressive in speeches and debates, yet he played a significant part during the greatest crisis in the convention—he was one of the two signers of the constitution from Georgia.

While a member of the constitutional convention, Mr. Baldwin at first was opposed to equal representation of the several states and favorable to representation on the basis of property, but later changed his vote, bringing about a tie between the small and large states, and was appointed a member of the committee that framed the compromise which was accepted. His personal association with deputies from Connecticut probably was the cause of his conviction that all states should be equally represented in the United States senate. Connecticut, at that time, threatened to lead the small states in withdrawing from the convention, and it was Baldwin who averted a crisis.

He later became a member of the first house of representatives under the federal constitution, where he served continuously until he entered the senate in 1799. He remained in the senate until his dath in 1807.

Loyal to Georgia.

Mr. Baldwin held the interests of his adopted state at heart and remained loyal to his constituents at all times. Throughout his brilliant career he was a consistent, though a moderate, Democratic-Republican. In his speeches he frequently made reference to the reports of the committees of which he was a member or to questions that involved reference to the actions of the constitution of the United States.

While in the senate he was president pro tem during the first session of the seventh session. His infrequent speeches were considered able and moderate.

Supported Jefferson.

Mr. Baldwin strongly supported Thomas Jefferson during his administration and during the impeachment trial of Justice Samuel Chase he was one of the members who voted for a conviction. Because of his intense loyalty to his state, he opposed the receiving of petitions against slavery. Baldwin remianed a bachelor throughout his career, was economical in his habits and helped many people in financial distress.

His name is perpetuated in Georgia by Baldwin county, established in 1803, and the Georgia State University stands as a monument to his prophetic vision. He deserves to be called the "Father of the University of Georgia."

His funeral was attended by many of his esteemed colleagues and he was buried in the Congressional cemetery in Washington, District of Columbia.

GEORGIANS TO HAIL ROOSEVELT AGAIN THANKSGIVING DAY

STATE CO-OPERATES IN U. S. OBSERVANCE OF FORESTRY WEEK

Slash Pine Festival at Waycross To Be Feature of Celebration.

Civic organizations throughout the state are planning co-operation in observance of Georgia Forestry Week, which begins today, Frank Heyward Jr., state forester, announced yesterday.

Proclaimed by Governor Rivers, the week will be featured by the annual Slash Pine Festival at Waycross, where the most extensive demonstration in forestry will be given. Naval stores industry will be stressed.

Methods by which the state's forest resources can be doubled within a few years were emphasized by Forester Heyward.

Objectives Are Listed.

"Fire prevention and control to save young trees for future forests are primary objectives," he said. "Second, abandoned land and cut-over areas must be reforested when they are not reproducing by natural methods. Third, thinning of forests to develop commercial timber more rapidly, and conservative methods of harvesting forest products, will aid in restoring the forest resources."

A plan to promote better utilization of forests has been developed by the forestry service.

"Attention is to be directed during Forestry Week to the necessity of so managing timber lands as to support as many different wood-using industries as possible," Heyward said. "The greater the number of bidders, the better the bargains.

Varied Uses Cited.

"Also, some trees are bringing a much higher financial return when harvested for saw timber, for instance, than when cut for pulpwood or railroad ties. The pulpwood demand, created by paper mills, can be met in large quantities from forest thinnings and from tops of saw and pole timber, leaving well spaced trees to grow more rapidly to provide naval stores, saw timber, poles and timber for other old-line wood industries." He pointed out pulpwood cutting schools recently have been held in south and middle Georgia.

"Integrated use of Georgia forests by which the greatest variety of wood-working industries will be supported is the only way that Georgians will reap maximum profits from their forest resources," he asserted.

Heyward is arranging for speakers to address civic organizations taking part in Forestry Week, which ends November 26.

TARVER WILL FIGHT FOR DRASTIC SLASH IN U.S. EXPENDITURE

Reduction in Outlays Must Come Before Tax Cuts, Georgian Asserts.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—With actual preparation of the 1938 budget opening in earnest next week, when subcommittees of the house appropriations committee begin hearings on a number of the major departmental supply bills, Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, only Georgia member of the committee, is prepared to lead a fight for drastic economy in governmental expenditures, he said here today.

The subcommittee on state, justice, commerce and labor, of which Judge Tarver is second-ranking majority member, is expected to open hearings Monday.

Tarver's Comment.

Commenting on the insistent urge from all parts of the country for immediate revision of the capital gains and surplus profits taxes, Representative Tarver said:

"Had a majority of the membership of congress entertained the opinion which I have previously expressed regarding national expenditures, the need for heavy taxation would be much less than it now seems to be. It is absolutely necessary for the welfare of the country that we bring our expenditures within our national income, and if we continue abnormally heavy expenditures we must naturally expect abnormally heavy and enoreous tax burdens. I favor the reduction of taxes, but the best way to go about it is to first reduce expenditures, thus justifying a tax reduction without creating further national debt."

Reduce Expenditures.

The Georgian feels present economic conditions can be corrected only by a reduction of national expenditures within a sum which the government is able to raise by ordinary and reasonable methods of taxation. To this end he is prepared to direct his energies as a member of the all-powerful appropriations committee. He does not wish to skimp or save where normal and vital activities of the federal machine are concerned, but he does favor the cutting to the bone of emergency outlays except where actual privation is concerned.

LAYMEN'S SESSION IS HELD BY A. M. E.

Visiting BishopUrges Clergy To Aid Job Hunters.

MACON, Nov. 20.—The Macon conference of the A. M. E. church conducted a minister and laymen's institute here under the direction of the Rev. R. H. Porter, in which Dean J. R. Coan, of Turner Theological Seminary, delivered a lecture on "The Place of the Minister in This Changing World." Other speakers on the program were Bishop Noah W. Williams, of the fifth Episcopal district, who is making a good-will tour of the southern wing of the A. M. E. church; Dr. Frank Madison Reid, pastor of St. Paul A. M. E. church, St. Louis Mo.; Dr. John Adams, presiding elder of the Topeka, Kan., district and a Kansas lawyer, and Dr. Frederick D. Jordan, dean of the school of religion, Quindaro College, Quindaro, Kan.

Bishop Williams, in his address, stated "It is not only the duty of the minister to preach Christ to his people, but to co-operate in finding jobs for them," for, said he, "the economic condition of the world today demands brave and courageous leaders in the pulpit."

The review of the reports of presiding elders revealed a healthy increase in financial and numerical statistics of the conference budget. At a meeting of the presiding elders of the state, it was agreed that the presiding elders' council will convene in Milledgeville, Wednesday, December 8, for the purpose of arranging pastoral budgets for the conference year of 1937-38.

The educational mass meeting was held last night. Drs. George A. Singleton, editor of the Christian Recorder, Philadelphia; Professor J. R. Coan, and President W. A. Fountain, of Morris Brown College; Treasurer J. B. Harris, and Colonel Arthur W. Lewis, a leading white lawyer of Macon, delivered addresses on Christian education.

The conference is scheduled to close Sunday, following Sunday school conducted by the Rev. A. J. Harris, conference superintendent; the ordination sermon by Bishop Fountain, and the reading of the assignments.

LIFER REARRESTED AFTER GUN BATTLE

Wounded, Seized in Florida Holdup Attempt.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Capture of Fred Housewert, escaped life-termer from Palm Beach county, after a 40-mile chase and gun-fight with Highlands county officers near Fort Meade early today, was reported here today by Deputies J. T. Lawrence and Sam Hendry.

They said Housewert escaped in a fusillade of bullets from a house surrounded by nine men, stole two cars, and held up a night policeman, who shot him in the face with a shotgun when he tried to commandeer the officer's car.

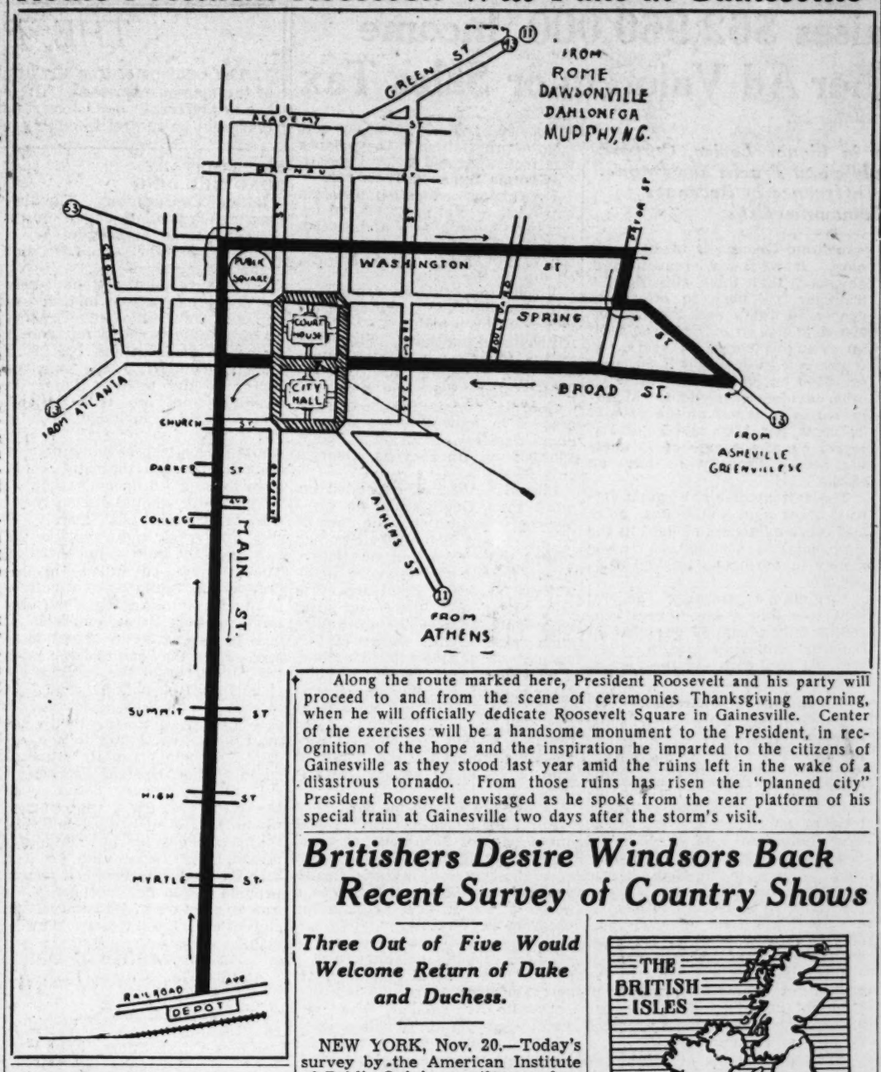

Housewert, serving a life term for a $2,000 theater holdup here, got away from a state road camp near Wewahitchka 10 days ago. Local officers, informed the fugitive was hiding in a house three miles north of Avon Park, surrounded the place, Deputy Lawrence reported. He said Housewert came out firing and escaped through a hail of answering shots. He made his way to Fort Meade in two stolen cars and was captured there by Night Policeman N. R. Hankins, who shot the fugitive in the face, Lawrence said.

Route President Roosevelt Will Take in Gainesville

Along the route marked here, President Roosevelt and his party will proceed to and from the scene of ceremonies Thanksgiving morning, when he will officially dedicate Roosevelt Square in Gainesville. Center of the exercises will be a handsome monument to the President, in recognition of the hope and the inspiration he imparted to the citizens of Gainesville as they stood last year amid the ruins left in the wake of a disastrous tornado. From those ruins has risen the "planned city" President Roosevelt envisaged as he spoke from the rear platform of his special train at Gainesville two days after the storm's visit.

The Blackstones were taken to the hospital by Jere Wells, superintendent of the Fulton county schools, who was passing by and saw the collision.

B. S. Taylor was reported as operator of the car.

METHODIST BOARD SCORES ISOLATION

Foreign Missions Group Holds U. S. Must Do Part.

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A resolution concerning the conflict between China and Japan, adopted today by the Methodist Episcopal board of foreign missions, said Christians "Must deal with the inequities and injustices and inordinate ambitions which are the destroyers of peace."

The resoluton was submitted by Bishop H. Lester Smith, of Cincinnati, at the closing session of the board's three-day 119th annual meeting.

It said that "In the momentous decisions called for in the realm of co-operative action, the United States must bear its full part. Irresponsible isolation is futile, ignoble and UnChristian."

The resolution said "We speak as friends of all nations and enemies of none."

UNIONS ASK PROBE

'White Collar' Group Charges Extortion Plot.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Seven "white collar" CIO locals urged authorities today to "prosecute to a decisive conclusion" their current investigation of reputed extortion by several Cleveland labor leaders and unions.

"The chief victims of such practices are the rank and file of union members," the CIO resolution said. "The cause of trade unionism and the advancement of labor depends on leadership that has intelligence and integrity."

A county grand jury is investigating evidence of asserted labor racketeering gathered in a four-month investigation by Eliot Ness, Cleveland safety director. The grand jury, which was in recess today, has heard several out-of-town businessmen who, Ness said, had been victimized by union agents in connection with building activities here.

Britishers Desire Windsors Back Recent Survey of Country Shows

Three Out of Five Would Welcome Return of Duke and Duchess.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Today's survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion on the popularity of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in this country parallels a similar survey conducted in Great Britain by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

The British survey, published in the English news magazine, "Cavalcade," three weeks ago, found that three Britons out of five want the Windsors to return to England to make their home.

The British Institute is a new affiliate of the American Institute of Public Opinion.

In the last 10 days American correspondents in England have cabled newspapers here that an "astonishing" pro-Windsor wave is sweeping Britain. Movie audiences applaud pictures of the Duke and Duchess with increased enthusiasm, correspondents say, and newspaper offices are receiving heavy sacks of pro-Windsor mail.

Would Welcome Windsors.

By a coincidence, the percentage in the British survey favoring the return of the Windsors is 31 per cent—the same percentage shown in today's United States survey as welcoming the couple to this country.

19 U. S. AIRPLANES EN ROUTE TO CHINA

$1,000,000 Cargo Reaches London After 12,000-Mile Odyssey.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A $1,000,000 cargo of 19 American-made bombing planes bought by the Chinese government had reached London tonight after a strange 12,000-mile odyssey to evade the federal embargo on movement of war materials in government-owned ships.

The Malancha, British freighter docked in London yesterday after leaving Philadelphia November 9.

To what port she next would take her death-dealing freight, or whether she would surrender it to another craft, was not known. An attempt to send the planes directly to China across the Pacific failed recently when the Wichita, owned by the United States shipping body, was ordered to discharge them from her hold at San Pedro, Cal.

The planes' destination presumably was China—possibly to bomb Japanese cities for the first time in retaliation for the aerial havoc wrought by Nipponese airmen on Shanghai.

Aviation experts said the planes had a sufficient flying range to hop the Yellow sea to Japan, each carrying half-a-ton bomb loads, and return to Chinese bases. They are faster than the swiftest Japanese war plane.

3 DRAW HEAVY FINES IN BOOTLEGGING CASES

AUGUSTA, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Federal Judge W. H. Barrett today imposed sentences and heavy fines on three men described as members of the last big moonshine bootleg ring in Georgia.

Toboggans Lose Appeal As Quints Spot Swings

CALLANDER, Ontario, Nov. 20.—(AP)—What started out to be a wild and woolly toboggan race on the snow-covered playground of the Dionne quintuplets ended unceremoniously today when the girls decided they'd rather swing.

Five new two-seaters were brought out for the quintuplets' first toboggan frolic. They organized a race but abandoned it when a swing caught their eyes.

Jackie Coogan, Betty Grable Wed In Church Rites

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Jackie Coogan, who starred with Charlie Chaplin as the ragged urchin in the silent screen hit, "The Kid," 18 years ago, and Betty Grable, blonde screen actress who has been his sweetheart for three years, were married today in St. Brendan's Catholic church. The Rev. William L. Mullane officiated.

There were scores of top-flight movie actors and actresses in the little church to see the ceremony and speed the couple away on the briefest of honeymoons, at Palm Springs, nearby desert resort. Jackie and Betty must be back on a movie lot next Monday to resume work in their picture, "College Swing."

Conn Grable, retired St. Louis stock broker, accompanied his daughter to the altar. Mrs. Lillian Grable, the bride's mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bernstein, mother and stepfather of the bridegroom, occupied front pews.

Miss Grable wore a light grey ensemble and veil, with a silver fox coat.

Among those who attended the wedding were Jack Haley, Buck Jones, Alice Faye and her husband, Tony Martin, and Anne Shirley. Alan Gordon, actor, was best man, and Bob Hope and Arthur Lake, actors, were ushers. Mrs. Grant Garrett, wife of a screen writer, and her sister, Mrs. David Arnold, of Kansas City, attended Miss Grable.

CHIEF EXECUTIVES OF 9 DIXIE STATES TO MEET PRESIDENT

Ceremonies in Gainesville To Mark City's Resurgence From Ruins.

INDISPOSITION FAILS TO HALT VISIT PLANS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The White House today announced definitely that President Roosevelt will carry out his original schedule, leaving here for Georgia November 24, despite earlier reports that the slight illness he has suffered the last few days might postpone his Thanksgiving visit to Warm Springs.

The President's indisposition, accompanied by a slight temperature, was caused by an infected tooth, which was extracted Thursday. Since then, he has steadily improved.

Georgia this week will be host to President Roosevelt and perhaps the greatest assemblage of state chief executives held here in a generation, when the President comes to Gainesville to dedicate the city which grew out of the 1936 catastrophe and the Governors arrive for a conference with the President at Warm Springs on the problems of the southeast.

The Gainesville celebration will be held Thanksgiving morning and the Governors' conference at Warm Springs the following day.

In between, Thursday night, President Roosevelt, missing from the head of the table last year, again will carve turkey for his several hundred friends and fellow patients at the Warm Springs Foundation.

Gainesville Celebration.

The Gainesville ceremony will be featured by the dedication of a monument to the President for the aid he rendered the city when it was in ruins.

The chief executive stopped there in April, 1936, a few hours after the storm had killed 200 of the town's 8,500 residents and flattened more than 900 buildings, including nearly all the business structures.

He rallied the stricken survivors and gave them a vision of the "planned city" that could rise from the devastation he surveyed as he spoke from the rear platform of his train.

With the aid of some $3,000,000 in federal loans and grants, such a "planned city" has been raised.

Birth of Monument.

It was on the first anniversary of the disaster that an anonymous letter to the Gainesville News launched the movement for a tribute to the President by calling for some concrete token of appreciation to the man "whose presence and words stirred us out of our lethargy, waked us to our necessities, and filled us with new ambition."

The central object Thanksgiving Day will not be the new churches, schools, hospitals or public buildings. It will be a 78,000-pound block of marble—a monument to Franklin Delano Roosevelt to stand in the town's new "Roosevelt square."

100,000 Expected.

While feeling the President's visit to them to dedicate the new buildings will be a personal call on personal business, the citizens are preparing to accommodate at least 100,000 visitors they expect for the day.

Loud-speakers are being placed at strategic points throughout the business section of the city.

Their program calls for Governor Rivers and numerous other state officials to meet the presidential party at about 10 a. m. (E. S. T.) With the President will be Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr. The latter will unveil the Roosevelt monument—said to be the first erected to the President.

Going to Warm Springs.

The President will continue on to Warm Springs after the exercises and will be unable to attend a Thanksgiving dinner for distinguished visitors at Riverside Military Academy, but dinner for his party will be placed on the special train.

At the dinner at Riverside, Governor Rivers, Senator George and Robert Wood Johnson will speak, and heads of federal agencies which aided in the rebuilding of Gainesville will be presented.

Governors' Conference.

The Governors of the nine southeastern states will assemble in Atlanta Friday morning and journey to Warm Springs in a group.

They will meet at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. En route to Warm Springs, they will be escorted to the hall of the house of representatives at the Capitol by Governor Rivers and there presented to a joint session of the senate and house of representatives.

The Governors will lunch at 12:30 o'clock with the President, and after luncheon will take up a discussion of their problems. Following this meeting, they will gather by themselves to talk out their program for sectional development.

After the meeting, they will return to Atlanta and start their journeys homeward.

The visiting chief executives will be: Governor Fred Cone, of Florida; Governor Olin D. Johnston, of South Carolina; Governor Clyde R. Hoey, of North Carolina; Governor Gordon Browning, of Tennessee; Governor A. B. Chandler, of Kentucky; Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama; Governor Hugh White, of Mississippi, and Governor Richard W. Leche, of Louisiana.

Last Roll Call for Georgia Units Is Sounded by Legion Auxiliary

By MRS. C. B. McCULLAR,
Of Milledgeville, State Publicity Chairman.

This sounds the last call for roll call by telegraph on November 21 for Georgia units. Mrs. Edgar Pullen, of Cordele, department president, is in Indianapolis, and has asked for Georgia's name to be called on the national list on Tuesday, November 21, in order that she may have time to receive any telegrams from Georgia units reporting their highest possible membership. Reports may be telegraphed to Mrs. Pullen in care of the National American Legion Auxiliary, Indianapolis, Ind. The department president reporting the latest percentage of quota obtained.

Mrs. H. E. Sanford Jr., of Atlanta, membership chairman and second vice president, has led Georgia's membership drive, and urges all units to make valiant efforts to enroll every possible new member, and to enroll every old member again. The $10 award, if won by Georgia, will be turned over to the unit that has obtained the highest membership quota. Unit secretaries are reminded that dues for all members reported in the November 21 roll call must be in a national headquarters on December 13.

Handbooks, requested by many units, have not been received by the department scretary yet. Notice from Mrs. Gwendolyn W. McDowell, national secretary, says that since the national convention ordered several changes in handbook regulations, it was necessary to have these handbooks reprinted. They will be sent out early in December.

Mrs. Carl Saye, of Athens, and Mrs. R. B. Thornton, of Hawkinsville, memorial committee chairman, urged auxiliary leaders to attend the unveiling of the Moina Michael marble bust at the state capitol in Atlanta at 12 o'clock on November 27. Moina Michael statuettes were sold all over Georgia by the units. On Armistice Day the Gainesville unit placed these statuettes in the new Hall county library and in the high school there.

Miss Helen Estes, of Gainesville, past department president, and now serving as both state chairman of Americanism and Area C child welfare chairman, has been indorsed by her units as a candidate for southern vice president. Miss Estes left this week for Indianapolis to attend the national conference of presidents and secretaries and the child welfare conference there.

Mrs. Earl Griffin is the new president of the Altamaha unit, succeeding Mrs. H. C. Brown, who has moved to Macon.

Many units have requested the name of the department's music chairman. She is Mrs. John Gaudry, 307 East Thirty-fourth street, Savannah, and she will be glad to give units any advice about music for their programs. The Crisp county unit at Cordele has published the new song, "The Poppy," written by Mrs. W. B. Bennett, and these may be obtained from them at 25 cents per copy. Mrs. Bennett's other song, "The Blue and Gold," officially adopted by the department, will be published in the handbook.

Buford unit has named the following leaders for the year. Mrs. Daisy Neal, president; Mrs. Frank Y. Light, vice president; Mrs. Lloy Pruitt, secretary; Mrs. Logan Kelly, treasurer; Mrs. Thesta Settles, recording secretary; Mrs. John B. Spains, sergeant at arms; Mrs. Frank Bowdon, chaplain, and Mrs. Grady Morgan, historian.

Crisp county post lost its membership race with its unit, and entertained the auxiliary members with a banquet at the Suwanee hotel. Officials of the Legion and Auxiliary in that district were guests of honor, as was Mrs. Edgar Pullen, unit member there and department president.

The Fitzgerald unit joined its post last Thursday in celebrating the dedication of a new athletic field there. Congressman Stephen Pace was speaker.

The Habersham Unit No. 84 at Cornelia will be hostess to the ninth district convention on December 1, Mrs. E. R. Harris, district leader, presiding.

The Louis Battey Unit No. 4, of Augusta, Mrs. C. L. Edmunds, president, will entertain Mrs. Edgar Pullen as guest of honor at a membership banquet there December 2.

Mrs. W. M. Gorman, department secretary, will be away from her office in Cordele, from November 19 to November 28. Replies to any letters to her there will necessarily be delayed during that time.

The Habersham Unit No. 84 has chosen these leaders for the year: Mrs. C. H. Alden, of Cornelia, president; Mrs. D. H. Harrison, of Clarkesville, vice president; Mrs. C. C. Kimsey, of Cornelia, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. J. C. McClure, of Cornelia, chaplain, and Mrs. W. R. Ramsey, of Clarkesville, sergeant at arms. This unit clothes two children at the Alto tuberculosis sanitarium.

Mrs. R. K. Whiteford, poppy chairman, reports 115,725 poppies sold this year. The quota was only 104,000.

Former Atlantans Play Hosts To Mrs. Strobhar in Washington

By Sally Forth.

NEWS regarding Mary Hawkins Strobhar's visit in Washington, D. C., concerns prominent former Atlantans who are filling every minute of her stay with interesting social diversions. At present Mary is visiting her lifelong friends, Carrie and Dana Belser, who, since moving from Atlanta to the national capital, have become prominent additions to the district's married set.

November 27 will find Mary in Philadelphia attending the Army-Navy football game. Since she will be accompanied to the Quaker City by Colonel Duncan Grant Richart, U. S. A., and Mrs. Richart, it is safe to wager that she will cheer the Army squad to victory. Mrs. Richart is the former Mary McCleskey, of this city, a cousin of Mary's, and she and Colonel Richart are prominent figures in Washington army circles.

En route to the nation's capital Mary stopped in Quantico, Va., to visit her mother, Mrs. William Garnett Strobhar, and her brother and sister, General and Mrs. Richard P. Williams. Mrs. Williams is the former Helen Strobhar, of Savannah, and her husband, General Williams, is a high-ranking officer in Uncle Sam's marine corps. The Williams' occupy one of the handsomest homes situated on Officers' row in the military reservation at Quantico and are leaders in the post's social life.

At the officers' ball celebrating the 162nd birthday of the marine corps last Wednesday, Mary was listed among popular visitors attending the gala affair. According to newspaper reports, the high light of the celebration came when Commanding General James C. Beckinbridge handed his sword to Major General Commandant Thomas Holcomb, of Washington, who cut the huge birthday cake. Prior to the ball the Atlanta visitor was one of the honor guests at the dinner given by Colonel and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd.

The Atlantan was also among the visitors attending the luncheon given by General and Mrs. Williams for Rear Admiral and Mrs. Alfred W. Johnson, the admiral taking the review of the parade presented by the first marine band on Lyman field prior to the luncheon.

Mary is scheduled to return to Atlanta in early December, but if she follows the urge of friends and relatives in Virginia and Washington, the month will be well on the wane before she resumes her accustomed place in social ranks.

RECEIVING with Helen Bell and her mother, Mrs. W. R. Bell at Helen's debut luncheon yesterday were a duo of the debutante's devoted cousins, Mrs. W. L. MacDougall, of Atlanta, and Mrs. L. P. Longino, of Milledgeville. Helen is the namesake of Mrs. Longino, who was before her marriage Helen Maxwell, of Milledgeville, and such a bond of affection exists between the two that the latter has played an important role in the Atlanta belle's debut season.

It was Mrs. Longino who begged the privilege of sending Helen the flowers to be worn at her luncheon, which, by the way, was one of the loveliest parties marking the debutante calendar. And what could have been more appropriate than the crimson-throated orchids which Helen wore pinned to the shoulder of her red, black and silver lame blouse? If you were there, you doubtless noticed the stunning effect.

HAVE you heard about the attractive elderly man who had this experience at one of the season's larger parties honoring a debutante? He saw one of the members of the "deb" club standing nearby and, admiring her sweet and charming manner, walked up and began a conversation. He told her how lovely she looked, and asked who she was and if she were the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blank.

The young girl talked enthusiastically for a few moments, then gave the man an inquisitive look and said, "By the way, while we're talking, who are you?"

"Oh, nobody of any importance," said the genial man—"I'm just giving this party!"

---

ONE of the loveliest of the New York debutantes this season is Anne Somerville Grosvenor, daughter of Mrs. Charles S. Whitman and the late Edwin P. Grosvenor, of New York and Newport, and the cousin of Atlanta's Mrs. Samuel N. Evins and Mrs. Joseph K. Orr. Anne will be presented to Gotham society at an elaborate tea-dance to be given Thanksgiving Day at the Ritz-Carlton hotel by Mr. and Mrs. Whitman.

The debutante, who resides at 502 Park avenue, is one of the most beautiful and cultured young girls in New York society. She attended the Chapin school in New York, graduated cum laude from Foxcroft school, Middleburg, Va., and is now in her second year at Vassar.

Her mother is the former Thelma Somerville Cudlipp, of Richmond, Va., and she is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Cudlipp, of Richmond, and the late Dr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Grosvenor, of Amherst, Mass. Her uncle, Dr. Gilbert H. Grosvenor, of Washington, is president of the National Geographic Society, and she is a cousin of the late ex-President and chief justice of the United States, William Howard Taft.

W.C.T.U. Temperance Education Fund Outlined by Mrs. Armor

By M. FRANCES MEADORS BURGHARD.
Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

"Science has proved untrue every claim beverage alcohol ever made that would support its right to the patronage and protection of a civilized world," declared Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, of Atlanta, when she spoke of the temperance education fund of one million that the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union is raising.

She has listed as centurions individuals and unions that have contributed $100 or more to the temperance fund the past year: Mrs. E. E. Chance, Miss Daisy Crisler, Mrs. J. M. Glenn, Mrs. H. H. Harding, Mrs. G. W Harvley, Judge T. O. Hathcock, Mrs. T. O. Hathcock, Columbus Roberts, Mrs. Columbus Roberts, Mrs. A. W. Voight, E. L. Darling and Albany, Atlanta (Druid Hills), Atlanta (McPherson), Atlanta (Peachtree Road), Augusta (Sibley), Augusta (Woodlawn), Bainbridge, Baxley, Canton, Cedartown, Carrollton, Commerce, Columbus, Decatur, Demorest, Eastman, Gainesville Greensboro, Griffin, Macon, Milledgeville, Manchester, Moultrie, Newnan, Fifth District, Pelham, Sandersville, Savannah, Thomasville, Union Point, Waynesboro, West Point and Valdosta. She said, "So many lack only a few dollars of being centurions."

Mrs. Armor is the chairman of this fund for Georgia.

Some of the multitudinous worth-while activities of Mrs. Mary Scott Russell, state president, are taken from her report compiled for the state convention: "Have traveled 7,000 miles. Have attended and spoken at 18 district meetings, contacting more than 100 unions, also visited 22 separate union meetings. Helped to organize three unions, made 66 speeches.

"Attended two all-day peace meetings and several committee meetings; attended three mass meetings; attended more than 20 committee meetings with the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition: went twice before the Christian Council.

"Spent 16 days at the legislature; held conferences with legislators and senators; assisted in getting in 60,000 petitions to the members of the legislators from the 'folks back home' urging them to hold Georgia's dry law. It is believed that these petitions saved the outright repeal of the law by the legislature.

"Compiled campaign sheet and youth slip (about 75,000 of each distributed in the state). Sent legislators and senators 600 letters and 2,000 sheets of literature. Spoke before the temperance committee of the legislature; broadcast over WSB just before election.

"Attended the World's W. C. T. U. convention in Washington; sent back a 'flash' for papers; attended State W. C. T. U. convention in Cartersville. Attended convention of the P.-T. A., also midyear board meeting.

"Aided in the 12-week itinerary of Dr. Julius White over the state; attended a number of the presentations of his visual education with slides.

"Presented the alcohol education to six Sunday schools and four schools.

"Wrote three articles and sent to all of the 218 papers in the state. Wrote letter and other articles for 10 issues of the Georgia W. C. T. U. Bulletin.

"Wrote for Parent-Teacher Magazine; wrote foreword for temperance day programs sent out by the State Board of Education. Was called six times before the State Board of Education for consultation about a text book for high schools. Introduced Miss Bozeman to state board; interviewed secretary of G. E. A., Dr. Willis Sutton and others in regard to dates for Miss Bozeman before Teachers' Institutes; also in regard to educational exhibit at Southeastern Fair; placed posters in educational exhibit at fair.

"Sent literature and thousands of blotters for use at other fairs. Sent 100,000 pages of temperance literature from headquarters to members, students, teachers and preachers.

"Had interviews with leading educators, with the judge of the juvenile court, with members of the Associated Press. Had two pictures taken by A. P. and sent out with a statement about the effects of alcohol.

"Wrote hundreds of letters and postals to members and others; answered hundreds of inquiries over the phone; held numbers of personal interviews at State W. C. T. U. headquarters. Entertained guests, kept rooms rented, superintended papering and repairs; kept in touch with debtors of headquarters fund; turned in taxes, conferred directors.

"Had entire charge of office this year, only calling in help when necessary. Did scientific temperance instruction work and citizenship department work in absence of the directors."

After reading of these intelligent beneficent activities, the comment should be, "Well done good and faithful servant."

Resume of U. D. C. Convention In Richmond Outlined by Editor

By Miss Mary Lizzie Wright, of Elberton, Editor Georgia Division, U. D. C.

The general convention recently held in Richmond, Va., was one of the largest conventions ever held. Georgia division had largest voting strength of any division except Virginia, having 195 delegate votes and one president vote. A large delegation from Georgia attended, including Mesdames Frank A. Dennis, Walter D. Lamar, Clyde F. Hunt, Charles D. Tillman, A. Belmont Dennis, W. P. Smith, Misses Phoebe H. Elliott, Rebecca Black PuPont. Mesdames Walter S. Coleman, Ivy F. Thompson, C. G. Stegin, E. G. McDonald, W. L. Bird, H. P. Redwine, J. W. Culpepper, W. M. Rapp, J. T. Moon, C. B. Cauthen, S. D. Wright, C. Robert Walker, Ira E. Farmer and Miss Henrietta Redwine, Georgia's page.

The U. D. C. now has chapters in 33 states, the District of Columbia and Paris, France. The president of this chapter, the Marquise de Courtivron, being represented by proxy. An inspiring ceremony was the presentation of the flags of each state where there is a chapter, by the respective presidents to the first vice president general.

Georgia division was signally honored in the election of one of its most distinguished daughters, Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, to the hign office of president general. Mrs. Lamar has served her state with distinction as president from 1911 to 1915, has served as chairman of important committees in the general and has just completed her term of office as historian-general. She has done much to advance the name of Sidney Lanier for the Hall of Fame, being chairman of that general committee, also serving as director for Georgia on the board of the R. E. Lee Memorial Foundation for the restoration of Stratford, ancestral home of the Lees in Virginia.

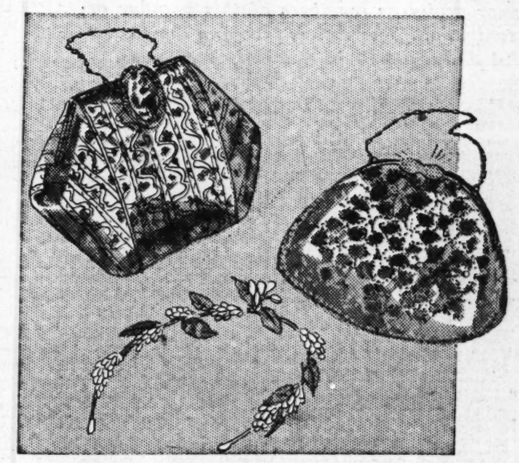

Georgia division, as always, brought home many prizes, among them being the Alexander Allen Faris cup for the division registering the largest number of members between 18 and 25; the prize for largest increase in membership of C. of C. to Mrs. O. L. Chivers, former third vice president and director of C. of C.; the Osburn cup for best diary of a woman of the Confederate period to Mrs. Ola Malone; the medal for best essay on Admiral Raphael Semmes was won by Miss Florida Campbell Prior, of Madison; second place for largest increase in membership of C. of C. went to Thomaston and the division tied for second place in awarding military crosses.

Mrs. Lamar's splendid historical evening was one of the features of the convention. The inspiring processional of color-bearers, of division historians, wearing original costumes of the sixties and carrying state flags, was followed by the presentation of crosses of military service. Among the recipients was Carter Glass Jr., whose cross was pinned on by his father, Senator Carter Glass. Mrs. Lamar spoke on "Our Heritage" and expressed the great need of a condensed life of President Jefferson Davis for schools and also for southern plays suitable for presentation in schools and chapter meetings. An interesting incident of the evening was the presentation to Stratford by the West Virginia division of a quilt made in 1770, at a quilting party when the announcement was made of the approaching marriage of Lettice Lee of Stratford.

Invitation was accepted from the Oklahoma division to hold the next convention in Tulsa.

Mrs. Ira E. Farmer, of Thomson, has been appointed chairman of publicity. Chapter reporters please take note of this and send a duplicate typed copy of all chapter write-ups to Mrs. Farmer at the same time sending to division editor. Rules for competing for the Coleman Pringle cup for best publicity will be announced shortly.

Laura Rutherford Chapter, of Athens, met with Mrs. Peter Brown and Miss Mary L. Smith as hostesses. Mrs. George D. Thomas presided and splendid reports of chairmen were heard. The chapter voted to frame six pictures of Confederate generals and place in the parlors of Winnie Davis hall. Miss Moina Michael read "An Epochal Scene," by John T. Bouifeullet and Mrs. Arthur Gannon gave an address on Thanksgiving. The chapter's distinguished member, Miss Moina Michael, the "poppy lady," will be signally honored on November 27, when a marble bust of her will be unveiled in the state capital, the program being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

'That Certain Woman' at the Fox Replete With Romance, Drama

Again given a photoplay that has plenty of scope for her unique emotional talent, Bette Davis in "That Certain Woman," seemed to delight successive audiences as this Warner Brothers melodrama unreeled its fast-moving action on the screen of the Fox theater Friday.

Adventure — romantic love — martyrdom—mother love—are all protrayed by Bette Davis in the course of this exciting drama. "That Certain Woman" is a story about the widow of a slain gangster, who, despite the scorn of the world and the persecution of enemies, wins her way to business success and to the affections of a worth-while man.

Henry Fonda carries the male romantic interest, while others in the cast include Ian Hunter, Anita Louise, Donald Crisp, Hugh O'Connell, Mary Phillips and Herbert Rawlinson. Locales of the action include Monte Carlo, with some very striking acts; London, Paris and various other world capitals, as well as New York city.

There has been an increasing tendency of late to give Bette Davis the very best stories that Warner Brothers can find. She and Fonda and Hunter all turn in outstanding performances.

'Stage Door' Held Over for Week And Is Now on Paramount Screen

Held over after a most successful week's run at Lucas & Jenkins Fox theater, "Stage Door," hailed as one of the most important offerings of the screen year, presents three of Fildom's best-known stars, Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Adolphe Menjou, opened Friday at the Paramount theater.

As the title implies, "Stage Door" has a theatrical atmosphere. It blends in its vivid aromatic fabric the hopes and dreams of a score of stage-struck girls, eager, ambitious, confident that they will succeed in opening the portals to fame and fortune. Until that day arrives, they live at a theatrical boarding house, whose landlady is herself a former actress, and in this setting much of the film's action takes place.

Miss Hepburn is one of these girls, a society debutante determined on a stage career, despite the opposition of her wealthy family. Her roommate is Ginger Rogers, a carefree night-club entertainer who yearns to go into musical comedy. With them are dozens of others, would-be actresses, hopeful dancers, aspiring pianists, models, an oddly-assorted group from every station in life, but all tired with the one desire of winning footlight fame.

Pulsing with the colorful lives of its various characters and offering a "behind-the-scenes" story that has never been told before, "Stage Door" weaves a kaleidoscopic pattern of heartbreak and triumph through its drama. Success for one means disappointment for another, and this leads from a diverted role on which she had her heart set.

The film becomes a play within a play when the opening night of a big stage production brings its own complications and upsets the "club" in unexpected fashion. Miss Hepburn's conflict with Adolphe Menjou, a leading Broadway producer; Miss Rogers' romance with William Corson, Menjou's press-agent, and vivid cross-sections of the careers of the other girls, all offer a wealth of incident and picturesque drama to the story.

Gail Patrick as the gold-digging chorus girl, Constance Collier as the worldly wise character actress, Lucille Ball, Franklin Pangborn, Pierre Watkin, Samuel S. Hinds, Ann Miller, Frances Gifford, Ralph Forbes and many others have important roles. The picture also introduces a number of "new faces" among the score of boarders at the "club."

In addition to the scenes in the boarding house, a large Broadway theater, Menjou's offices and his luxurious apartment are also used as settings for dramatic sequences in the film.

CROSS AND BUSTA BOYS AT FAIRVIEW TODAY

This comedy, "The Awful Truth," which started at the Rialto theater Friday with Cary Grant and Irene Dunne, is so funny that the audiences are kept constantly chuckling or hilarious in its laughter.

Mary Carlisle and Lew Ayers, who will be seen this week starting today at the Capitol theater in a Paramount Picture production, "Hold 'Em, Navy." Other stars are John Howard and Elizabeth Patterson.

"That Certain Young Woman," with Bette Davis and Henry Fonda, now appearing at the Fox theater, is a gripping drama. Ian Hunter and Anita Louise also give great support to this film.

'KING OF GAMBLERS' AT CAMEO TODAY

'Outlaws of the Orient' Also on Week's Booking.

Today's attraction at the Cameo theater is "King of Gamblers," starring Lloyd Nolan and Claire Trevor. Tomorrow and Tuesday's feature is "Outlaws of the Orient" starring Jack Holt and Mae Clark. It is the exciting story of one man's battle to save the desert oil fields from the rampages of Tartar hordes in the pay of a rival company is unfolded.

Events reach a climax when the Tartars attack in force. The whole field is endangered. How Holt saves it gives "Outlaws of the Orient" an exciting and surprising finish.

Wednesday and Thursday's attraction is "Slave Ship" starring Wallace Beery and Warner Baxter.

'The Awful Truth' at Rialto Brings Chuckles and Laughter

"The Awful Truth," new super-special comedy production of Columbia Pictures, is now drawing roars of laughter from capacity audiences at the Rialto theater. Rarely has such enthusiastic approval of a film been heard as that given by every audience that sees the production when they are leaving the theater.

Columbia has, undoubtedly, triumphed once more in that field where they have frequently demonstrated their pre-eminence, feature comedy. They have, in "The Awful Truth," another hit to put in the same honor roll with "Theodora Goes Wild," "Mr. Deeds," "It Happened One Night" and others.

Irene Dunne, who was so clever in "Theodora Goes Wild," is at her best in one of the two starring roles of the new picture, while Cary Grant, in the other, exceeds his past work, even in "Topper." There is a brilliant supporting cast, headed by Ralph Bellamy, who reveals a new comedy capacity in this film. Other players in important roles include Alexander D'Arcy, Cecil Cunningham, Molly Lamont, Joyce Compton, Robert Warwick, Mary Forbes, etc.

And one of the most important roles of all is "Mister Smith,"

'THIN ICE" COMING TO THE WEST END

Film To Be Shown Three Days, Begins Today.

Today, tomorrow and Tuesday opens the week's program for the West End theater with the screen's newest romantic team, Tyrone Power and Sonja Henie in their latest film, "Thin Ice," with the year's finest supporting cast, including Arthur Treacher, Raymond Walburn, Joan Davis and Leah Ray. A gay and magnificent musical skimming in shimmering delight along silvery Alpine slopes, lovely to look at and lovelier still as you listen.

Wednesday presents a return engagement of "King Kong," with Robert Armstrong and Fay Wray. "Sing and Be Happy," with Tony Martin, Leah Ray, Joan Davis and Atlanta's own, Dixie Dunbar. The season's romantic comedy treat, as gay as the lilt, as tender as the lyrics of the heart-haunting tunes, comes Thursday.

Friday's featured attraction is "Private Number," with the popular Robert Taylor and Loretta Young brought back by popular demand, also the weekly Amateur Contest at 8:30 and selected short subjects. "Armored Car," with Robert Wilcox and Judith Barrette will be shown Saturday plus Chapter IV of "Wild West Days" and selected short subjects to round out the program.

'Hold 'Em Navy,' Football Story Opens on Capitol Screen Today

The screen's newest story of football at Annapolis, "Hold 'Em Navy," opens a week's engagement today at the Capitol, Atlanta's only vaudeville theater, along with "Parisian Follies" on the stage.

The trio which carries the greatest part of the picture's romance is made up of Lew Ayres, Mary Carlisle and John Howard while Benny Baker handles the comedy.

Picture opens with the rivalry of John Howard, upper classman, and Lew Ayres, plebe, over Mary Carlisle, who is regarded as Howard's girl throughout the academy. Howard begins to ride Ayres at every opportunity getting him nicknamed "Beautiful" and generally making his life a burden. Finally Ayres burns up over his treatment and decides to win Miss Carlisle away from Howard. In the meantime he has been making a name for himself and has become the plebe football hero.

The picture includes some very exciting football scrimmages, contributed by the University of California team, which takes part en masse. The youth of the entire cast, the beauty of the naval academy setting, and the truly thrilling football game seen in the picture is said to make "Hold 'Em, Navy" exciting film fare. The picture at the present time is doing terrific business in its New York world premier run.

Headlined acts with the Capitol's stage unit, "Parisian Follies," includes Ward and Vokes, in laugh provoking gangs and stunts; Boots Walton, sensational eccentric dancer; Martinez Brothers, head-to-head balancing stars; Don Pedro in his slide for life from the balcony of the theater to the stage; Smylie Gloria, new twists in acrobatics; Eleanor Solari, toe dancer, and seven beautiful line girls.

Music will be offered by Enrico Leide and his Capitolians.

'Navy Blue and Gold' Film Tells Gridiron Story at Loew's Grand

The idealism and loyalty which lie behind football victories, and the adventures of three midshipmen at Annapolis, provide much of the background for the exciting gridiron film, "Navy Blue and Gold," at Loew's Grand theater. Robert Young, James Stewart and Tom Brown are the three midshipmen, and the supporting cast includes Florence Rice, Billie Burke, Lionel Barrymore, Paul Kelly and other favorite players.

"Navy Blue and Gold" opens when the three arrive at Annapolis, from widely different spheres. Young is a brilliant but lazy fullback from the south; Stewart is a former fireman on a navy cruiser and center on the fleet's best team; Brown was quarterback on the championship squad of an exclusive prep school.

The three become roommates and defenders of each other in various escapades. They find another champion, when they seem about to get into serious trouble, when Captain "Skinny" Dawes, retired (Lionel Barrymore), an All-American football star of years gone by, comes to their aid.

During the Christmas holidays Young and Stewart visit Brown in New York, where he is a member of a smart and wealthy family. Both Young and Stewart are smitten with the charms of Brown's sister (Florence Rice), but she prefers Stewart, and admits it. This preference does not change when it is revealed that Stewart's father was dishonorably discharged from the navy, charged with neglect of duty, and causing the wreck of his ship.

How the midshipmen find evidence which clears Stewart's father of blame, when the case is reopened, and how Captain "Skinny" Dawes inspires them to vic-

Don Cossack Chorus Will Appear Here December 7

Members of the Don Cossack Chorus, led by Serge Janoff, pose in front of a European temple. The "Singing Horsemen of the Steppes" will appear at Glenn Memorial auditorium Tuesday evening, December 7, under auspices of the Emory University Student Lecture Association.

Singing Horsemen Due Here Soon

The Cossacks are coming.

Thirty-six "Singing Horsemen of the Steppes," the famed Don Cossack Chorus, under direction of Serge Jaroff, will appear in Glenn Memorial auditorium at Emory University Tuesday, December 7, Dr. Ross H. McLean, adviser of the Emory Student Lecture Association, announced yesterday.

The renowned Russian chorus, now on their eighth American tour, will be making their only appearance in this section of the current season. Their concert will be the third presentation on the current year's schedule of the Student Lecture group.

Known to music lovers everywhere and acclaimed by many critics as the "world's finest choral organization," the Cossacks have appeared in more than 40 American cities during their eight tours of the country. On their current transcontinental engagement tour, they will journey more than 40,000 miles in 14 weeks, filling their more than 90 engagements by train, bus and airplane.

Organized in 1923 in a prison camp near Constantinople, the exiled horsemen have been singing together for 14 years. Exiled from their native Russia for political activity, they have never been allowed to return and now carry League of Nations "en voyage" passports.

Further details of their appearance at Emory will be announced later, Dr. McLean said.

'SLIM' ON PROGRAM AT PARK THEATER

'The Captain's Kid' Is Also Scheduled.

With plenty of high-voltage thrills, "Slim," the story of the men who risk their lives daily on the high tension wires, so that the nation's power supply will not be broken, comes to the College Park theater tomorrow and Tuesday, with Pat O'Brien, Henry Fonda and Margaret Lindsay in leading roles.

"The Captain's Kid," the new comedy romance laid against the background of a seaport town, comes Wednesday with leading roles capably handled by May Robeson, Sybil Jason and Guy Kibbee. Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields and Joan Bennett bring you all the thrills, comedy and romance of life on a showboat in "Mississippi," Thursday, the story of a Mississippi showboat with a wise-cracking captain, a crooning leading man and a young girl who wants to become part of this life.

With the toughest Irish cop on the New York force trying to capture a lower east side killer and a little girl that captures both their hearts, "The Great O'Malley" Friday, with Pat O'Brien, Humphrey Bogart and Sybil Jason will thrill the whole family. Buck Jones, rider of the plains, brings you "Left-Handed Law" Saturday, with Lita Chevret as the feminine lead.

'EXCLUSIVE' LISTED AT THE BUCKHEAD

Newspaper Film Story on Screen for Two Days.

A powerful story of a newspaperman who placed principles ahead of life itself, only to have his own daughter undo his work, brings Fred MacMurray, Frances Farmer, Charlie Ruggles and Lloyd Nolan to the screen of the Buckhead theater today and tomorrow in "Exclusive." The story concerns the efforts of a corrupt politician to wreak vengeance on a reform newspaper by establishing his own scandal sheet which he uses for blackmail purposes. "Exclusive" is an important picture in that it is the first film using the newspaper business for a background which provides an accurate insight into the workings of clean journalism versus the "yellow" and scandal sheet variety.

Coming Tuesday and heralded as being one of the most interesting and exciting James Cagney pictures yet made is "Great Guy," based on the Johnny Cave stories in the Saturday Evening Post. This play brings the popular redheaded star to the screen in a role which should appeal to the housewives everywhere as well as the men. A gay and magnificent musical that skims in shimmering delight along the silvery Alpine slopes, snow-drenched with dazzling spectacle and exciting beauty, heartwarming with riotous fun and young romance, brings Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power together, as you wanted them to be, thrilling, as you knew they'd be in "Thin Ice," which plays Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Topping all her triumphs of "One in a Million," Miss Henie is more radiantly exciting than ever as she displays new beauty, new daring and new breath-taking thrills. A delightful romance of mistaken identity affording many hilariously funny situations, "Thin Ice" concerns the romance of a beautiful skating star who falls in love with a man she believes to be a reporter, but who, in reality is a prince. "North of the Rio Grande" will be the feature Saturday starring William Boyd. Also the seventh chapter of "Wild West Days" will be shown.

On Screen at Center

Barbara Stanwyck, who will be seen on the screen at the Center theater in "This Is My Affair."

GENIUS OF VIOLIN HERE WEDNESDAY

Yehudi Menuhin To Appear at Fox Theater.

Yehudi Menuhin, genius of the violin, whom at 20 years of age is universally recognized as one of the greatest masters of the violin the world has ever known, returns to Atlanta to give a recital at the Fox theater Wednesday evening, November 24, at 8:30 o'clock. The event will be a memorable occasion, attracting a capacity audience of approximately 5,000. Already every seat in the house and in the orchestra pit have been sold, and now only seats on the stage are available.

Only three southern cities will be privileged to have Menuhin in recital—New Orleans, Atlanta and Richmond. In the audience here will be many of his admirers from Alabama, Tennessee, Florida, the Carolinas and Georgia.

Due to restrictions placed by the German government, Menuhin will not be able to play in Atlanta the "lost" Schumann concerto which he had planned to do. His program will be as follows:

"Sonata No. 32 in F major," Allegro, Andante, Rondo (Allegretto grazioso), Mozart; "Chaconne" (fifth movement of Partita No. 2 in D minor), for violin alone, Bach; "Concerto in E minor, Opus 64," Allegro molto appassionato, Andante, Allegretto ma non troppo, Allegro molto vivace, Mendelssohn; "Romanza Andalusa, Spanish Dance No. 3," Sarasate; "Zapateado" (the Cobbler's Dance) Sarasate; "Labyrinth" (Caprice), Locatelli; "Moses Fantasy" (Bravura Variations on the G string), Introduction (Adagio), Theme and Variations (Tempo alla Marcia), Rossini-Paganini.

Ferguson Webster will accompany Menuhin at the piano.

Through the co-operation of the management of the Fox theater and the New York managers of the artists to appear in Atlanta, arrangements have been completed by Marvin McDonald, manager of the All-Star Concert Series, to have all concerts this season given in the Fox theater. The theater is available for concerts only on Thursday evenings, so the date on each of the last four attractions on this season's course has necessarily had to be changed. The new schedule is, Jooss European Ballet, February 17; Nelson Eddy, March 10; St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, March 31, and Kirsten Flagstad, April 28.

The next attraction on the All-Star Concert Series, following Menuhin, will be Rachmaninoff, Thursday evening, December 9.

Much of the action centers around a burglar alarm system that protects millions of dollars worth of property.

The real-life sweethearts, Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, appear together in "This Is My Affair," to be shown Thursday and Friday. The events take place at the turn of the century, when the stability of the nation is threatened by an unprecedented series of sensational bank robberies in the middle west. played by that same wire-haired terrier of "The Thin Man" and other hit films.

Leo McCarey was both producer and director, while the scenario was the work of Vina Delmar, from a stage play by Arthur Richman.

It tells the hilarious story of the efforts of a young husband to win back the love of a wife who is suing him for divorce. He has 90 days—and nights—to accomplish this. How he succeeds in the last few minutes of the final day provides a new and utterly satisfying conclusion to a brilliantly funny picture, packed with ludicrous situations and filled with mirth-provoking lines and gags.

Manager Murray is again in excellent fortune for his Christmas shopping feature. With clever short subjects to add to the entertainment value of the program, "The Awful Truth" seems to be set for a good run at the popular downtown Rialto.

Rivalry between two advertising agencies seeking to land a large radio account forms the lively background of "Sing and Be Happy," which is booked for Thursday featuring Anthony Martin, Leah Ray, Joan Davis, Helen Westley, Berton Churchill, Louis Alberni and Dixie Dunbar. Unforgettably portrayed the star of "The Informer," and an inspired cast, "Nancy Steele Is Missing," Friday's offering, presents a powerful drama. The performances of Victor McLaglen, winner of the Academy Award; Walter Connolly outstanding actor of stage and screen, and Peter Lorre, Europe's leading dramatic star, make "Nancy Steele Is Missing," a tremendous document of emotion—lash and power, filled with tense thrills and strong passion. Robert Kent and June Lang are featured in the romantic leads.

"King Kong," the sensational thriller of a few years ago will appear again at the DeKalb Saturday with Fay Wray and Robert Armstrong heading the cast. ## Urban League.

By JESSE O. THOMAS.

The purpose of the Bulletin is to chronicle the worth-while things done for, by and with the negro, as a basis of increasing interracial good will and understanding.

Interest is rapidly developing in a proposed bond issue or some other method of raising upwards of $3,000,000 for the purpose of relieving congestion in the public school system and eliminating portables from the white division of our schools.

Many of the white students, according to the sponsors of this movement, are housed at the present time in fire traps. They seem to agree it will cost approximately $3,000,000 to replace these portables and enlarge the seating capacity of the schools under consideration to adequately house students now enrolled.

Consideration Limit.

Up to this point, so far as we have been able to observe, consideration seems to be limited to the overcrowded condition of the white students.

Some impression as to the overcrowded condition in the negro schools might be gained from the following description as to enrollment as well as to distribution of negro children in double and single sessions.

School Enrollment.

The approximate enrollment of the 10 elementary negro schools and the elementary division of the David T. Howard Junior High school is as follows:

|---|---|
| Ashby Street | 1,500 |
| Gray Street | 900 |
| Asa Ware | 1,100 |
| Walker Street | 1,100 |
| E. P. Johnson | 1,600 |
| Crogman | 1,300 |
| Bell Street | 450 |
| Wesley Avenue | 400 |
| Yonge Street | 650 |
| South Atlanta | 236 |
| David T. Howard | 1,900 |
| Making a total of | 11,236 |

These students are distributed between double and single sessions as follows:

Ashby Street—20 double sessions, two single sessions.

Gray Street—11 double sessions, no single sessions.

Asa Ware—13 double sessions, two single sessions.

Walker Street—16 double sessions, no single sessions.

E. P. Johnson—19 double sessions, one single session.

Crogman—15 double sessions, five single sessions.

Bell Street—seven double sessions, no single sessions.

Wesley Avenue—Eight double sessions, four single sessions.

Yonge Street—16 double sessions, no single sessions.

South Atlanta—One double session, four single sessions.

David T. Howard—23 double sessions, no single sessions.

This gives a total of 149 double sessions and 18 single sessions, which means that approximately 12 per cent of the sessions are single and 88 per cent double. With a student population of 11,236 this would mean approximately 1,348 would be in single sessions, while 9,838 would be in double sessions in the elementary schools.

Booker T. Washington.

At Booker T. Washington High school the seventh and eighth grades are on double session. The grades number 1,578. These students not only are victims of double session but are denied an opportunity of vocational training.

The total seating capacity at Booker T. Washington High school, including the portables, is 2,797. The total student enrollment is 3,876, which means that there are approximately 1,100 more students than there are seats. There is a building used for home economics at 985 Hunter street rented by the faculty of the school and paid for out of funds raised through different projects, at the rate of $36 a month.

This is not quite as bad as it was last year, because in addition to the above they rented a building at 43 Ashby street last year for which they paid $23 a month. Beginning with this school year, the board of education added two more two-room portables which take care of the students at the building rented by the faculty at 43 Ashby street.

The Booker Washington High school, like the elementary schools, is without a cafeteria. The students have to eat their lunches in the back yard when the weather will permit, and when the weather is bad in the classrooms and halls. During inclement weather, food is peddled through the building to students during recess period. The lack of cafeteria facilities renders it impossible for the school to provide students with the proper type of food. Many of the students, of course, come from homes where mothers do not have time to prepare food properly. Many of the mothers are employed in domestic service and must prepare meals for the white children before they go to school, and other children are from homes where mothers do not know how to prepare food properly. No boiled food, for example, can be served.

Only One Auditorium.

None of the negro schools except Walker street have auditoriums. It is never possible at any of the schools, including the high school, to have the students assemble for any type of program or information except in the front yard. This means that the administration must appoint individual teachers to give out information to her classes. Added to this the loss which the students sustain because of being denied the opportunity of being brought together where a type of discipline can be enforced and a degree of mass culture can be accumulated, is difficult to estimate.

Thanksgiving Services.

The negro ministry is being called upon and urged by the Rev. J. C. Wright, pastor of the First Congregational church, to co-operate in a city-wide Union Thanksgiving Service.

In order to accommodate people in the various sections of the city, the program is being somewhat decentralized. For the accommodation of the people in the fourth ward, a Thanksgiving Union Service in which all churches in that section are called upon to participate, will be held at the Radcliff Memorial Presbyterian church, located at Fort and Houston streets. The Rev. D. T. Murray is pastor. The Rev. C. A. Tolbert, teacher of church history at Gammon Theological Seminary, has been secured to preach the sermon.

The services will be one hour in length—from 11 o'clock to 12 o'clock.

Those in the Summer Hill district have been invited to join the pastor, the Rev. W. R. Wilkes, at Allen Temple A. M. E. church, where services are planned at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Those in the first ward have been urged to commune with the membership of the West Mitchell C. M. E. church, Rev. G. R. Carter, pastor, located at the corner of West Mitchell and Tatnall streets. The Rev. W. H. Borders, teacher of religion at Morehouse College, will preach the Thanksgiving sermon.

Parents and Teachers Discuss Aims And Purposes of Organization

sociations and of Pre-school Associations with principals of city schools discussed the purposes, the procedure and objectives of the P.-T. A. at a luncheon held last Monday.

Mrs. Elmer Slider, president of the council, spoke on "What the Parent-Teacher Association Is." "The organization is an adult organization, the primary purpose of which is child welfare. The movement is community movement, a democratic movement, a folk movement, a citizenship movement, a public movement, a parent education movement, a progressive movement, a social movement and a world-wide movement, a home and school co-operative movement, a child centered movement," Mrs. Slider said.

Mrs. Ralph Ramsey stressed the objectives of the Parent-Teacher Association by calling attention to objectives that the organization does not indorse. "The Parent-Teacher Association is not a money-making institution. It is not a commercial advertising agency. It is not a political organization. It does not indorse a candidate, but it does encourage parents to study each proposed legislation and vote those that will be for a better living condition for children. It does not interfere with the internal workings of the individual school. The Parent-Teacher Association does not expect immediate results. It believes in continual working for ever receding and better goals. I believe that through the immortality of influence and concerted efforts better results will be obtained," Mrs. Ramsey said.

Dr. Sutton urged parents to study carefully the social training that the child is receiving. "Home must provide a time, a place, where by wholesome leisure time activities may be enjoyed by our youth," the speaker said.

Miss Margaret Solomon, principal of Formwalt school, paid tribute to the work of the Parent-Teacher Association and the preschool in giving fall medical examinations to over 700,000 children during the summer. She stated that there can be no growing children without growing parents and growing teachers.

W. J. Scott, principal of Bass Junior High, stressed the home-school attitude and the moral obligation of the parents to the social life of the child. "It is the duty of parents and teachers to provide a proper place and type of amusements for the youth of the country. Their leisure time is their important time," the educator said.

Miss Jessie Muse, principal of Girls' High school, emphasized the obligation of parents in knowing their schools, in studying educational trends and in better guidance on the part of parents and educators toward the youth of our city. She issued a challenge to the groups to give themselves an eductional adventure that would be of benefit to the children of the community in guiding them through present-day living.

Mrs. T. E. Busbin, president of the Clark Howell Parent-Teacher Association, was chairman of arrangements for decorations and placecards for the luncheon.

T. W. Clift, M. E. Coleman and H. Reid Hunter, from the administration department, attended the luncheon and contributed to the forum discussion.

The committee on arrangements for the forum consists of: Mrs. Elmer Slider, Mrs. Ralph Ramsey, Mrs. Percy Rich, from the Parent-Teacher Association, and Mrs. R. B. Whitworth, Miss Mary Lin and Mrs. Jennie Bloodworth, from the principals.

HUNTING SEASON OPENS IN GEORGIA---SCENES LIKE THESE WILL THRILL GEORGIA SPORTSMEN DURING THE NEXT FEW MONTHS.

NATIVE WILD TURKEY, deer and quail are the results of a fine day's sport for these hunters at the Sea Island hunting preserve in south Georgia.

JUST BEFORE THE RISE—The photographer discovered this covey of quail hiding in the brush.

Photos by Kenneth Rogers and Field and Stream.

THE YOUNG and the old alike will find thrills galore in the fields of Georgia during the hunting season. This dog may not point but he will give the rabbits a fit.

A REMARKABLE CAMERA "SHOT" of a deer caught unawares in the woods of Seminole county.

THE BLACK BEAR may still be found in some sections of the state.

A PORTRAIT OF A GOOD SPORT—Who could look at this beautiful bird dog and not feel the desire to tramp behind him in the crisp fall air!

GOT HIM! — Bob Sealy, prominent Georgia sportsman, pictured with one of his prize setters on his 8,000-acre wild life preserve near Bainbridge.

THE HUNTER'S DREAM—A flight of ducks on the wing is a thrilling sight to any sportsman. Georgia lakes are a winter paradise to wild fowl.

PHOTOCRIME---PLAY THIS FASCINATING DETECTIVE GAME! IT APPEARS EXCLUSIVELY EVERY WEEK IN THE CONSTITUTION ROTOGRAVURE

(1)
MILLIONAIRE INDUSTRIALIST OLIVER LONG has been receiving calls from two mysterious Russians in his office at his branch factory at night. One caller has been exotic Dagmar Detrenoff. "So you," said Long, "are trying to blackmail me." He paused, his keen eyes trying to read what lay behind the mask of this inscrutable smile.

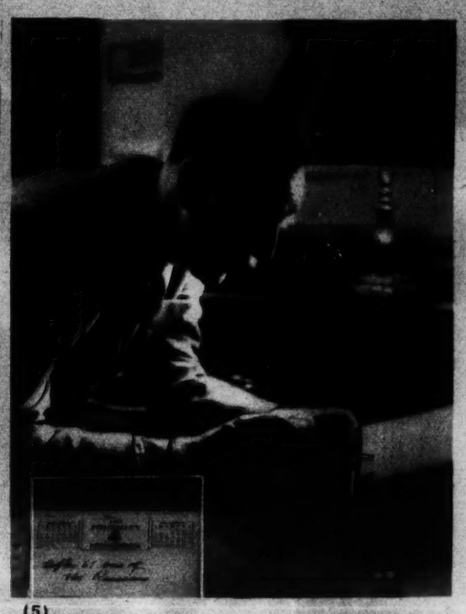

(2)
LONG'S OTHER VISITOR was rabble-rousing Communist Boris Ivanovitch—a striking personality with meticulously groomed mustache, bushy beard, booming voice and caustic wit. "So you," Long said, "threaten me with a strike." Boris nodded. "Well,"—quietly, "you can go to hell!" The huge Russian laughed lustily.

(3)
FIVE YEARS BEFORE, IN MOSCOW, sloe-eyed Dagmar had completely captivated and enchanted Long, though he was a married man. What glorious days those had been. Alluring Dagmar had aided him in . . .

(4)
. . . GETTING HIS REAL START in big business, in obtaining contracts running into millions. How well he remembered the days and nights of intrigue; secret meetings with commissars and officers—the seductive Dagmar always at his side. He recalled clearly the culmination of those negotiations in a Moscow cellar one night when contracts and money changed hands between him and Boris, then a commissar.

(5)
ONE NIGHT, AT 7 O'CLOCK, LONG WAS DEAD—murdered. At 7:57, Professor Fordney was scanning an entry on Long's calendar: It read, "After 6, one of the Russians." He studied it intently, swiftly surveyed the office with a practiced eye, and then . . .

(6)
FORDNEY QUESTIONED the chief watchman, who said someone had entered and left Long's office between 6 and 7. He could not say whether it was man or woman. All he knew for certain was that at the 7 o'clock "pull," Mr. Long was dead.

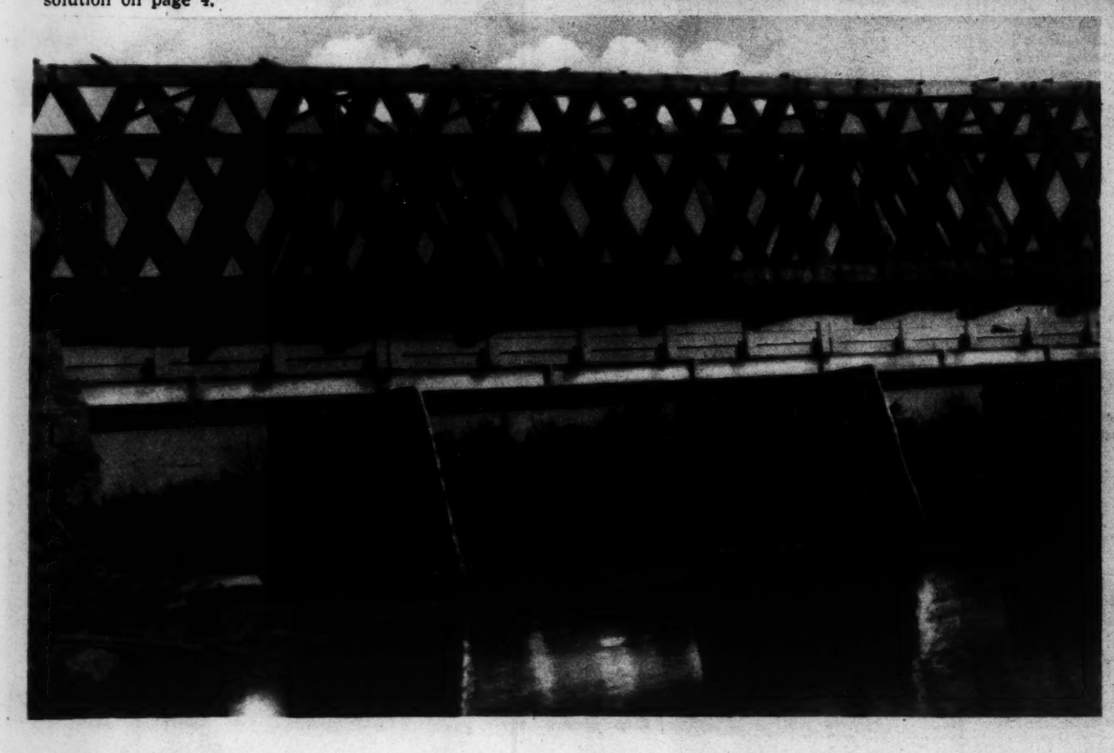

(7)
INSPECTION OF FOUR RUSSIAN CIGARET stubs, smoked almost to their cork tips, found in Long's office, told Fordney that they had not been smoked in a holder . . . Finding and arresting Dagmar and Boris was a simple matter.

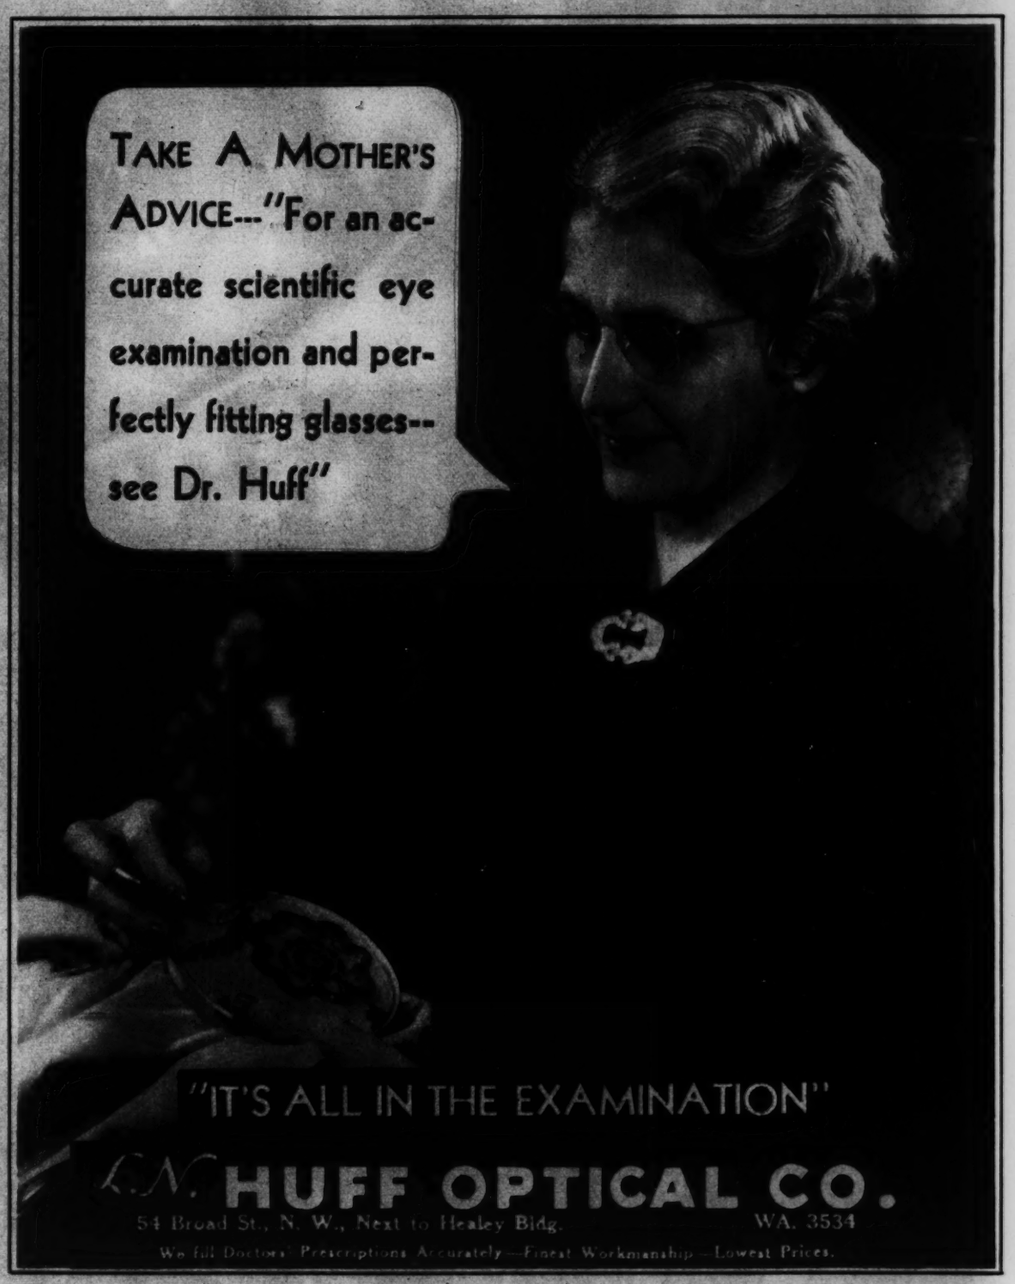

(8)
"WHICH OF YOU TWO," demanded Fordney, "left these Ulahoff cigaret stubs—made only in Moscow—in Long's office tonight?" "Ah, the great professor has a clue, no?" Ivanovitch grinned sardonically. "I, Learned One," he leered. "I was never in Long's office." Fordney raised his eyebrows. Dagmar smiled, shrugged.

(9)
(Right)
"YOU'RE A LIAR, IVANOVITCH," quietly said the criminologist. He and Boris drew at the same instant. The door opened and Dagmar rushed at the officer as he shot Boris through the shoulder. "Nice work, Sergeant." Fordney knew who had murdered Long. Do you? The single clue is before you in text and pictures. Solve before checking solution on page 4.

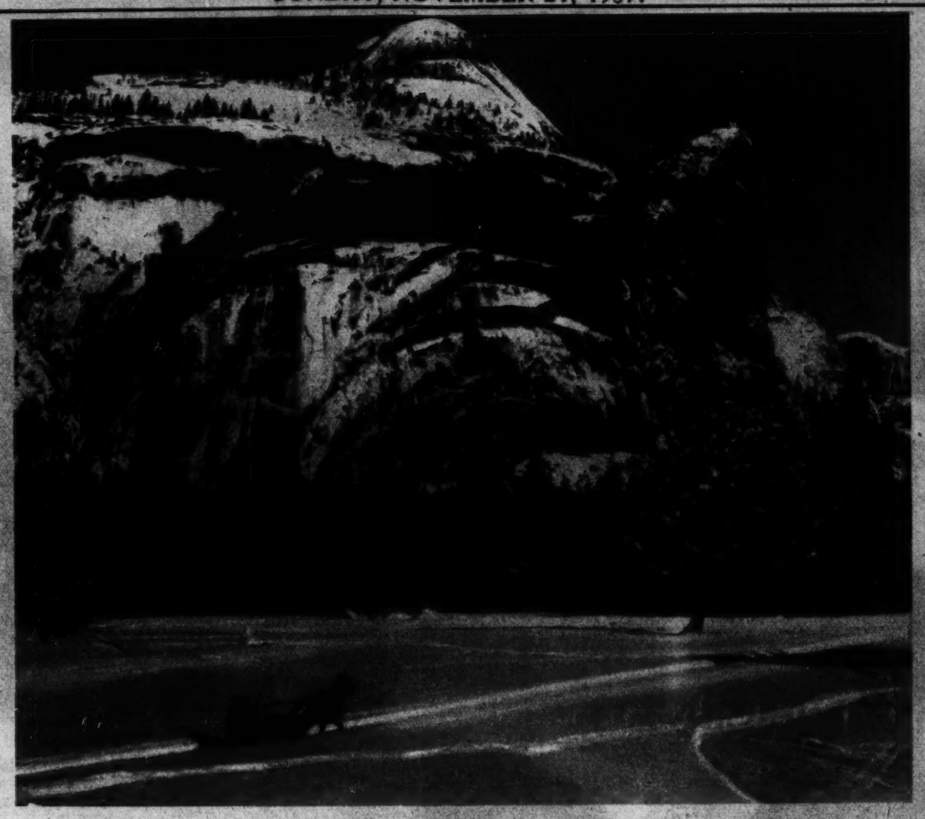

THE OLD AND THE NEW — In the background may be seen the new bridge recently completed by the WPA over the south branch of the Ocmulgee river at Panola shoals in DeKalb county. It replaces the century-old wooden bridge shown in foreground.

WINTER MAY SILENCE the waterfalls, but not the tinkling sleigh bells nor the joyous shouts of those who skate, toboggan or "mush" in the snow and sun of Yosemite Valley.

THE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING—A la Hollywood. In keeping with the Hollywood method of doing things this super-super-stupendous colossal turkey was constructed as a background for the lovely Eleanor Powell. The little dancing star's next picture will be "Rosalie."

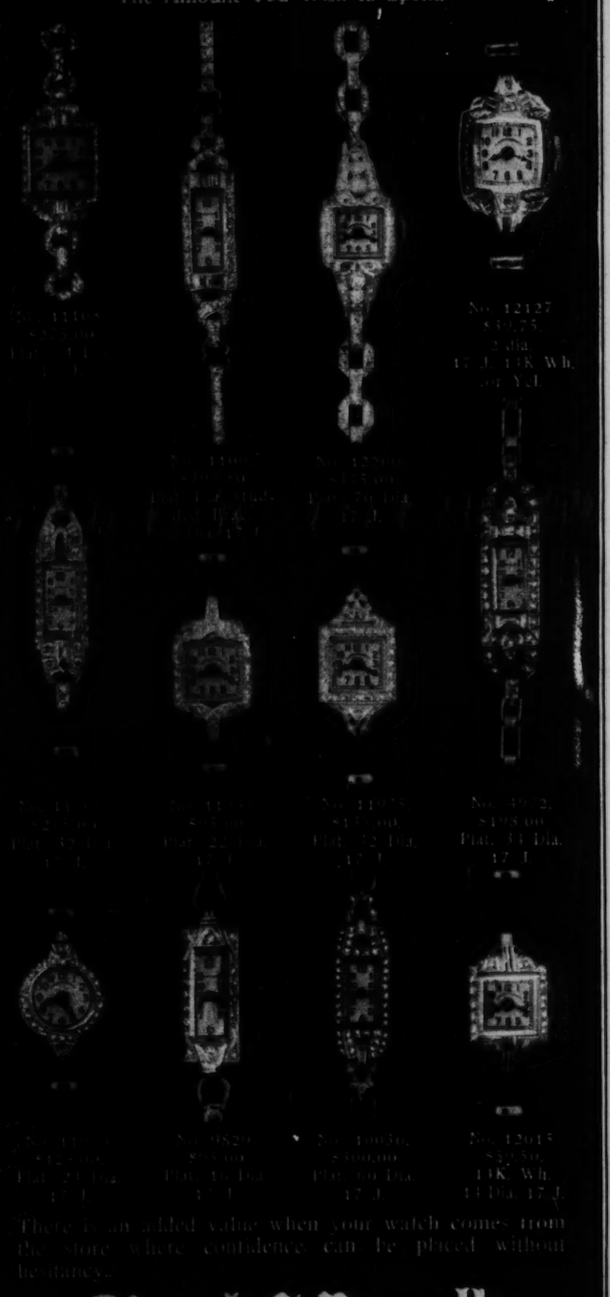

BURLESQUE GIRL AND BARON HUSBAND — Baron Jean Empain, multi-millionaire Belgian, shown with his wife, the former Rosezell Rowland, New York burlesque girl, in Alexandria, Egypt.

DEAD DOGS?—not by a long shot. Just about the liv est things on four legs are these prize hounds photographed from an unusual angle as they rested between trials at the national foxhunters' meet at Jackson, Tenn.

DICK TRACY

THE LAST TWO PEOPLE THE FACELESS MAN WORKED ON WERE BOTH MEMBERS OF A BIG SLOT MACHINE SYNDICATE, OPERATING IN THE MIDDLE WEST AND EAST. THAT MAY BE A CLUE, CHIEF.

NOW, PILOT, TELL ME EVERYTHING YOU CAN.

WELL, THIS MAN WITHOUT A FACE STEPPED UP TO MY PLANE OUT ON THE FIELD WHILE I WAS MAKING SOME MOTOR ADJUSTMENTS.

THE VERY SIGHT OF HIM MADE MY BLOOD RUN COLD. HE HAD A GUN. HE ORDERED THE OTHER MAN INTO THE PLANE AND TOLD ME TO TAKE OFF.

AT THIRTY-FIVE HUNDRED FEET, HE OPENED THE CABIN DOOR AND PUSHED THE OTHER FELLOW OUT.

HE ORDERED ME TO LAND, JUMPED IN THE CAR HE CAME IN AND-

HEY, DICK! LOOK COMING.

THE STREAMLINER FROM DENVER JUST PLOWED INTO AN AUTO IN THE GRADE-CROSSING OVER AT DEMPSTER STREET-AND CHECK-UP SHOWS THE CAR IS A STOLEN ONE!

WHAT DOES THAT HAVE TO DO WITH US?

WITNESS SAYS THE CAR WAS SPEEDING FROM THE DIRECTION OF THE AIRPORT.

TEN MINUTES LATER - AT THE SCENE OF TRAIN-AUTO CRASH.

GREAT SCOTT. WHAT A KNOT OF TWISTED STEEL! AND STILL SMOULDERING!

WHERE ARE THE BODIES?

THERE ARE NO BODIES!

DO YOU MEAN TO SAY THE DRIVER OF THAT CAR IS ALIVE?

HE MUST BE! HE DISAPPEARED AFTER THE CRASH. NO ONE HAS SEEN HIM.

DICK, I DON'T BELIEVE IT!

SEARCH THE TRACK AND THE WRECKAGE MEN.

IT'S NO USE, MR. TRACY. WHOEVER WAS IN THAT CAR LEFT. WE'VE SEARCHED THE TRACK AND THE GROUND FOR 300 FT. ON EACH SIDE.

HEY, DICK, LOOK AT THIS!

WHAT IS IT, PAT?

THE DRIVER'S SHOE!

AND IT ISN'T BURNED?

11-21

A SHOE! WILL IT PROVE TO BELONG TO THE FACELESS ONE? WILL IT REVEAL HIS IDENTITY?

A SHORT SHORT STORY

By JACK LAIT

Millie was determined to make the shop pay—but there were hazards of which she knew nothing.

HARRY Q. SMATHERS was a Democrat. He was so passionate a party-man that he resented the picture of Abraham Lincoln on the $5 bills he chiseled out of the beauty-shop madames for not annoying them with "violations."

A petty jobholder, he worked out of the license bureau, inspecting those shops for failure to observe regulations as to this and that. Almost every one of them could be pestered on some technicality. But a handshake or friendly farewell (containing a fiver) kept him in line for a month.

One of the victims of his touch-and-go racket was Millicent Wade.

A pretty and forthright girl, she had come to the Big Burg from a small town to study beauty culture. It was an abiding desire to own something, to be independent, that prompted her to invest the few hundred dollars she had as an inheritance in buying a small business.

It was heavily mortgaged on an installment pay-off plan. Trade had been in the red, or it wouldn't have been for sale at Millie's means. But she faced the problem of putting it across with her energy, personality and devoted concentration on the best work. And, though it was a stubborn battle, every month showed progress.

A $5 bill was a lot of money to her. But, had she been summoned to court, she faced not only loss of time and a possible fine, but even loss of her license. Therefore, when one of the girls who had been there through the former administration told her what the system was, she kicked in.

But she was constitutionally hostile to cowardice, bribery and extortion. And the monthly shakedown irked her extremely.

She had now been in the city long enough to register, and she enrolled with the Democrats at the primaries. She hunted up the neighborhood political club for her sex and politics, and joined up. A business-woman who met so many potential voters, who was persuasive and attractive, was a sweet find.

Millie became active immediately. This brought her new patrons, and these extolled her fine technique and conscientious service and sent still more.

Within a year, Millie was a minor power in her district, member of several committees and secretary of the club. She was a wow with the big shots of the male arm of the party thereabouts, with whom the women's organization had frequent mutual business.

She expanded until she had contacts with her entire part of the city, and soon entered the magic halls of the main municipal Democratic machine. Thus she met commissioners and magistrates and bureau chiefs. And thus she met the Commissioner of Licenses.

A portly, smooth man was Commissioner Emmons Blair, a power in his party, generally expected to make the mayoralty in time. He was a widower. And he regarded Millie as something not from one of the less important precincts, but from heaven.

He started to rush her. Many men had started to, but Millie was rather fussy. She wanted no young punks, no decrepit old chasers, no married flirts, no gigolos who went for gals who made livings, no lindy-hoppers who lived for fun.

Commissioner Blair, however, was none of these. Substantial, young enough to logically marry again and mature enough to have balance, he got indubitable welcome.

Millie lived in a furnished little apartment, without a maid or share-the-expenses partner. She couldn't very well invite him in, though she was advanced and liberal. And instead of being miffed, he was delighted—such a fine young woman, as proper as she was charming.

So he would take her out to shows and dinner in public, though not garish or conspicuous places. And, what he liked best of all, he would drop in at the shop.

Most men feel strange in a beauty establishment. But Millie had rigged up a tiny waiting chamber, out of view of the operating room, and her customers often had their gentlemen friends loiter there until they were through the mill.

The Commissioner loved to see Millie in her white working smock, all alert and fresh and efficient, yet just as dimpled and girlish as when she joined him for a sip at a cocktail-bar or at a corner table for a snack and snifter.

He was thus seated in the little room one Saturday afternoon (no early dinner on Saturday, which is the beautician's long stretch), waiting for a few moments' visit with her, when he heard her voice penetrating the flimsy partition between her little "office" and the little reception cubicle.

"No," she was saying, "you've gouged the last $5 graft out of me that you'll ever get."

And a man's voice answered:

"Oh, yeah? Goin' out o' business?"

"No. Very definitely staying in business."

"H'mph—without a license?"

"Not at all. My license is paid for."

"So you think. Listen, fresh jane. I'll yank it so fast you won't have time to switch off that perm'nent machine."

Well—that seemed right up the Commissioner's alley, and he walked into it. Smathers' back was to him. He heard a footstep and wheeled. He felt the floor sag and the room spin.

Commissioner Blair was a man whose early athletic activities had been his first contact with politics. He ran two fingers down inside Smathers' collar and the other hand took up the slack of the seat of the dazed Smathers' pants.

"Open that door, Millicent," he chuckled.

And Smathers landed in a lump at the edge of the sidewalk.

"I can see that you need protection," said the Commissioner, as he drove Millie through the park next afternoon. "You feel self-reliant, but a woman without a man to stand back of her must get the worst of it."

"As though I didn't know it...everybody tries to trim me. There was a joker in my mortgage that cost me $200 more than I expected. My rent was jacked up, though the two stores on both sides of me held out and got away with it. An 'organizer' is at me for 'protection' now so he won't unionize my girls, run up their pay or picket or stench-bomb my place."

"That so? Well, you just arrange to have me there next time he calls—"

"And my supply man offers me a big discount if—well, if."

"Say, I'll break him in half, the dirty swine, You let me—"

"And another supply man threatens to put up a great big cut-rate shop across the street unless I take from them exclusively, and—"

"You need a man, Millie, dear. You need a husband!"

"I—I suppose I do."

"You need—me!"

"Is—is that a—proposal?"

"How was that you said to Smathers? Oh, yes; 'very definitely.'"

"Man, and that's how I say 'Yes!'"

As Mrs. Commissioner Blair, Millie's rise became a leap. In business and in politics she grew, until she was co-leader of her district. She had the disposal of considerable patronage of her own.

One day when her district was seething over a fight for a minor political post, she encountered, again, Harry Q. Smathers.

He wore a badge—a watcher—for the Republicans!

BROTHER STAND-IN FOR WINNINGER

"WE'LL stick together, no matter what happens, won't we, Adolf?"

"You bet we will, Charley!"

Forty years ago, the Winninger brothers, Charles and Adolf, made this bargain. They were just kids then—six and eight. Charles and Adolf stuck to their vow, and today, although one is a world-famous picture actor, and the other is only a "stand-in," they have been working together in the David O. Selznick technicolor production, "Nothing Sacred."

Charles has an important role with the stars, Carole Lombard and Frederic March. Adolf was his stand-in.

Before the turn of the century, the Winningers, including father and five sons, were seasoned young performers in tent shows, medicine shows and vaudeville.

In 1915, Charles and Adolf went to Hollywood together to appear in comedy. Charles then went on to become famous in vaudeville and on the New York stage. Adolf cast his lot with touring shows. Charles returned alone to Hollywood in 1930. The collapse of vaudeville left Adolf without a career. Recently, he was brought to Hollywood by his brother, and today they're again trouping together.

I give you Garbo

By CECIL BEATON
Pet Cameraman-Author of Sophisticates, Society and Motion Picture Stars.

"In that proud glance from lowered lids there is a manifestation of what Hollywood cannot destroy."

SHE is as beautiful as the aurora borealis, but to compare Greta Garbo on and off the screen is to compare de Laszlo with Leonardo. The personality the public sees is magnetic, gay, tragic, sensitive, and wise; but other actresses appear magnetic and sensitive, until the projector stops, and the illusion created by the director and his aides is dispelled. Only Garbo, when the properties are back in the box, puts on nobility with her mackintosh. In real life she possesses such a wealth of qualities, which the screen is technically incapable of reproducing, that, even if she had not the most beautiful face of our time, yet all other modern beauty would be ephemeral beside hers.

Her skin is smooth as marble, generally burnt lightly to an apricot honey color; her hair is biscuit colored and of the finest spun silk and clean and sweetly smelling as a baby's after its bath; her nose is so delicate and sensitive that she seems to be conscious of perfumes too subtle for others to enjoy—the perfumes perhaps of her own beauty; her teeth are large and more glistening than pearls; her generous mouth is more delicately controlled than it seems in photographs; as for her eyes, there have never been such before, in expression so quizzical, compassionate and languorous, so deepset and of such unforgettable blue; they have large, dark irises, and boast lashes so long that it is impossible to believe that they are real, for only a few children have such a poetic growth. She has the tragic quality of a child.

Lipstick and nail varnish are put to shame by her; she uses no makeup save a dark line like a symbol on her eyelids—a symbol of no period or fashion, original to our civilization, a symbol which only instinct created and yet which the world has copied. She is like a Debureau, pale, forlorn, ethereal, or fecklessly gay.

Her hands, though she calls them kitchenette hands, are long and strong with square-ended fingers; she inhales cigarettes proudly, two fingers held high. Indeed she makes great use of her hands, and, inborn actress as she is, accompanies all her speech with gesture and mime.

Tall, she is proportioned to scale, and her feet are long and slender as in Hellenic sculpture; she is agile and supple, even a gymnast.

Her clothes, which are never of the feminine fluffy kind (in fact, she possesses no evening dress) have real elegance. She buys them from the local Army and Navy store, where workmen, sailors, and the like come for overalls and sweat shirts.

And yet all these qualities might be found in beauties who are not Garbo. The magic which intrigues and baffles the imaginative is not trapped and docketed. Her most inveterate worshippers despair of analyzing her allure. In a quick turn of the head, in a frank look, in a boyish pout, in that proud glance from lowered lids, so pitying and yet so distant that in others it would be supercilious, in all those expressions of conscious beauty, which when imitated become clumsy, or arrogant, or ridiculous, there is a manifestation of what Hollywood cannot destroy. In the presence of this mystery all that is second-rate can be forgotten.

She despises the level of the films in which she has to appear. The dialogue deadens her and she grumbles at having to portray the symbol of sex. She would like to play romantic parts, St. Joan, or Hamlet, or L'Aiglon, and her secret ambition is to be a Dorian Gray. She would wish to play with actors who had some spark of originality or inspiration, but the director shows her the receipts for "Mata Hari" and each ensuing film, and from his point of view there is no reason to alter the policy and so, after a half-hearted skirmish, she grudgingly submits.

She has a sense of humor, a sense of fun, but she is unhappy, neurasthenic, morbid, for she has become, by accident, in spite of herself, something she never wished to be. A healthy peasant girl has been publicized as an exotic spy. She must lose weight, not even touch carrots—so that not only her health but her nerves have suffered from the worries of publicity. If she is seen hurrying down a side alley, she is chased for a story, and this perpetual hunting so haunts her that, being highly strung, she starts to cry and will lock herself away from even the maid for days on end. She is even too nervous to read.

For these reasons she cannot develop as a person. It is well and good to safeguard herself against the bad influences of Hollywood life, but Garbo has now become unreceptive to anything except herself, so that even when she takes her periodical holidays they are not experiences for her.

She is not interested in anything or anybody in particular, and she has become as difficult as an invalid and as selfish, quite unprepared to put herself out for anyone; she would be a trying companion, continuously sighing and full of tragic regrets; she is superstitious, suspicious and does not know the meaning of friendship; she is incapable of love.

She believed in the part of Queen Christina and was roused from her apathy with the result that we saw Garbo, not as a phantom, but as a real and noble character. During the years that followed we began to wonder why this enigma with her romantic ideas and spiritual thoughts had made no further effort to break the fetters she professed to despise. Then came "La Dame aux Camellias". Her performance as Marguerite instilled humor and vitality into a flyblown romance. It was the inevitable formula for another Garbo film, but out of it all, unexpectedly, came this astonishing performance. Every shade of emotion was present in her characterization; the gaiety of the earlier scenes was not the old aloof gaiety; Garbo had become a loving, suffering, human being. When she was dying, she had the appearance not merely of being ill, but of having lain in bed for months; in her weakness she could not smile, but retained the pride of a Bernini statue. At moments she seemed to take on herself the wisdom of Lilith, and it was because of these moments that afterwards we wondered whether she had been acting with real understanding or by instinct alone.

If she is capable of such creation, she should be appearing on her own account in the roles which she alone can play. But perhaps her magic is only a freak of nature which leads our imagination to make of her an ideal she can never be.

Memory of Banished Georgia Educator Revived in New Science Building

A monument to a paradox! LeConte Hall, just erected on the University of Georgia campus, is a $125,000 science building, dedicated t o Joseph LeConte, who many years ago was fired from the university faculty.

By HOYT WARE.

A monument to the greatest paradox on the University of Georgia campus is the new $125,000 biology building, LeConte Hall. The building is named for a man who never taught biology at the university, who was forced to resign his position on its faculty and who made his scientific reputation in another part of the country in a different field from that of biology.

The new building, red brick and white stucco, faces south on the southern end of Franklin College campus and looks out from the side of a high hill toward Sanford stadium. Installed with indirect lighting throughout, three complete floors are being utilized as classes meet and workmen prepare to turn the building over to the care of janitors.

The laboratories of new LeConte Hall seat from 30 to 40 students each, and the lecture rooms many more. In the laboratories, which are equipped with the most modern facilities, students have individual work lamps for use on their desks and with microscopes. If all the lights in the building were turned on at once for an hour, it is estimated the cost would exceed an average month's domestic light bill.

One of the features of the new building is a constant temperature room. This room is on the ground floor and is lined with cork covered with concrete. In it can be kept experimental specimens at a constant temperature for long periods without danger of their dying. For instance, Florida fruit flies can be kept alive all winter in this air-conditioned chamber.

Showers are provided in the faculty lavatory for use by instructors engaged in field work. Animals for experiment are kept in special rooms. The usual experimental animals are canaries, mice, turtles, kittens, cats and sometimes dogs. A museum is being started with a collection brought over from the old biology building.

Graduate and research students are accommodated with smaller laboratories and apparatus for advanced work. The departmental library on the third floor contains about 80 scientific periodicals. Here also graduate students have access to files of theses, which represent work done in all departments of the division of biological sciences.

LeConte Hall is named for Joseph LeConte, who was born on the plantation "Woodmanston" near Midway, February 26, 1823. He went to school to a young schoolmaster named Alexander H. Stephens, and when he set out for college at 15 had never been more than eight miles from home. He rode from Savannah to Augusta by stage and a short way on the Georgia railroad, arriving in Athens after a week's journey.

At the university young LeConte studied the sciences and was a member of Phi Kappa Literary Society. He and his brother, Lewis, were graduated in 1841, three years after their older brother, John, and at the same time as their sister, Anne, who was a student at the Macon Female College. Joseph attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons at New York, was made a doctor in 1845, studied zoology at Harvard under Agassiz and botany under Gray. He was present and read a paper at the founding of the Macon Medical Society in 1849.

He applied for a position at the University of Georgia and was appointed in 1852 to teach geology, botany and French, with Monday morning classes in natural theology. His brother, John, had preceded him at Athens and was professor of physics until he left to lecture in New York, and subsequently to take the chair of physics in South Carolina College.

John LeConte's departure, connected as it was with the group resignation of several other professors because of their inability to get along with President Alonzo Church, caused unfavorable comment to spread about university affairs. President Church and Joseph LeContne became bitter enemies, because the science professor refused, among other things, to spy on the students in their rooms at night, and also because there was a growing hostility to LeConte's support of the doctrine of the evolutionary origin of man.

After the dissolution and reorganization of the university by the trustees in 1856 with Church again as its head, Joseph LeConte joined his brother at South Carolina. Besides teaching there, he lectured at the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, and in 1860 was elected general secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

During the War Between the States LeConte served as a chemist in preparing medicines for the Confederate wounded in the college laboratory near Columbia, S. C. Because of intolerable political conditions after the war, the brothers LeConte applied to the forming University of California and were appointed to its faculty in 1868.

John organized the whole university and became its president, giving himself over from that time on to administrative affairs. Joseph continued in the sciences and was elected a member of the National Academy of Science in 1875. He made memorable contributions in the field of geology, and achieved fame as a scientist of the Pacific coast.

Feet Admired by Napoleon Danced in Georgia Ballrooms

By ANNIE HORNADY HOWARD AND FLORINE HARDIN SMITH.

As the state of Georgia is celebrating its centennial, many forgotten stories of unique characters and intriguing tales of remarkable exploits are being revived.

Among the interesting episodes recounted is that of vivacious and brilliant Madame Rosalie Gauvain, a Frenchwoman of noble heritage who came to Athens, Ga., from France in 1810. She was a great friend of the Emperor and Josephine and her dainty feet were very much admired by His Majesty.

Madame Gauvain, nee Rosalie Renee Marie Claudine Yvonne de Trobriand, was born in Brittany in 1777. Her father, Joseph de Trobriand, was a renowned warrior and a sister, Louise, (Countess De Vue de Villars) was maid of honor to the Empress Josephine. Another sister, Hilarie, held a similar position with Napoleon's sister, Caroline Murat, and was with her when the famous Murat was made King of Naples. Her devotion was so great that when the new King was murdered Hilarie lost her mind through sympathy for the distressed Caroline.

The story of Rosalie Gauvain holds high lights of colorful experiences during political upheavals in France, of intimate association with Empress Josephine, of a hasty flight to the Isle of Martinique, of a subsequent arrival in Athens seated in a resplendent coach drawn by six white horses, of an acquaintance with hardships during the War Between the States, and her ardent championship of the southern cause.

It was in 1792, during a period of terrorism in Paris, that Rosalie de Trobriand achieved a feat of exceptional bravery and finesse. Her family had sought refuge in Lyons and had placed her under the protection of an aunt in Paris.

When the young girl learned that her beloved brother, Joseph, was stationed with the army across the Rhine she determined to make her way to him. She knew quite well that her life was endangered by such a venture, for it had been decreed that emigrees, be they men, women or children, should pay the death penalty if caught crossing the frontier. But her love for her brother outweighed her sense of fear. She disguised herself as a lowly, barefoot peasant, was hidden in a hay wagon, crossed the frozen Rhine and reached her brother in safety. The fact that she was almost starved, and shivering from cold, counted little with this girl of dauntless courage.

Realizing the peril in which his sister had placed herself, Joseph de Trobriand kept her safely hidden in his tent until he could effect a means of returning her to her aunt in Paris.

Some months after Rosalie's return home she became engaged to General Ange De La Perriere, a distinguished officer of the French army. From this marriage were born two sons, one of whom died in infancy, and the other, Ange, came to America in his youth.

Five years after the death of General De La Perriere, Rosalie was married to Michael Angelo Gauvain, a wealthy merchant of Paris, and she was a reigning beauty among the famous women of that city. She was much in company of the ladies of the court and was a great favorite with the Emperor and Empress.

A story is otld of Madame Gauvain's attendance upon a masque ball in Paris and Napoleon, catching a glimpse of her dainty foot, exclaimed:

"I am sure that I know that foot for I have never seen but one like it!"

And the delighted Madame answered:

"Your Majesty has frequently admired my foot."

During the troublous times in France that followed the Napoleonic eclipse, Madame Gauvain, Madame Villars and the Empress took refuge in the Isle of Martinique where the Gauvains had large estates. Upon their arrival at that haven the Madame came to realize that she had become incurably deaf due to the continuous cannonading in Paris.

From the Island of Martinique the Gauvains came to the United States and settled in Athens, where they had acquired a tract of land formerly granted to Count D'Estaing in consideration of his services during the Revolutionary War. The large plantations in Martinique were given in exchange for this Georgia property.

Unfortunately, Madame Gauvain's household furnishings were, perforce, left in France, but she held to her silver and her valuable jewels. Exquisite necklaces, rings of artistic workmanship and splendid old bracelets were kept by her in a small black trunk and this she guarded with unceasing vigilance.

This photograph of Madame Gauvain is copied from a painting done by a French artist more than a century ago. The shawl is of real lace and her beautiful black hair, which was of great length, was posed over a huge brown shell tucking comb.

On the voyage to America 'tis said that the Madame became alarmed for the safety of her treasures, so she devised a clever way by which to protect them. Tying a stout cord to the little black trunk and fastening the other end securely in her cabin, she had her jewels literally "sloshing" for a time in the briny deep outside her stateroom. The trunk is now a valued heirloom of Madame Gauvain's Georgia descendants.

When the Gauvains were en route to Georgia they were guests of the James Monroes in Virginia. They first became fast friends when Mr. Monroe was in Paris, and Mfchael Gauvain served as secretary to him when he became president.

Subsequent to the visit in the Monroe home, the Gauvains created much excitement in the village of Athens when they, with their children, arrived at the hotel and descended from their magnificent coach.

It is interesting to recall that one of the first to welcome the newcomers was Mary Harden, a young girl of Athens, who later became the sweetheart of John Howard Payne and who was one of the first to sing his "Home, Sweet Home."

The establishment of a home in Athens at once centered the interest of the Gauvains and their menage became a rendezvous for distinguished Georgians. The Madame entertained at brilliant parties and had the distinction of being the most graceful dancer in the northern part of the state. Her entertainments were also distinctive for her beautifully appointed table with its display of silver; solid silver forks were first used by her in Athens.

Madame Gauvain felt a great pride in her children and in her memoirs she wrote of her son, Ange:

"When he was 16 years of age he engaged as a simple volunteer to protect Athens from an attack of Indians. He said he wanted to prove himself a true American after leaving his native land, France, and coming to America to make his home. A second time he enrolled in the Seminole war at 19 years of age and was promoted by General Andrew Jackson to the title of lieutenant colonel."

The same son had been admitted to the School of Nobility in France through the influence of Napoleon. (Hull's Annals of Athens).

Madame Gauvain's only daughter, Marie Antoinette, was a noted beauty and was a great comfort to the Empress Josephine when she was a child in Paris. After the separation of the Emperor and Empress this child spent many weeks with the despairing and saddened Josephine.

Marie Antoinette grew up in Athens and, like her mother, was renowned for her intellect as well as for her beauty. Her experiences and early training among the notables of France had left an indelible imprint of culture upon her and she charmed all who knew her. At an early age she was married to Raymond Harden, a young physician of splendid family, and removed to a plantation near Athens.

Letters from the bride to her French mother reveal her love of dress and her desire for the gay life of the university town. She wrote:

"As I now have no horse (mine being sick) I was much disappointed at not being able to wear my new bonnet and gloves to look pretty at commencement."

And a few years after that, the piquant Marie Antoinette did wear a beautiful costume to a college dance just prior to the birth of a child, and died from the effects of too much gaiety. Her mother, the Madame, was heartbroken over the loss of her darling daughter.

GEORGE JEAN NATHAN OR—

NAMING THE JURY WHICH DELIVERS THE FATAL VERDICT ON THE SHOW BUSINESS, AS ONE CRITIC SEES THEM

By GEORGE JEAN NATHAN

FOR years you have heard of the so-called Death Watch, that is, the combination of New York dramatic critics and regular first-nighters whose sole purpose is to attend the openings of new plays and mercilessly murder them. You have heard how the first-nighters find their chief pleasure in making audible derisory comments on the plays, how they misbehave so outrageously that the actors on the stage can hardly go on with their lines, and how in the intermissions they congregate in the lobbies and on the sidewalks and arbitrarily roast everything in sight. And you have read how the critics, those malicious and destructive fowl, take the greatest delight in getting into huddles between the acts and agreeing to pan the tar out of any and everything willy-nilly, thus killing off any number of fine plays. Or, if not exactly fine plays, at least plays with enough merit to enjoy a large sucess if only the critics left them alone.

It is high time that someone dispelled this popularly accepted legend. It is one of the worst frauds ever perpetrated on a gullible public. There is a Death Watch, it is true, but it isn't composed of the critics and the first-nighters. Far from constituting a Death Watch, they constitute in the general run the theatre's staunchest advocates, loyalest friends and biggest and most indiscriminate boosters.

If you are reluctant to believe it, read the newspapers and go to the openings and observe the conduct of the first-night audiences. More bad, or at least indifferent plays, are either praised or graciously let down by the majority of the reviewers for the daily press than you can shake a stick at. Take, this season, such dramatic gimcracks and counterfeits as "The Star-Wagon," "French Without Tears," "Susan and God" and the like. All of them were given such honeyed notices by many of the critics that the school essays of Pollyanna must have seemed in comparison to have been the work of Strindberg. And so far as the first-nighters are concerned, any play, however odoriferous, that fails to get less than a dozen final curtain calls is a rarity. Unless my powers of observation over a period of three decades have been sadly defective, the first-night audience automatically likes almost everything, and the worse it is, the better it seems to like it.

No, the critics and first-nighters no more constitute a Death Watch than cyanide of potassium constitutes a crepe Suzette. The Death Watch, strange as it may seem, is made up rather of certain theatrical managers and producers and of most of the actors and actresses who, when out of work, insinuate themselves into the audiences at the opening performances. Although the fact is not known to the public in general, it is and

Wm. A. Brady . . . "loudly proclaiming for half a dozen years the death of the theatre."

IF THE stage is dying, who is killing it? The old battle flares up again, with America's noted critic and commentator leading the fray. The "Death Watch," named by him in this striking article, will give their answers in an early issue of this magazine. The fight should be interesting, let critics and players fall where they may!

"Arthur Hopkins has written a series of articles arguing that the theatre has been permanently killed."

"John Golden blames the people within the theatre."

"Henry Hull takes a fall out of the members of his profession."

—THE REAL DEATH WATCH

has long been appreciated by the critics and regular first-nighters, who have whimsically shouldered a blame that rightly and properly rests upon these others.

Chief among the real Death Watch is the theatrical producer, Mr. Brock Pemberton. He goes to all the premieres, his face the picture of gloom and morbidity, and to so much as look at him sitting in his seat or standing glumly in the lobby is enough to dispirit even the most enthusiastic critic. If he ever likes a play or performance, no one knows it, and if he doesn't like it, which, to put it mildly, is pretty often, a number of the critics will tell you that he is not loath to vouchsafe his opinion between the acts or directly after the show—sometimes, indeed, after seven or eight shows. "Hm," he sourly observed to Critic John Mason Brown on one occasion, "you certainly fell for that Maxwell Anderson guff!" The guff was "High Tor," which subsequently was awarded the year's prize by the drama critics' own circle.

Mr. William A. Brady is another manager and producer who figures conspicuously in the real Death Watch. And still another is Mr. Arthur Hopkins. Both haven't missed a day in the last half-dozen years loudly proclaiming the death of the legitimate theatre. Mr. Brady has given out hundreds of interviews in that time asserting that the theatre hasn't a leg to stand on any more, and Mr. Hopkins has written an endless series of magazine and Sunday newspaper articles arguing that the theatre has been permanently killed seriatim by everything from the movies to the automobile, from the critics to the radio, and from the first-night audiences to the traffic regulations. And when Mr. Brady and Mr. Hopkins attend the openings, their pans mirror the excessive depression and melancholia of Mons. Pemberton's.

Mr. John Golden, yet another producer, contradicts the belief that the maligned critics and first-nighters are the leading enemies of the theatre and puts the onus upon the people directly within the theatre itself. It is the unionization of the industry, he charges, that has done the dirty work. "The actors have their unions, the authors, the managers, the scene designers, the electricians, the stagehands—yes, even the ushers and the scrub-women! The worst enemy of the theatre today is the people of the theatre," he states.

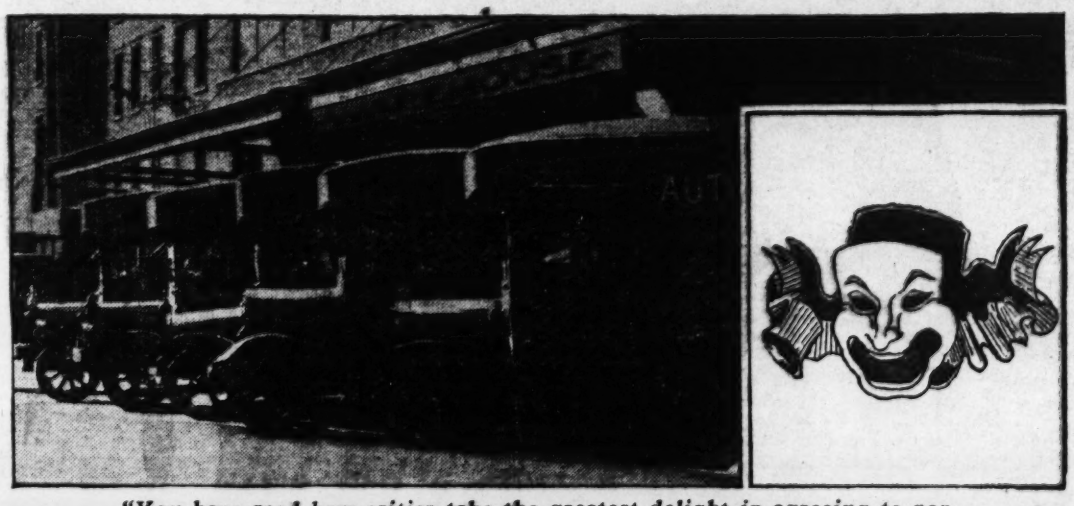

So far, maybe so good. But then Mr. Golden immediately elects himself an honorary member of the Death Watch with the following: "Perhaps the producers are most to blame. The majority of them are amateur or near-society dilettantes, night-club habitues, angel-backers and shoestring gamblers, with their slipshod, unmoral and—even worse—unprepared productions messing up Broadway."

That Mr. Golden is eminently correct in his animadversions on certain producers, I have already suggested. But that he doesn't present himself in the light of a veritable Death Watch cheer-leader when he issues his blanket destructive criticism of those others whom he refers to above is difficult for anyone closely acquainted with the theatre to disbelieve. Such amateur producers as the Group Theatre and even the Theatre Union have in general put on critically sounder plays and done more to inject new life into the drama than Mr. Golden himself. Such producers with a liking for society and the fashionable life as Mr. Gilbert Miller and Mr. Alfred De Liagre, Jr., the former in particular, have certainly not been guilty of "slipshod, unmoral and unprepared productions" and have periodically added considerably to the theatre's more sophisticated pleasures. Mr. George Abbott and Mr. Sam Harris are just two of a number of producers who like to go to night-clubs, and surely both are producers highly esteemed by critics and audiences. Mr. Max Gordon and Mr. Guthrie McClintic often have angels to back them, and does Mr. Golden really believe that for that reason they are inferior to Mr. Golden, who says that he puts up his own money? Furthermore, the plays put on by shoestring gamblers are not always any more contemptible than some of those put on by the legitimate producing gamblers. I recall, over a period of years, that some of them, indeed, were pretty good.

Assisting the producers in the real Death Watch are actors and actresses. If ever there have existed destructive critics, eavesdrop on the comments of the actors and actresses in an audience when a play is over! Play, players, settings, lighting and costumes generally get scant mercy from them. The leading lady's looks (particularly if she happens to be over thirty-five), the dresses on the women in the company, the quality of the play compared with that of the one they themselves last had a run in—everything receives their strictures. Only at an actor's benefit performance do actors, when part of an audience, ever find anything to praise.

Mr. Henry Hull, as a member of the Actor's Division of the Death Watch, takes the following comprehensive fall out of the members of his profession: "The first-nights savor somewhat of a combination of Roman arena, a fashion parade, a bull fight and a psychopaths' convention and are just plain hell for the actors, who are all so damned unbalanced that they alternately underplay and overstress." Thus, according to Death Watch Hull, there is never an actor who gives a good performance on an opening night. And thus, according to Mr. Hull, the critics and first-night audiences who believe and state that a lot of them often do are plain fools.

Let the public begin to revise its old theory and definition of the Death Watch!

"You have read how critics take the greatest delight in agreeing to pan the tar out of everything . . . thus killing off any number of fine plays."

(Author and World Traveler, Written in Collaboration with Berenice Shidelsky.)

I HAD my first impact with Reunion Island's amazing custom almost as soon as I landed. In preparation for the usual port red tape, I started to unlock my baggage, but the customs officer, who didn't know English nor understand my few words of labored French, gave me to understand by sign language that I needn't bother. I was delighted, of course, and said "thank you" in both tongues. He said "you are welcome" — neither; in fact, it was his way of saying it that was my initiation. Clasping my hands and drawing them to his lips, he kissed them fervently.

Naturally I was taken by surprise. But by the time I had recovered enough to express my indignation, he had turned away, and was giving his attention to the next passenger. It was apparent that the kisses had intended no offense; and I left the dock considerably bewildered by the queer performance.

My coming to Reunion Island in the first place was pure whim. I was foot-loose, with the world to wander in, and all the time to do it. I had been standing in the lobby of the Balmoral Hotel, in Durban, South Africa, thinking it about time to pull up stakes there, and wondering where to go next, when a traveler, rather the worse for hob-nobbing with John Barleycorn, leaning for support against a pillar, began telling all within range of his voice about the island, a French possession in the Indian Ocean, southeast of Madagascar. Through his semi-coherent babblings ran the thread of repeated assertion that the island's other name was Garden of Eden—before the advent of the serpent, to be sure.

"It's wunnerful!" he repeated, over and over. "No worries—no troubles. Ev'body happy! Beau'ful girls—." He stopped, overcome by the power of his recollections; then hiccoughed and went on: "Oh, those girls!"

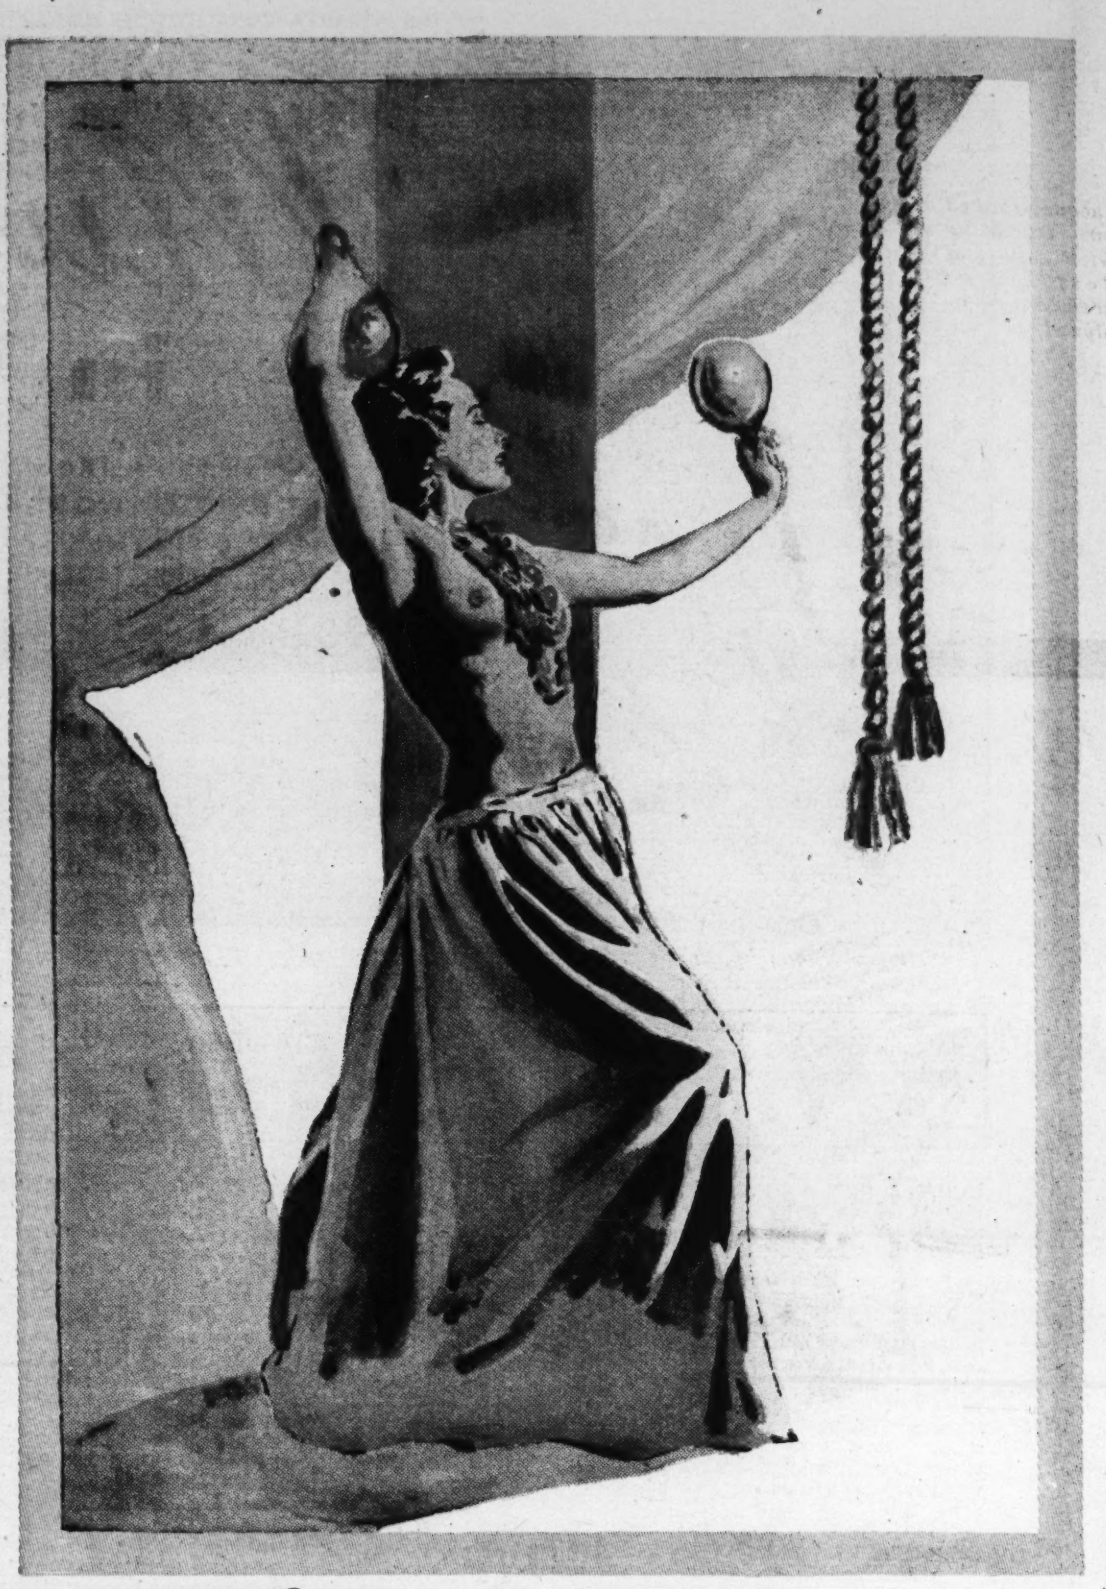

My curiosity was fired. Here, I thought, might be the answer to my question. I hunted up a map, and with considerable difficulty located Reunion Island, the tiniest of dots on a broad expanse of sea.

"Ships stop there only once every two months," the local travel agent said.

"Fine!" I exclaimed. "Then it's sure not to be tourist-ridden and spoiled. Please book me for the very next sailing."

Reunion Island has no harbor. The only anchorage for ships is an open roadstead about a mile from shore. It was dusk when my ship arrived there; and the lights of St. Denis, the capital, twinkled out a welcome. As I stepped into the rowboat that was to take me ashore, I had a strange sense of having arrived at the very end of the world.

After the customs officer had knocked the wind out of my sails by his osculation, I took my luggage and went somewhat uncertainly out into the narrow street. Suddenly I heard the soft jingling of bangles, and as I turned toward the sound, a slight girl stepped from the shadows and said, in

There was more than mere grace in the sway of her body; there was a subtle emotion.

As each servant grasped an arm of the girl, the merchant said: "It will do you no good to defy me, little one."

French patois: "Come with me—you stay at my hotel."

Since I couldn't think of anything better to do, I agreed.

I got my first sight of the island next day. After a good night's rest, I was all agog for adventure. My hosts introduced me to Pietro, who, was to be my guide.

With the help of Pietro, I explored St. Denis.

Nature here is in her kindliest mood. A sensuousness hovers over the island; and the people absorb it with every breath they draw. The ubiquitous kiss is spontaneous combustion. It is a safety-valve for emotions that, suppressed, might become overpowering. Everywhere you look, for every occasion or no occasion at all, people are kissing. The kinds of kisses are innumerable—tender, passionate, wistful, sorrowing, rejoicing. The mother kisses her child. Young lovers kiss with eager intensity; the silvery heads of Darby and his Joan are ever close together. Down by the jetty, Creole girls sing and laugh and make love with sailor sweethearts. A world of wantonness in sweet warm kisses!

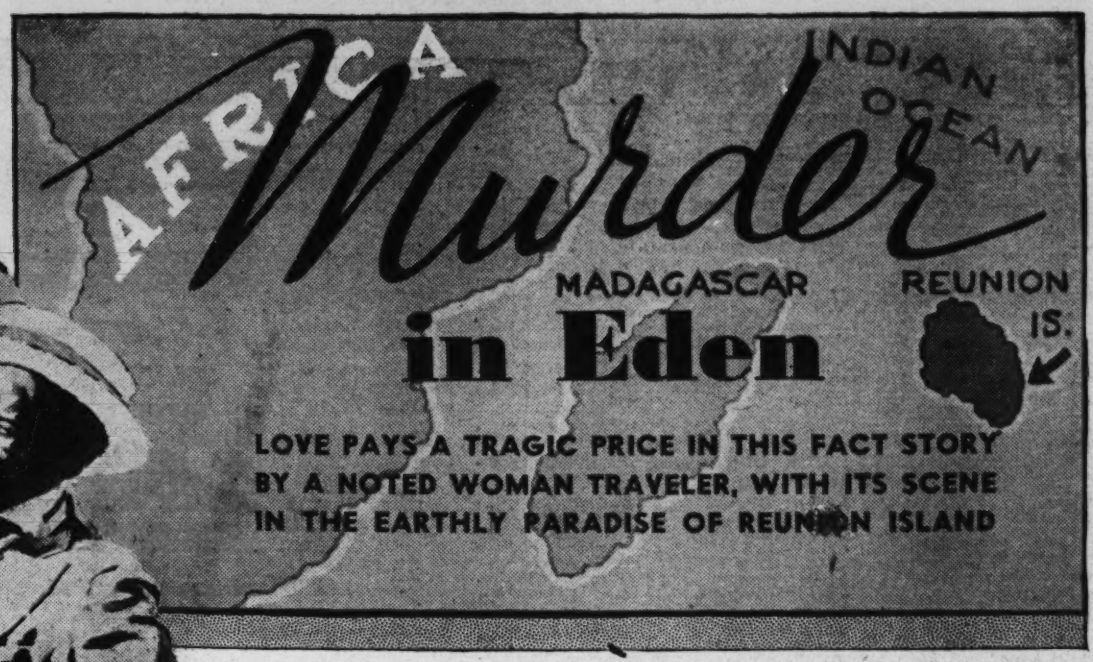

It is fitting that a little passion flower, somewhat like the edelweiss of Switzerland, should be the symbol of this kiss-conscious land. The story is that from 1810 to 1815, when the island was under British mandate, the flower did not bloom; but with the triumphant return of the French in the latter year, it sprang into sudden and profuse blossom everywhere.

As for the people, they were so overjoyed that they gathered the blossoms and made leis of them, kissing them and placing them about the necks of the returning Frenchmen. And I have no doubt—though this is not a matter of the record—that they kissed the Frenchmen, too. At any rate, the little blossom since then has been called the "kiss flower"; and when one of them withers and dies, its pointed petals fasten to the earth in one long kiss of surrender.

It was to Pietro that I owed one of the most dramatic experiences of my life. He suggested one night that I might find it interesting to attend a dance in a St. Denis quarter known as "A La Belle Etoile", though he warned me at the same time that if I did so, I must be prepared for anything to happen. That, of course, made me all the more eager to go; and off we set.

At the door of a ramshackle building, Pietro knocked. We waited for some time before the door was opened, but when at last we were admitted, I was surprised to see how much more elaborate was the inner structure than the outside indicated. We were led through a veritable labyrinth of courts. Napthalene lamps were the only illumination, and upon the white-washed walls were cast grotesque shadows by the people milling about, and by the dancing girls who were weaving in and out among them.

These girls wore many jewels, and their draperies were so arranged as to expose their stomach muscles, over which they had astonishing control. In fact, their dancing was almost entirely a matter of stomach and hip movements; most of the time their feet seemed to be glued to one spot.

There was one man among the spectators who attracted my attention at once, no doubt because his Occidental clothes stood out among the native costumes. He was very dark, and I felt something sinister in his expression.

"He is a wealthy tea merchant," Pietro told me. The man fascinated me, as a serpent might do. I watched him eye each dancing girl with haughty insolence, turning from one to another contemptuously. There was an impatience in his manner, as if he were looking for a particular girl, and was not one to brook disappointment readily.

Suddenly there was a loud crashing of cymbals and drums, and a door in the rear of the room opened. All movement stopped, as all eyes turned in its direction. A young girl emerged, a breath-taking vision in green and gold and red.

"She is the star of the dancers," Pietro said.

I knew why, the minute she began to dance. There was more than mere grace in the sway of her body; there was deep and subtle emotion. I have seen many of the world's most renowned dancers, but never have I seen a performance more remarkable.

As she danced, her bright eyes were searching the crowd eagerly, as if she, too, like the tea merchant, were looking for someone in particular. The tea merchant stepped forward as the young girl came near to him, and barred her progress. Everything came to a dead stop. The girl took a step backward and stared at him. There was fear in her eyes; no, this could not have been the person that she sought.

A bleary-eyed old man came from a corner and stood beside the girl, bowing low before the merchant.

"Is this your daughter?" the latter asked.

"Yes, yes!" said the old man, with revolting eagerness. "Yes, Your Excellency, she is my child, my beloved child."

"Well, I would buy your daughter," said the merchant, haughtily. "How much?"

The old man named a price, and the merchant threw down a purse and bade the girl be ready when he returned. Then he left the room and walked out into the cobbled street. Pulling Pietro by the sleeve, I quickly followed. We had hardly emerged in his wake, when we saw a young Frenchman, in soldier's uniform, come up to him and bar his way.

"That is Jacques Bernay," Pietro whispered to me. "The lover of the girl."

"What you have done, Monsieur," Jacques said, "is an outrage! Go—take back your money. You can't take Lasea away with you. I forbid it!"

"And by what right, may I ask," drawled the merchant, "do you presume to dictate to me?"

"I love her," said the young man, simply.

"Then," said the merchant, in the same drawl, "we have something in common. And now—" his tone suddenly became savage "—get out of my way!"

The young soldier stood his ground.

"Lasea is not to be bought for money, do you hear?" he cried.

"No? By bravery, then? Is that your meaning? If so, I am at your service."

The young man wavered uncertainly for an instant, then turned abruptly on his heel and went indoors. The merchant looked after him thoughtfully, and then with sudden decision reentered the building. Pietro and I followed, too.

The entertainment had stopped, and the entire audience was gathered about Lasea and her father. The old man was lashing her with words that mingled abuse with entreaties and threats, and the girl stood shrinking as from a whip. Breaking through the crowd, the merchant strode up to them.

"Well?" he said, impatiently. "Well, is she ready?"

"She refuses to go, Your Excellency," the old man whined. "The ungrateful, disobedient child—after all my sacrifices for her..."

Lasea raised her head, and looked full in the merchant's eyes.

"I will not go with you!" Lasea said. "It is Jacques Bernay that I love. I will stay with him."

I looked about for Jacques. He was standing nearby, poised, it seemed to me, for action, yet torn between love and that military discipline which forbade public brawling.

Meanwhile the merchant gave a half-perceptible nod, and in answer two servants emerged from a nearby corner, to stand sphinx-like beside him.

"Seize her!" he ordered; then, as each grasped an arm of the girl, he said to her: "It will do you no good to defy me, little one. If you don't come willingly, my servants will bind you and carry you."

The place was electric. The girl, giving rein to her burning wrath, heaped abuse on him and on her father. I glanced at Jacques. He was trembling with rage and despair, yet seemed too paralyzed to act.

The merchant had propelled the girl toward the door. Immediately, as if to relieve the tension, the entertainment recommenced; furiously the cymbals clashed, and throats swelled with cries forced out to relieve emotion.

Suddenly a girl's shriek rent the air. Pietro and I, caught up in the rush of the crowd, hastened in its direction. We came to the street. There Jacques was holding Lasea in his arms, his silver dagger's hilt protruding from her heart, and her warm blood flowing fast over them both. I saw the young man clasp her limp form close, and press his mouth to hers in one long farewell kiss of life, before delivering her over to the everlasting kiss of death.

I do not know what happened after that. Seizing the faithful Pietro by the sleeve, I got away as quickly as I could. My knees were trembling, and I was sick with a sense of all the needless sorrow and suffering of the world.

What Was Justice in This Case?

By PETER LEVINS.

Etta Reisman trudged along the Flushing street, oblivious of everything but the sorrow which was gnawing her heart. She had just left her husband's shop, where they had talked again about a separation. Arthur, in the presence of her brother, had agreed to pay her $30 a week. Now she was going to buy a trunk for her belongings.

The heavy-set, not unattractive housewife had not wanted to move out of her pretty house, and out of her husband's life. But Arthur insisted that it had to be. They just couldn't get along together any more. There had been a separation a few months before—Etta had left Arthur in April, taking her nine-year-old son, but she hadn't been able to stand it more than a few weeks, and had returned home, bringing $70 she had saved.

But somehow Etta Reisman had lost the secret of making her husband happy. She realized that now—and she blamed another woman, a much younger, much prettier woman than she.

Etta and Arthur had both been divorced when they first met in a lawyer's office. At 20, she, bookkeeper daughter of an East Side brushmaker, had married a drug clerk, Henry Cohen, but the union had been dissolved after only two years. She married Reisman, a minor figure in the carnival business, in June, 1932, bringing him an $800 dowry. She was then 23, he 30, and his daughter, Annette, was 11 years old.

The $800 dowry helped launch the beauty shop business which had developed into a prosperous chain. They had started modestly, with a shop in their apartment in Queens. It was Etta who originated the now common practice of charging a quarter for any service except a permanent wave. Eventually Reisman owned six Etta-Ann beauty shops, named in honor of his wife and daughter, as well as an attractive home on Utopia Parkway, Beechhurst. The son, Elias, was born in 1926.

Etta took on weight, became active in the local women's club, and generally settled down. She counted herself fortunate in her lot. Life appeared to offer no further complications.

But then, without anyone realizing it, a complication did begin to germinate. In 1929 17-year-old Virginia Seigh, chum of Annette and daughter of mutual friends of the Reismans, went to work in the Flushing shop, and soon afterward she went to live with the Reismans.

It had been Annette's idea that Virginia make her home with them, since the Reisman home was so much nearer than her own home on East Thirty-second street, Brooklyn. The girls roomed together. Virginia showed aptitude in the business, becoming Reisman's secretary and eventually the manager of the Flushing establishment. She paid Mrs. Reisman $5 a week out of her pay.

No one suspected it in the beginning, but that was the complication which was destined to wreck all their lives. Each morning Reisman drove off to work with Virginia, each evening he returned with her. Day in and day out, he saw far more of her than he did of Etta. And lots of evenings, when the wife was busy with her club, or too tired to go out, he went to the movies with the girls.

As she grew to womanhood, Miss Seigh naturally developed opinions about many matters. Also, her daily contacts at the shop gave her things to talk about. Thus for Reisman there was gradually presented the contrast of a young, attractive interesting girl with a settled, kitchen-puttering housewife whose gossip about the neighbors and "the club" no longer held the husband spellbound. Quite the opposite.

Reisman, a tallish, heavy-set, bald man of 42, saw the developing complication before anyone else. He knew he was falling out of love with Etta and very much in love with Virginia. By the early spring of 1935—Virginia was now 23, as Etta had been when he married her—he realized that, for him, there was no way out but a divorce.

His first hint fell like a bombshell. There were bitter scenes and quarrels, and then that separation in April. Reisman had given her $35 a week, more than enough for her needs, and she had endured the separation as long as she could. When she returned she believed that, somehow, everything would turn out all right.

Instead, everything turned out wrong. And now, August 13, 1935, she was buying a trunk for her things. She could have bought a real expensive one . . . Arthur wouldn't care about that. Instead she ordered one that cost $6.

Home. Gloomily she went about preparing dinner. Arthur arrived with Virginia, and the family ate. It was not a pleasant meal, for the wife could not withhold her recrimation. To her way of thinking she was making last desperate efforts to hold her place; to his way, she was driving him crazy. At about 8 o'clock he decided that he'd had enough, and went out.

He visited a neighboring bar, had several drinks, then drove home at 10:30, hoping that by this time Etta would have gone to bed. To his annoyance, he found the front door locked, and he had no key. He went back to the bar.

When he returned, at 11:30, he was drunk enough to be in a highly belligerent mood. Instead of going to the front door and ringing the bell, he sat in the car and shouted.

Lights flashed on in neighboring homes. Mrs. Reisman hurried downstairs in her nightgown, followed by the girls, both in pajamas and pink slippers. They all went out.

But Reisman refused to enter the house. Loudly he declared that he would spend the night in the car. The discussion became so disturbing and protracted that somebody telephoned the police to restore peace to Utopia Parkway. Sergeant Fred Newberg, of the Bayside precincit, arrived at 12:20 a. m.

Reisman promised to quiet down, but still refused to go into the house. As none of the neighbors would prefer charges, the officer left the scene.

Then Dr. C. J. Cohen, a family friend who had been summoned by Mrs. Reisman, arrived and tried his hand at persuading Reisman to quit this business. Still he would not budge. The argument continued, Dr. Cohen went back home to Whitestone, and finally Mrs. Reisman went upstairs to her room.

But she could not sleep. She sat at the window looking out on the drive where the car was parked. Annette and Virginia were still there.

One-thirty o'clock. Etta Reisman heard her husband say to Virginia, "You'd better tell Cissie (Annette) how it is between us."

According to the wife's story, Virginia confessed to Annette that she and Arthur were in love with each other. The announcement drove Mrs. Reisman half out of her mind. She snatched her husband's .38-caliber pistol from a drawer in the bedroom and ran downstairs and out to the car.

"Is it true what you said" she cried.

"It's true," the girl replied. "I do love him."

Mrs. Reisman, standing only three feet from Virginia, raised the gun with both hands and fired point-blank into her rival's heart.

As Virginia sank to the lawn, Annette leaped out of the car. Her stepmother fled toward the garage at the back of the house. Annette caught up with her and they struggled for the gun. Another shot went off, wounding the girl slightly in the little finger. Mrs. Reisman fired the

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

---

NOVEMBER 21—SUNDAY: There is apt to be too heavy a strain, too much rashness, to come to agreements before 12:43 p. m. This is a time to be careful of your tongue and your temper, or it may be that someone will use these qualities against you. Between 12:43 p. m. and 6:44 p. m. will be surprisingly different from the morning, for at this time you can attain a sympathy and peace that will be most beneficial in your undertakings. After 6:44 p. m. guard against any kind of extravagance.

NOVEMBER 22 — MONDAY: Be prepared to ask for important favors before 9:51 a. m., for important people will have a willing ear. Between 9:51 a. m. and 11:24 a. m. put your cards on the table in practical, concrete and above board matters, and in dealings with this type person, for this is not a time to tell a half truth. During the afternoon and evening hours is not favorable for sudden changes, and important undertakings, though you may have a feeling that all will be lost if you do not make some kind of move.

NOVEMBER 23—TUESDAY: Previous to 10 a. m. is not a favorable time for dealings with women, electrical ideas, community work, humanitarian interests and inventive ideas. After 10 a. m. and continuing throughout the remainder of the day splendid results should be obtained from interviews, travel, dealings with close relatives, inspirational works, and buying and selling.

NOVEMBER 24 — WEDNESDAY: The entire day until 6:08 p. m. is more favorable for ordinary routine than it is for trying to attain a new status. Land transactions, dealings with older people, and those who are conservative, and efforts to expand old ventures may meet strong stumbling blocks. The evening hours favor social affairs, works and ideas relating to beauty, and refinement, and affairs related to oils, drugs and chemistry.

NOVEMBER 25 — THURSDAY: Don't branch out before 8:15 p. m., but between 8:35 a. m. and 8:17 p. m. is most favorable for being aggressive, for obtaining co-operation, new methods of doing things, travel, contacting unusual and highly intelligent people, and for changes. After 8:17 p. m. inclines to nervousness, irritability, and poor judgment, especially in communications, travel and trading.

NOVEMBER 26—FRIDAY: If you are about in the early morning hours, before 4:18 a. m., be cautious in taking chances of any kind. They are not likely to work out as you think. Between 4:18 a. m. and 12:21 noon favors financial dealings, cordial receptions, dealings with doctors and legal people, and educational matters. After 12:21 noon don't expect to accomplish affairs quickly, and if you wonder why you are feeling depressed, just remember it will pass away.

NOVEMBER 27—SATURDAY: Go slow before 10:32 a. m. and avoid deception and confusion. After 10:32 a. m. favors matters that require pluck, iniative and physical endurance, work or business related to iron, steel, hardware and mechanical and industrial lines.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

THE MYSTERY OF THE SOUNDLESS TOM-TOMS

By COMMANDER ATTILIO GATTI
(AUTHOR OF THE BEST SELLER "GREAT MOTHER FOREST")

ONE of the members of a scientific congress, a professor with a rich and impressive beard, was regaling the assemblage with the result of the excavations he had been making in Babylon. Having found some copper wire during the course of his excavations, he sustained that, therefore, the Babylonians had known and used the telegraph.

Whereupon another scientist, not to be outdone, jumped up to say that in his excavations in Zimbabwe he had found no wire at all, and that, therefore, the unknown builders of the City of Silence must have known and used wireless.

This story came to my mind one day as I was walking back from the hospital in Broken Hill, Northern Rhodesia, to my nearby camp.

A short time before, about half-past eleven of that morning, while I had been talking with one of the doctors in his office, a native assistant had rushed in and spoken a few rapid words to him. A white man, a prospector, so the assistant said, had been attacked by a leopard and before his natives could come to his aid he had had a fierce fight with the animal, only succeeding in killing it with his knife after several minutes of terrible body-to-body struggle. The prospector had been badly wounded, and now his natives were carrying him toward Broken Hill.

The doctor excused himself and hurried out with his assistant and when he returned a few minutes later he surprised me by sitting down quietly and picking up the thread of our conversation.

"What about the prospector?" I asked him.

"Oh, there is plenty of time," he answered. "A doctor and two nurses have gone to fetch him with the ambulance."

"But I thought I understood your boy to say the accident happened this morning!"

"Yes, that's what he said," the doctor replied. "An hour or two ago, I believe, but at Kabenda."

Now, the village of Kabenda on the Kafue River is about two hundred miles from Broken Hill, and the only means of communication between the two localities is by way of a road which for the greater part is little more than a rough track, with only the post of the District Commissioner and three or four farms scattered along it.

"Of course," the doctor continued, "not even my twenty years of Africa have taught me how in the devil they can transmit news in this way. But Karimo gave me this information with a face that means he is sure of it. And I hope the ambulance will arrive in time."

Before evening the ambulance returned, bringing in the white man, a gigantic prospector.

And there is nothing to say. It is like that. The "scientist" of the anecdote was not, perhaps, so ridiculous as he appears at first sight. At least if his affirmation had referred to the natives of today instead of the unknown builders of Zimbabwe.

We feel so proud of the latest inventions, the most recent improvements in radio-telegraphic communications, or the possibility of perfecting television to the point where it will be within the reach of all. And to develop and utilize these marvels, we know that behind the scenes platoons of scientists are toiling in magnificent laboratories, regiments of mechanics and operators maneuvering enormous installations, costly apparatus and labyrinths of wire.

Then we go to Africa. And we find functioning through the damp shadows of the thick equatorial forest, over the hot, semi-desert aridity of the unending plains, across the pestilential swamps, the enormous lakes, the mighty rivers, another, quite different, system of wireless and television which equals and sometimes even surpasses all our modern inventions.

Neither scientist nor mechanic is required to operate it. Only the black children of nature. Only some old tom-tom, hollowed out from the trunk of a tree and closed at one or both ends by a tightly-stretched animal hide. Only some columns of smoke during the day, fires during the night, spreading from hill to hill.

Other times, not even this—nothing at all. Nothing that our five senses can see or hear or in any way perceive.

How they do it, I do not know. No one knows.

I remember in Italian Somaliland in July, 1924—to quote another episode along this line which happened to me—I was one night inspecting my camp of Ascaris just outside Mogadiscio and chanced to overhear some words that my Somali orderly exchanged with other Ascaris near the fire.

"Yesterday the great king of the 'Engrisch' has made a present to the great king of Italy."

Being curious, I questioned him, but only after much insistence did I wring from him the explanation that the present consisted of "Refuge Bay and much desert back of it and around it and thousands and thousands of Somalis who live in it."

When I told him that such a tale was only silly gossip, he grudgingly volunteered to give me as proof of his statement the dimensions of the territory. But I was unable to make anything of his complicate calculations, all based on measurements such as the length from the elbow of one arm to the middle finger-tip of the other, plus the breadth of the right hand, and the distance from finger-tip to finger-tip of a man with the arms stretched out horizontally, and so on, bringing in every possible part of the human anatomy.

That same evening I spoke of it to the Chief Secretary to the Governor, my good friend. And he had a fine time pulling my leg.

Ever since the peace, he finally told me, there had been talk of giving a Colonial compensation to Italy. But although for six years diplomatic discussions had been going on in London and Rome, and now for several months two commissions somewhere in Kenya had been considering the question, not even the Governor himself had the slightest idea how many months or years the discussions would continue, nor even the exact extent of the territory to be given to Italy.

Scientists today marvel at the mystery of tom-toms which transmit messages so fast.

(Photographs by the Author.)

And that seemed to be the end of it.

But a few weeks later, in August, the news was published that Kisimayu and its territory had been turned over to Italy, and neither the Chief Secretary nor I knew what to think when I pointed out to him that the date of the signing of the accord was the very day before my orderly had received the news in full detail.

So exact had been his information, that when one of the Somali clerks made a calculation of that confusion of finger-tips, arms, shoulders, hands, etc., which my orderly remembered perfectly and was only too pleased to repeat, the result was a little less than 32,000 square miles; whereas the territory recorded in the official communique amounted to 33,000.

But this discrepancy, perhaps was due to faulty reckoning on the part of the clerk, who may have based his computations on his own physique. And he was a very small man.

Has Human Qualities.

THEIR EYES WERE WATCHING GOD. By Zora Neale Hurston. J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia. 286 pp. $2.

If there be any doubt in the reader's mind of Zora Neale Hurston's literary standing, let him (or her) be reminded that this increasingly popular author was awarded Guggenheim Fellowships in both 1936 and this year, and also received Book-of-the Month Club honorable mention earlier this year. In "Their Eyes Were Watching God," she not merely maintains this eminent status, but produces a story which transcends in readability her previous works, chief among them the unforgettable "Mules and Men."

Janie's childhood ended the day she was caught kissing Johnny Taylor over the gatepost. That turning point only briefly preceded her unhappy marriage to Logan Killicks—a marriage which came to an end when Joe Starks, "from in and through Georgy" came along. But when flint-souled Joe, who ran his home town, cursed and belittled her, she brought him to public ridicule and his death. It was then that Tea Cake found her—and of the happiness he brought her Miss Hurston has told an intriguing story that is rich in human qualities. J. T.

Every Day Mysticism.

YOGA EXPLAINED. By F. Yeats-Brown. The Viking Press, New York. 164 pp. $2.

The author of "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "Lancer at Large," in this study of Yoga brings the East of India into our American home. Is there anything in Yoga? And if there is, how does one go about seeking its benefits?

No one can say how far one may progress upon the path of Yoga. Telepathy, healing, conquest over pain and disease, arrival at the goal of complete happiness, aachieving supreme spiritual unity? There is evidence that these may be acquired and attained.

The author, noted for his writings, for many years has studied and practiced the discipline and has acquired an understanding and a proficiency probably unequalled by any other Occidental. In this book, he explains in simple language, warns of trouble spots, urges practice and patience, guides and all but carries the reader from page to page.

Yoga is not easy to understand. And even harder is its practice. But here it is for those who have a desire to achieve greater things than their fellows—plus a will and a determination to succeed. Here it is, ready to help you develop the powers, both physical and mental, natural within you.

Politicial Fiction.

WASHINGTON CALLING. By Marquis W. Childs. William Morrow & Company, New York. 280 pp. $2.50.

This purported tale by Marquis W. Childs, a Washington newspaper correspondent, of the "powers that be" in the nation's capital, the author builds his story around an ex-senator, who is hired for his political influence by "the interests."

The theme is not original and the story is quite inferior to many of the columns appearing in the daily press devoted to the Washington political scene. While ex-Senator Charlie Squires seems a fairly plausible character, most of the others, including Darnell Squires, the daughter, are heavily tainted with fictionalism. The most unreal to this reviewer, is Deltus Mayne, the old senator, who at the age of 80 decides to defy not only the political machine in his home state, but also the President, who is of his own party. His colleague, the junior senator from his state, characterizes the behavior of the old man as political suicide, which is like anticipating the past.

The author despite a lack of realism, maintains the continuity of the story in an interesting manner, but with this observation, one can easily put this book out of his mind.

Highly Recommended.

TOMBS, TRAVEL AND ADVENTURE. By Lawrence Griswold. Hillman-Curl Co., New York. 337 pp. Illst. $3.

This book was written by a 38-year-old Harvard graduate who describes himself as a strange mixture of scientist, adventurer and plain damn fool. After reading his offering to the public this commentator agrees fully with him. He displays all the characteristics of a scientific "bug" with a flair for adventure. The "damn fool" designation arises from the fact that he appears to be a glutton for the physical punishment and financial outlay that accompanies expeditions into out-of-the-way sections of the globe to hunt for traces of prehistoric peoples and civilizations, or to capture some rare species of the animal kingdom.

Mr. Griswold is by way of being an archaeologist, anthropologist and zoologist. The account of his several expeditions in Central America, South America and the Pacific Ocean jumping-off spots carries sufficient scientific data to intrigue those who are interested in the three subjects above mentioned, but just before he gets beyond the intellectual depth of an ordinary individual he introduces a hair-raising adventure that sends shivers racing up and down the reader's backbone, or gives in captivating style the details of some ludicrous incident that lightened his arduous life in the wilds.

The work is intensely interesting as well as instructive, and is recommended for a complete Sunday session in an easy chair when the weather forbids an outdoor excursion, for it is one of those books that chains the reader's interest from "kivver to kivver," having everything but a love theme. The author has a literary style that ranges from classic English to breezy vernacular, and personality exudes from every sentence. R.

Dictator's Tragedy.

OLIVER CROMWELL. By Mary Taylor Blouvelt. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York. 317 pp. $3.50.

The life of Oliver Cromwell would indicate that Destiny has much to do with shaping the careers of men. Some get started in a particular line or movement and are pushed to the top; others are shoved the opposite direction, while some never get started.

Up to the age of 43 he lived in obscurity. A member of parliament he was appointed an officer in the army that was raised to carry out the will of that body when it and Charles I went to war in 1642. He developed into an accomplished warrior, won battles, and in 1653 became Protector of England, having thrice refused to become king.

Mary Taylor Blouvelt's history of Cromwell and the period is a painstaking study and brilliant chronicle. Her analysis of the man's character is illuminating and explains how this religious individual was goaded to the acts which history records.

It was a period when religious beliefs were strong and men committed overt acts "for the glory of God." Cromwell's purpose appears to have been to establish a government representing the will of the nation more completely than it had ever been before. He endeavored to reform the laws, sought to secure religious toleration for the great body of Protestant's and give the nation a written constitution. Circumstances and refusal of a great body to tolerate a republic forced him to become a dictator. Finally, worn out by cares of state, he became ill and passed on. His son, Richard, succeeded him, but the son could not replace the father, as the nation welcomed return of the Stuarts in the person of Charles II.

Another Oz Book.

HANDY MANDY IN OZ. By Ruth Plumley Thompson. Reilly & Lee, Chicago. 246 pp. Illst. $1.50.

This the thirtieth of the imitable "Oz Books," originated by L. Frank Baum some 30 years ago, and which appear to have achieved the popularity of the famed "Chatterbox" series which amused and instructed children of another generation; men and women who are now happy in making an annual Christmas present of the latest "Oz" book to their grandchildren.

Those who are familiar with the famed and mythical "Land of Oz" will be interested to know that this latest book concerns the visit of Handy Mandy, the Goat Girl of Mern, to that marvelous land where most unexpected and unusual things happen.

The book is profusely illustrated with drawings by John R. Neill, and will not only amuse the yougsters but entertain their elders, who received thrills in childhood by reading the earlier stories of the Scarecrow, Tim Woodman and Jack Pumpkinhead.

William II Hohenzollern

THE KAISER ON TRIAL. By George Sylvester Viereck. The Greystone Press, New York. 514 pp. $3.50.

A fascinating book. Mr. Viereck here gives a complete history of Germany's great modern war lord. His trial was demanded by the Treaty of Versailles, but the Netherlands, where he took refuge (and still lives), refused to surrender him.

Now we have a full account of that trial which never took place, this time before the high court of history. Living and dead testify. Each side, defense and prosecution, brings countless witnesses to testify. The entire span and scope of the Kaiser's life is brought into relief.

In the foreword James W. Gerard, the former ambassador, says: "Once more the world stands at the edge of war. It is therefore of the greatest interest in judging events today and their probable results, to study the period immediately before the World War.

"It cannot be denied that at that time the central figure in the whole world was the German Kaiser and he occupies that place in this extraordinary book of Mr. Viereck."

As to the author's ability to handle such a task as he has undertaken, he probably is one of the best equipped to do so. That he has proven himself goes without question. His other books have pleased and entertained. Now he gives us one which will startle us, but held us by the thrills and drama his pen is so capable of setting before us on this mighty stage.

Psychic.

THE BETTY BOOK. By Stewart Edward White. E. P. Dutton & Company, New York. $2.50.

Interest in what is called "the psychic" is increasing significantly. More and more men of reputation are coming forth with statements as to their experiences and observations.

While the whole realm is still one of supposition and experimentation, certain paths apparently have been discovered. The terminology is still loose. To this reader, the words "psychic" and "spiritual" are not synonomous and should not be confused. In fact, the word "psychic" is capable of too many interpretations to be used without definition.

Stewart Edward White is the latest writer to come out in print describing the "revelations" coming through a medium named Betty. The book deals with the experiments in releasing the "spiritual body" into other planes of consciousness and as Mr. White says, "the reader is at liberty to question anything but the absolute good faith of the experimentor. Any but the simple and direct interpretation involves me in so many logical fallicies and intricacies that I have ended by taking the matter at its face value."

The book is readable. In times of stress, the "psychic" seems to be more apparent to men's minds and if we are approaching another period of world turmoil, such books will be frequent. LAURETTA FANCHER.

Irresistible Humor.

BED OF NEUROSES. By Wolcott Gibbs. With Illustrations by Rea Irvin. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. 274 pp. $2.

Excerpts from the New Yorker. They will not appeal, as the author frankly states, to those whose sense of humor is of the conventional sort—there is not an ounce of slapstick comedy in the entire 274 pages. But if you have an aunt who sees pink elephants or a cousin twice removed who does not sleep o' nights for fear of lurking assassins, the chances are that you will find them adequately described in this volume. Terse and matter-of-fact, its humor is irresistible, if you've got the key. If you haven't you are to be pitied and scorned. A great recipe to relieve the Delirium Tremendous of a starkly sober world. OLE H. LEXAU.

Scope and Structure.

RADIUM. By Rudolf Brunngraber. Random House, New York. 400 pp. $2.50.

A novel of unusual scope and structure. The central character possesses no life and blood, but powers diffuse and enormous, as yet largely undetermined. Its name is Radium. An authoritative, and unusually informative, account of the mysterious substance that still baffles science, beginning with its discovery in 1896 and continuing to the present day. The author, an Austrian, already well known for his "Karl and the Twentieth Century," is no popularizer of scientific mysteries—indeed he frequently lashes out with bitter satire against what, for want of a better name, might be called "Sunday Supplement Science." Of heavy, exact Teutonic phraseology, but nonetheless very interesting. Incidentally, a volume of taste and typographical excellence.

OLE H. TEXAU.

White House Letters.

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT. By Ben Whitehurst. E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc., New York. 93 pp. $1.

Cullings from the mail of President Roosevelt, heaviest in White House history, have been compiled here by the former chief of the correspondence division, FERA and WPA. Pathos and bathos abound in the collection, according the reader many a chuckle, many a heart-tug. Mr. Whitehurst has also detailed the handling of presidential mail, estimating that little more than three per cent is actually handled by the White House staff, the remainder being routed to other agencies for answer. The daily volume varies from 2,000 to 7,000 letters, influenced by a number of outside factors. W. G. K.

mad Algy at the wheel, Maude Annie, the flower girl, and two traffic cops, lashings of mirthquake and drama alternate in quick succession.

Colorful adventure along the open road and many interesting characters piles up the amusing situations until the book ends with the climax that will tickle the national funnybone.

BERRIES IN THE HOME GARDEN

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

There are more reasons for planting berries in the home garden than almost any of the other plants that are used in the home garden, and yet there are probably as few as 10 per cent of the gardens around Atlanta that have any of the berries in them. We have seen several gardens in which they were the most prominent one class of plants, and rightly so.

It is almost impossible to find any dewberries on the Atlanta market except at the very height of the dewberry season, and oftentimes they are hard to find them. There is a very good reason for this in that dewberries are not raised commercially in this section, and therefore all of the ones that are found on the market are wild ones that have been gathered by children in the fields. Of course, this makes the supply very undependable. Further, they must be picked when they are almost dead ripe to get the best quality, and that means that they are often soft and over-ripe when they reach our home.

Blackberries that have been picked from wild plants are never as large or as deliciously flavored as the cultivated varieties. While raspberries are not grown commercially around Atlanta on a large scale, some few can occasionally be found. Even these do not have the flavor of the fresh ones right out of the garden full of the natural juices and picked when they are perfectly ripe.

WHAT TO PLANT IN NOVEMBER.

PLANTS: Set out roses, strawberry plants, all kinds of shrubbery, iris, both Japanese and Spanish-Dutch, and peony crowns.

BULBS: November is the best month for planting bulbs. Plant snowdrops and crocus for early spring flowering. Plant tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, ranunculus, anemones and grape hyacinths out of doors. Plant paper white narcissus, soliel d'or and Chinese sacred lilies in water. Use freesias, double and single early tulips, Roman hyacinths and Dutch hyacinths in pots.

SHRUBBERY: Mulch your shrubbery with a mixture of peat moss, sheep manure and bone meal. Plant all kinds of shrubbery this month.

ROSES: Now is the best time for planting roses. Prune your old bushes and mulch them thoroughly. Put on plenty of mulch if your roses are budded. Most of them are.

LILIES: Plant regal lilies, golden rayed lilies, tiger lilies, speciosum magnificum and lily of the valley.

VEGETABLES: Sow your lettuce, cabbage and onion seeds in the cold frame. Plant your asparagus bed now.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: Now is the best time to plant all kinds of fruit trees and berries, grapes and nut trees.

For these reasons, we are always surprised not to find more of them in the home gardens around Atlanta, and we feel sure that the greatest reason is that in most cases they have not been tried. They are all easy to grow, require no special care or attention, may be depended upon to last over a long period of years, and will add greatly to the value of the home garden. In addition to these facts it is also true that there is or at least there has been in the past a demand for home-grown berries that has not been supplied completely. So if you have more than can be used in the home there may be a chance to sell your surplus to your neighborhood grocer. We have known of some thrifty gardeners that pay a large part of their gardening expenses through the sale of a few surpluses that they have from time to time.

Blackberries.

Blackberries should be planted in rows from four to six feet apart and the plants from two to three feet apart in the rows. They prefer a rich, loamy soil and should be cleanly cultivated. It is a good plan to use two or three varieties in order that the bearing season may be extended. The most popular early variety is early harvest and eldorado is considered a fine main crop. The early harvest will come into fruit about two weeks earlier than the main crop varieties.

Pruning is often carried on during the spring after the canes have blossomed. This practice is followed in order that we may see exactly where the fruit will set and that the proper amount of blossoms will be left. It is well in addition to this pruning to take out all of the dead stems and to cut back the tallest stems at this time of the year, rather than put off all of the pruning until spring. If the tallest canes are left on the plant throughout the winter there is danger of the heavy winds tearing the plants to pieces.

Dewberries.

Dewberries will thrive in the same sort of soil and under the same general conditions that blackberries prefer. They also require the same clean cultivation and good fertilization during the early spring.

The pruning of dewberries is most important and differs radically from other berries. After the plants have finished bearing remove every cane that has borne any fruit, cutting them off at the crown of the plant. As the new growth starts pinch the buds from the top as fast as they reach a height of two feet. This will encourage the growth of new branches and will increase the following year's yield.

Raspberries.

Of all the berries that may be planted in the home garden, with the possible exception of strawberries, our opinion is that raspberries are the very finest for home consumption. Even oatmeal tastes good with raspberries and cream. In spite of the seeds that will necessarily be in raspberry jam, we do not see how it could be possible to have anything from the garden that would be any better than raspberry jam, and the most wonderful thing about it is that it will last all winter long.

A fine plan to follow in planting raspberries is to plant them along the garden fence. This accomplishes several things in addition to the mere fact of having raspberries in the garden. First, the fence will provide good support for the plants. Second, the space is being wasted at the present time. Third, the appearance of the garden will be greatly improved by having these plants against the fence.

The selection of varieties to be used in the garden is most important. For best results over a period of years, we always recommend the planting of several different varieties. Some years there may be varieties that will fail to bear fruit almost entirely, while in other years it may do well and some other varieties be a failure.

There are a couple of new varieties of raspberries that are coming more and more into the front. These are van fleet and latham. Latham is recommended by all those that have seen it, as the hardiest of all varieties. Claims for it include the largest, firmest and most prolific red raspberry in existence. These seem great claims but those that know the berry best insist that such is the case. Van fleet raspberry makes a smaller fruit, but has a wonderful flavor and is really too soft for shipping, but it probably unexcelled for home use. These two varieties will make a wonderful fence for your garden.

If a larger selection of red varieties is wanted, it might be well to add cuthbert and St. Regis. The best variety of black raspberries is Kansas, for use here in the south.

New Youngberry.

A strange cross between loganberry and dewberry gave us the new youngberry. It is larger than the loganberry, is very dark, almost black in color, and is flavored like a raspberry. The plants are very vigorous growers and should be planted in beds in eight-foot rows, the plants being set four feet apart. If planted along the garden fence the plants should be set about five feet apart.

A four-year comparative test at the Georgia Experiment Farm has shown that it is the heaviest bearing berry of its class. It is disease-resistant and will bear the first year after planting two-year-old plants.

The berry is not only good for use on the table, but also makes fine jams and jellies.

There are two or three things that will bear repeating about berries. Use rich soil that is well fertilized with bone meal or stable manure at the time of planting and thoroughly fertilized again in the spring with a commercial balanced fertilizer, Clean cultivation several times during the year followed by the removal of all dead and tall branches during the fall. In the very early spring further pruning will become necessary. These pruning directions are not correct for dewberries as all old canes should be removed from dewberries as soon as they have finished.

FEET ADMIRED BY NAPOLEON DANCED IN GEORGIA

Gauvain which occurred several years after their removal to Athens.

The Madame took a much-longed-for trip to New York some years after the separaton and much to their mutual surprise, the divorced pair met in a hotel lobby. Both exclaimed simultaneously:

"Why, I thought you were dead long ago!"

And then they became engaged in a friendly chat.

It was in the year 1830 that Madame Gauvain determined to return to France to vist her brother, Joseph, for whom she had crossed the Rhine when she was a teen-age belligerent.

The journey was a strenuous one for a woman of the Madame's advanced age, but she traveled from Athens by stage coaches to New York, then across the seas in a sailing vessel, then again, by stage from Havre to Rouen, and, plucky as in her youth, arrived at her destination in exuberant spirits.

The visit with her brother was shortlived for upon her arrival in France the Madame found that the country was in the throes of another upheaval. Remembering her former experiences in that turbulent country, the resolute Madame Gauvain packed her trunks and hied back by stage coaches and sailing vessels to her home in Athens. She had had quite enough of war!

However, years later when the south was immersed in war, the Madame met her emergencies with characteristc poise and courage. Though small in stature, this Athens matron was of such commanding dignity that the enemy held her in great respect. Her home was a repository for many valuables belonging to her neighbors for it was known that there would be no trespassing where the Madame ruled.

Madame Gauvain's fortune was greatly depleted after the war but she continued to purchase her small Parisian black satin slippers and to adorn her person with all the daintiness of by-gone days.

The death of this charming woman at the age of 89 brought to a close a career of varied and interesting experiences and brought sadness to all who adored her in the state of her adoption. Her many acquaintances felt a justifiable pride in the acquisition of this noted aristocratic remnant of the Old World, who fitted so gracefully into the New, and whose descendants had so large a part in the fashioning of the "Empire State of the South."

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: You so often speak of and reccomend ophiopogon. Please tell me how to grow it, I bought some.

Answer: In my garden it grows well in clay loam. I have seen it thrive in very dense shade or full, open sun. I think it likes leaf mold and some moisture and would respond to fertilizer. It is as near foolproof as a plant can be. A clump potted is lovely indoors. The seed are now ripe. Plant them now or as late as April. They germinate about May 1.

Question: During our recent garden school I was asked about Saintpaulia, or African violet. In Salem, W. Va., I have just seen the most amazing plant of it. So I inquired about its culture. She used much leaf mold and a small amount of well decayed manure for potting. She keeps it in her living room, near a window, but not in full sun.

She waters entirely from bottom, pouring water into the saucer under the pot. The leaves are amazing, more than two inches long on stems 8 to 10 inches long. Absolutely blue with blossoms. Occassionaly she divides the entire plant, it forms many crowns and they easily come apart. But she also takes a leaf, cuts stem off to about 3 inches and roots in sand. It requires much water.

Question: We have a new home and will soon put in our foundation planting. Shall we plant close together so that it will look well now or do you recommend planting far enough apart to allow for growth?

Answer: It depends entirely on you. Most people prefer to plant close and gradually thin out. They are impatient and do not wish to wait. Probably it would be wise to get medium-sized shrubs and allow some room for growth. Then, with intelligent pruning, they will not grow into that shapeless mass.

What Was Justice in This Case?

remaining three bullets into the garage door, then ran into the house.

"I've shot Virginia!" she telephoned Dr. Cohen.

Then she wrapped the pistol in her kimono, hid it under the pillow of her bed, and slumped down in a fit of anguished sobbing.

Out on the lawn Reisman cradled Virginia in his arms, trying to revive her. But she had died almost instantly.

The police, called by Annette, arrived at 1:40. Assistant District Attorney William H. Barr and Lieutenant James M. Smith began questioning the members of the household at once. They all told similar stories. Mrs. Reisman, completely unnerved, could say nothing but "I killed her, I killed her" over and over.

Virginia's father and stepmother, Clarence and Edith Seigh, resented any intimation that the girl and her employer had been having an affair. "She was as pure as a lily," said Mrs. Seigh. "Both Mr. and Mrs. Reisman will tell you that. They ought to hang Mrs. Reisman for this. I'll kill her myself if the law doesn't."

The medical examination bore out Mrs. Seigh's confident statement. Arthur Reisman's new love had died a virgin.

Now what was justice in this case?

Mrs. Reisman was indicted for second degree murder and went on trial December 16 before Judge Charles S. Colden in Queens county court. The prosecutor was Assistant District Attorney Irwin J. Shapiro, the defense attorney was Sydney Rosenthal. Eleven husbands and a bachelor comprised the jury.

Lawyer Rosenthal surprised observers by asserting that Mrs. Reisman had not intended to kill Virginia, but had, instead, meant to commit suicide. "It was an accident when she shot Miss Seigh," he said, explaining that the girl was shot while Annette and her stepmother struggled for the gun.

Twelve women neighbors testified that the defendant was above reproach, self-sacrificing and very devoted to her home. Then Mrs. Reisman took the stand as a witness in her own behalf.

She followed the defense as outlined by her lawyer.

"I went into the bedroom," she said. "I took the gun out of the holster. I went downstairs and said to Virginia, "Tell me, too. Tell the son of a b—— everything." Virginia said, "Yes, we've loved each other for a long time."

"I said, 'Then what's the use of going on? I'll end it all.' I put the gun up to my head. Virginia jumped at me. I pulled. She pulled. The gun went off. I stepped back. Cissie came at me. I said, 'Cissie, get back. I don't want to hurt you.' Then I emptied the gun and my husband said, 'You son of a b——, you've killed the only woman I ever loved!'"

The prosecutor, in cross-examination, sought to break down her story by intimating she had been coached, but she wavered only once.

"Did you really intend to commit suicide?" Shapiro asked. She answered, "Yes."

Q. Then why did you go out on the lawn to kill yourself when you could have done it in the bedroom? A. I—I—oh, I don't know . . .

Q. Did you know the gun was loaded? A. No.

Q. Then how did you expect to kill yourself with an unloaded gun?

Her answer was incoherent.

Q. You never heard or never knew that your husband loved Virginia before the night you shot her? A. Yes, I knew, but I had not heard it from her own lips.

Neither Reisman nor his daughter was called to testify at the trial, despite the fact that they were eyewitnesses.

The jury got the case at 3:53 p. m., December 19. The following morning at 5:57 they reported that they had found the defendant guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. They recommended clemency.

Mrs. Reisman stood motionless and expressionless. Her husband, at hearing Foreman Lewis C. Smith pronounce the verdict, clutched his mouth as if to stifle an outcry. His daughter burst into tears.

The following Monday Mrs. Reisman was again in court to hear her sentence. After a representative of the district attorney's office said that in view of the recommendation for mercy and "the splendid reputation of the defendant," the district attorney would not oppose clemency, Judge Colden said that he had never known a case which had caused him more concern, and that he had received many letters from clergymen of various faiths and from citizens, urging him to be lenient.

"The purpose of a sentence," he continued, "is usually to punish the defendant, to warn others, to bring about the rehabilitation of the defendant. I feel that this defendant has had six years of punishment and that no rehabilitation could be effected by adding more punishment.

"The sentence of this court is that Etta Reisman be confined to the New York State Prison for Women at Bedford for not less than 6 and no more than 12 years, execution stayed, and may fate deal more kindly with you in the future."

At the words "six years" Mrs. Reisman began to sob. She was still weeping when she was led from the courtroom. She did not know until she got upstairs that she would not have to serve the sentence. A committee of 20 women from the Beechurst Women's Club, who had appeared to ask for clemency for their fellow member, also passed into a state of consternation, not understanding that "execution stayed" meant that Mrs. Reisman could go free.

Later, in an interview, she said she intended going to Atlantic City for a rest, and that on her return she would open a beauty parlor, financed by her four brothers. Asked if there was any possibility of a reconciliation with her husband, she replied:

"I've taken all the punishment I'm going to take. I think it best that he go his way and I go mine."

Wise—if belated—words . . .

Today she and her son live with her people. According to the family, she has never seen Reisman since the trial.

As for the man in the case recent inquiries show that he moved away from Beechurst after the trial. Former acquaintances say they have no trace of him. And the Etta-Ann beauty shops are no more.

The Reisman tragedy follows a familiar pattern, although it is rare indeed that the young rival dies a virgin. Years before this Queens killing there was a very similar case in Brooklyn. Even one of the family names was similar. The wife in the triangle was Minnie Reisler, barrel-waisted spouse of John Reisler, better known as John the Barber. The rival was her own baby sister, Bertha Katz. Bertha went to work in John's shop in the Broadway theatrical district when she was 16. He fell in love with her, and for the next 10 years the Reisler-Katz complications had the entire family in a continual turmoil.

John had left his wife, she had sued for separation. But to her way of thinking this solved nothing. Bertha's triumph galled her to the point of mania.

In July, 1922, Bertha Katz was living on Sterling place, Brooklyn, with her widowed mother, Mrs. Jennie Katz; her brother-in-law, Isadore Reisler, and Mrs. Isadore Reisler. She was now in the employ of a theatrical agent and commanded an excellent salary.

Note now how certain further incidents parallel the Reisman-Seigh tragedy—

At about midnight, July 25, Mrs. Minnie Reisler appeared at the Sterling place address with her brother, Max, and her sons, George, 18, and Morris, 24. Minnie's 72-year-old mother refused to admit them, so they sat on the steps to await Bertha.

Forty minutes later John Reisler and Bertha arrived in a car, but when he saw the reception committee he drove away. He went to the Brownsville police station and asked that his sister-in-law be given protection. His wife, brother-in-law and two sons were waiting at the house, he said, and it looked like trouble.

Detective William Donnelly climbed into the car. Reisler drove to within a block or so of the house, where Bertha and the officer got out. Reisler drove away. As Donnelly escorted Bertha up the steps, the reception committee started to follow them in. Donnelly showed his badge, and they retired.

"Beat it, now," he warned them after the door closed behind Bertha. "Beat it or I'll pull you all in."

They said they would go. They would take a taxi. He told them where they could find a cab this time of night. They hurried away, and Detective Donnelly strolled back to the station.

But Minnie Reisler and her avengers soon returned to the scene.

Bertha had donned her nightgown, and was about to retire, when suddenly there was a noise at the door. The young woman stood petrified as she heard the door crash in. A few moments later the avengers rushed in and pumped three bullets into her. Then they went out and sat on the curb to await the police.

Minnie Reisler said she did it, and that she had hoped her husband would be there, too, so she could shoot them together. But her mother named Morris as the killer, and Bertha herself, before she died, said it was Morris. This enraged Minnie so much she all but foamed at the mouth.

Eventually Morris assumed all the blame, pleaded guilty to second degree murder, and got 20 years to life.

If the wife had done the job herself it is possible that in her case, too, a merciful court might have murmured "execution stayed."
